NYE NARRATES WEIRD TALE OF SPIES' TACTICS

Senator Shadowed Daily by McCormick Agents, He Declares.

DENIES THAT HIS AIDS RIFLED HER QUARTERS

His Committee Papers in Capitol Disturbed, Is Claim.

STEPS EVERYWHERE DOGGED BY STRANGER

Says He Knew of Espionage but Is Amazed That "She Admits It."

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

Young Senator Gerald P. Nye, who, a year ago almost to the day, stood bravely among a delegation from the National Women's Party and over the radio exhorted women to assert themselves in politics, came back to town yesterday with a story as hair-raising as a man ever heard, the story of his experiences with the Widow McCormick.

It may be that the Chicago reporters, so accustomed to blood-curdling stories, did not see the full drama of this one when Senator Nye was in their city or it may be that the young senator was reluctant to unfold it until he was safe from the widow's tentacles, but regardless of the reason, the reading public apparently only knows the half of it.

Its a story of footprints and false moustaches, not the widow's but her detectives, of funny sounds outside his doors, of heavy eyebrowed men who smoke pipes and crawl around on the floor looking through microscopic glasses. The relentless pursuit of the villain after the girl fades into melodramatic insignificance as compared with it.

Tale of Senator's Escape.

And this story might be entitled the "Senator's Escape From a Resourceful Widow."

In the first place, the senator said that Mrs. McCormick did not have a leg to stand on in her justification of putting the detectives on his trail. None of his investigators ever rifled her offices, he declared, and in this he was very emphatic.

His investigators have in no way transgressed the grounds of propriety in their inquiry, he declared. As a matter of fact, at the time Mrs. McCormick claims her offices were entered it is contended that the committee had requested certain papers which have never been produced and which, it is now contended by Mrs. McCormick, are lost.

The entire investigating committee intends to meet in Chicago Monday, he said, to give formal refutation to Mrs. McCormick's charges.

Statement Over Radio.

It was October 17 last that the senator said over the radio:

"The women of America have not yet fully realized the power that has come to them through their right to participate in elections. * * * I do not mean that the time will come when we will have a woman-governed Nation or world—but I do mean that women will finally make their convictions so felt that political parties will heed more closely than they do now the wishes of men."

It was after his committee held its first hearing in Chicago and had come back to Washington that the senator first began to suspect the sleuths were after him. He would find papers on his desk in the Senate Office Building disarranged and he would hear noises outside and when he would open the door right quickly he would see strange men going down the corridor.

One day he noticed a cadaverous fellow slunk behind a newspaper in a chair at the end of the corridor. And then after that he would see this same weird, haunting thing there in

Says: The coming yacht race is the apex of international sport. It will attract universal attention, although but few can participate in it.

We are not generally considered as a nation interested in sports, yet in no other country is the outlay for that purpose anywhere near so great. The yearly expenditure for baseball, football, golf, fishing and hunting is hundreds of millions of dollars. Conservation and propagation of wild life, mainly for the benefit of sportsmen, are a large item in our Government budgets.

For the last season nearly six and one-half million licenses were taken out to hunt and fish, for which almost nine and one-half million dollars were paid. The manufacture and distribution of sporting goods is a large business.

All of the varied sports activities take people out of doors where they relax, recuperate and gain new interests that broaden and sweeten life. They afford an outlet for primitive instincts which otherwise tend to turn in upon themselves, with disaster to the normal development of the individual and at cost to society. Plenty of playgrounds and games is the best cure for youthful delinquency. Plenty of outdoor sports is a wise investment in good citizenship.

RECORD OF HOOVER IS OHIO BATTLE CRY

G. O. P. Convention Adjourns After Squelching Wets' Law Repeal Ideas.

ENFORCEMENT IS ASKED

Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Law enforcement, indorsement of the Hoover and Cooper administrations, and reduced general property taxes will be the battle cry of Ohio Republicans in the campaign this fall.

The State convention of the party adjourned today after adopting its platform, which sidestepped the prohibition question entirely. Anti-prohibitionists, seeking referendum or repeal of the dry laws, got no further than the resolutions committee, and they made no effort to fight it out on the convention floor.

The convention decided to have a special committee of the party arrange a suitable date for the dedication of the Harding memorial tomb at Marion. Decision to appoint such a committee came after a fruitless effort was made to have the convention go on record as inviting President Hoover to attend and speak at the dedication exercises October 2, the day he will be in Cleveland.

While making no specific mention of prohibition, the platform, adopted without a roll call, called for enforcement of all laws. Other planks indorsed the Hoover administration; highly approved the protective tariff; advocated reduction of general property taxes; urged laws under which intangible property would be taxed a "just share," and approved the program of Gov. Myers Y. Cooper, for extension of facilities for wards of the State, penal and otherwise.

The expected fight on the floor of the convention over prohibition failed to develop after a hectic night in which wets attempted fruitlessly to inject their ideas into the platform. The resolutions committee refused to consider any planks on prohibition, the committee voting 18 to 3 on all such questions. Repeal and referendum were sought by State Senator Joseph Ackerman, of Cleveland, while W. W. White, of Toledo, congressional candidate in the Ninth District, advocated a repeal plank and substitution of Government control.

George H. Bender, Cleveland, congressional nominee in the Twenty-first District, asked for a referendum on both the State and Federal dry enforcement laws. White and Bender were not accredited delegates to the convention, but they were given a hearing by the committee when they threatened to carry their fight to the convention floor. After all the proposals were voted down Ackerman said he would go to the convention proper, but this he failed to do.

BOOM FOR ROBINSON STIRS TWO DENIALS

Gov. Roosevelt of New York and Judge Dennis Say No Support Pledged.

ARKANSAS BACKS SON

Hot Springs, Ark., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Enthusiastic friends of United States Senator Joe T. Robinson in the State Democratic convention here today tossed his hat in the ring for the 1932 presidential nomination.

In seconding the resolution of indorsement former Gov. Charles H. Brough of Arkansas assured the delegates he had the word of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York that in event he was unable to obtain the nomination he would support Robinson.

Mr. Brough also said he had been assured by Chief Justice Samuel K. Dennis, of the Supreme Court bench of Baltimore, that if Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland could not be nominated he felt sure the Maryland delegation would go over to Robinson in the convention. This statement was denied from Baltimore by Justice Dennis, who characterized it as "an absurd untruth."

Dr. Brough later reiterated the statement and declared Justice Dennis had assured him of Maryland's support for Robinson in event Gov. Ritchie could not be nominated. When told Justice Dennis had denied giving such an assurance Dr. Brough said he, in company with George L. Radcliffe, president of the American Bonding Co.; Hill Carruth, an executive of the Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland, and Mrs. Brough were joined at luncheon in the Baltimore Club on August 20 by Judge Dennis and that the conversation took place there in the presence of the others.

In seconding the indorsement of Robinson, Dr. Brough quoted Gov. Roosevelt as having said:

"My hat may be in the ring. I am having trouble with Tammany over appointive matters. I assure you as Governor of New York that if I can not obtain the nomination there is no man I had rather support than Senator Robinson."

The unanimous vote of indorsement amid cheering followed an address by Representative Claud A. Fuller, of Eureka Springs, spokesman for Robinson, who praised the senior Arkansas senator as an able leader, and assailed President Hoover and the Republican party.

"Senator Robinson is the ablest man in America today and the most influential in Washington with the possible exception of the President, who retains some influence because of Senator, Who Cast Ballot for Prohibition, Says Mind Is Changed.

RETURN TO CONTROL BY STATES IS URGED

Predicts That Wet Will Be Democratic Choice in 1932.

SENATOR NEVER DRY, IS M'BRIDE RETORT

Hoover's Law Enforcement Group Becomes Center of Attention.

(Associated Press.)

Prohibition continued to command attention yesterday in the Capital, with Senator Burton K. Wheeler saying conditions under it had forced him to the opinion that the eighteenth amendment had failed.

The Montana Democrat recalled having voted for the dry law in his State. He advocated leaving liquor traffic regulation to each State. Aside from his prepared statement, he predicted the Democratic party would nominate an opponent of prohibition in 1932.

F. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Antisaloon League, said his organization had "never counted Burton Wheeler as a dry."

Held Wet Changing Mind.

"This is simply a case of a wet changing his mind as a wet and is in line with that of Chairman Raskob and other party leaders whom he has supported before," he said. "It is no loss from the dry standpoint, that I know of."

McBride said the newly announced stand of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York brought "the wet issue into the next political campaign."

"In view of the fact that he has been mentioned as a possible candidate," he said, "it looks as if he makes the statement to clarify his position as a candidate."

Commission Draws Attention.

With the wet and dry controversy apparently gaining in intensity, attention last night centered upon the Law Enforcement Commission which has been instructed to inquire into prohibition. If the issue is forced into the presidential campaign two years hence, it is believed President Hoover will be guided by the report of the commission.

Both Republicans and Democrats are openly divided over the issue.

The Law Enforcement Commission convenes here again October 8. The commission has been making a general survey of all crimes and laws, but Congress has been insistent that it give particular attention to prohibition and a comprehensive prohibition report is believed to be in the making.

Chairman Wickersham of the commission has said the commission itself will not make a definite recommendation either for or against prohibition. However, its report is expected to provide a basis for authoritative discussion of the issue.

The demands for repeal of the eighteenth amendment are regarded by the drys as futile. To repeal the amendment, two-thirds of both branches of Congress would have to vote to resubmit the amendment to the States, and two-thirds, or 36, of the States then would have to vote for repeal.

McBride Not Worried.

The wets have heralded the defeats of dry House members in Michigan and Washington Republican primaries as an indication of a changing trend against the dry laws.

McBride said last night "it was to be expected that we would lose some drys this year."

"We had more drys in the last

By MAJ. MAURICE CAMPBELL.

Charles Curtis, United States senator from the desert State of Kansas, was a preconvention candidate for President in 1928 and was elected Vice President.

How the campaign of this noted prohibitionist was conducted throughout the country I can only surmise from the fact that in New York it involved continual pressure upon me to issue alcohol withdrawal permits to dubious concerns.

Senator Curtis' especial interest, recorded in two letters from Commissioner Doran, was shown in the application of the Spa Chemical Co., the president of

OHIO AND MICHIGAN PERSONNEL PRAISED

Head of Bureau to Deliver Massachusetts Speech, Despite Protest.

(Associated Press.)

An increase in the funds for the prohibition bureau from $9,000,000 to $11,200,000 was asked of the budget bureau yesterday by Director Woodcock, to permit the addition of 500 agents to his staff of 1,475.

The increased appropriation, which has to meet the approval of Congress, would boost the total cost of the dry enforcement agencies, including the Coast Guard and industrial alcohol bureau, to well over the $15,000,000 limit now allowed.

Returning to the Capital yesterday from an inspection trip through Ohio and Michigan, Mr. Woodcock reported "excellent cooperation" in that territory between Federal and State enforcement agencies. He declared himself well satisfied with conditions in these States.

Survey Confined to Personnel.

However, Mr. Woodcock emphasized that he was not certain just how effective the prohibition work was in this territory. He said he had confined his survey to the personnel and organization and that he was well satisfied with these.

The monthly report of prohibition enforcement activities was issued yesterday, showing a slight decline in the number of arrests in August, compared with July, and a slight increase in unfinished cases on the docket. Arrests for August totaled 5,759, compared with 6,548 in July.

There were 1,255 convictions last month, 41 by juries, while fines totaled $143,451 and sentences totaled 55,455 days. The greatest number of arrests were made in the Second Prohibition District, which includes New York.

Increase Held Necessary.

Asked if he could "dry up" the Nation with 500 additional agents, Mr. Woodcock told newspapermen he did not know. He said the increased staff was vitally necessary, however. The increased appropriation also would be used, he said, to meet the expenses of the prohibition agents' school and the cost of the 24 instructors.

Mr. Woodcock said he intended to make the speech in Boston he had

King Carol's Old Follies Embittering Life as Ruler

Roumanian Sovereign Unable to Shake Off Claims of Mme. Lupescue or to Get People to Recognize Her—Avoided by British Envoy.

Vienna, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—A foreign diplomat stationed in the Roumanian capital, arriving here today en route to Paris, said that King Carol's responsibilities growing out of his youthful escapades are now weighing like a ton of lead on his shoulders and are embittering his life.

The trouble arises, the diplomat says, out of the king's difficulties on one hand in shaking off Mme. Magda Lupescu—his companion in exile—and on the other by his inability to obtain recognition of her by his subjects.

One by one the king's intimate friends are turning from him, the envoy relates, in realization that the enthronement of Mme. Lupescu in place of Queen Helen, the king's divorced wife who refuses to become reconciled despite Carol's proclamation that she is queen, would be an affront to the nation.

In court circles it is asserted the king married Mme. Lupescu while he was living in Paris without royal rights and now is trying to buy her off, sending an intimate friend to conduct the negotiations.

Some even say that Mme. Lupescu now is in the royal summer palace at Sinaia. There is no confirmation of

The Antisaloon League superintendent said the defeat of Representative Miller in Washington, "a good man and a dry," was an example.

The defeats of Representatives Hudson and Cramton in Michigan were attributed by him to the shifting population, the unrest of an industrial region and "an aggressive wet campaign."

In general, he said, the primary turnover had been about normal and he predicted that if the drys would concentrate upon the coming campaign, they might regain some of the lost ground.

the chair day after day. He satisfied himself that it was a man and not his conscience and told the Capitol constabulary about it.

Statement by Stranger.

The man told the Capitol police upon interrogation that he was waiting to see Senator Walsh, of Montana, who was to get him a job. But, according to Senator Nye, Mr. Walsh was in Montana at the time. The sleuth outalked the Capitol law, however, and went on his way.

After the senator became convinced that he was being trailed everywhere he went at night he determined upon an experiment. Noticing a car behind him one night he rode all around town aimlessly, and everywhere he went Sherlock was right behind him. He finally went home, where he turned off the lights and came downstairs, and there across the street was the lone, hawk-like figure still on the vigil.

There came a time when the sleuth picked up some hot stuff, because he reported to his chief anent the senator:

"Left Senate Office Building and went across street to old building. Got car and drove it out. Picked up woman and drove rapidly downtown. Woman mysteriously dropped on F street. Car continued in northwesterly direction. Your operative lost touch."

Explanation by Senator.

The woman was his secretary, and her mysterious disappearance on F street, the senator said, was to do some shopping.

He was under surveillance, the senator said, right up to the train on which he left for the West the last time. As he boarded the Pullman he met Sherlock getting off the train, and subsequently in the detective company's files was found a report of the senator's departure.

Out through the Northwest the trail led into Montana and Glacier National Park and even at Lake of the Woods, where the senator was vacationing. The sleuths went into his State and sought out his political enemies, he said, one of them telling him about the approach that had been made to him.

"It must have cost Mrs. McCormick a lot of money," the senator observed, adding that the committee would find out just how much.

The senator said he had satisfied himself long in advance that the detectives were in Mrs. McCormick's employ, but that he was "amazed to hear her admit it."

CUBA WELL ARMED AGAINST UPRISING

Government Holds Precau- Taken Render Outbreak Imposible.

RUMORS ARE DENIED

Havana, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—With reports becoming more frequent that a revolution is impending, the Cuban government has placed guards over all railroads, highways and government buildings throughout the islands.

Other military forces have been placed at strategic points to watch for the first symptoms of an uprising. No stores of ammunition have been allowed to accumulate at any point and the ownership of all firearms over .38-caliber has been carefully checked.

Government spokesmen say that they believe that with these precautions an armed outbreak of any significance is impossible. The State Department told the Associated Press tonight the United States had been advised by telegram that no trouble was in sight.

Minor disturbances have been reported in various Cuban provinces for two weeks, but nothing of a serious nature has occurred so far.

Reports drifted in today from various sources saying a revolution either was near or actually had broken out and the State Department was caused no little concern. One query as to the state of affairs came from Mexico, another from Honduras and another from Peru.

New Bern, N. C., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Reports from Beaufort and Moorehead City early tonight indicated that the twin cities of the North Carolina coast escaped the fury of the 82 miles an hour wind which struck Cape Lookout, 12 miles from Beaufort, at 4 o'clock this afternon. Power plants and telephone exchanges weer put out of order, but no other damage was reported except the unroofing of one building and the toppling over of trees. The wind in the city was estimated to have reached 50 to 60 miles an hour for a short period about 2:30 o'clock.

The Weather Bureau last night issued the following storm warning:

Central 8 p. m. near Cape Hatteras, aparently moving northeastward about 15 miles per hour. Winds will likely reach gale force along the coast as far north as Atlantic City Saturday forenoon.

Washington Escapes Hurricane Visitation

Despite its proximity to the charted course along which the West Indian hurricane is moving slowly up the Atlantic seaboard, Washington and this immediate region last night was expected to escape any appreciable effects from the West Indian hurricane.

At a late hour last night the barometer indicated no downward trend, and except for an intermittently fitful wind, there was no indication that a storm was heading up the coast.

An insignificant rain, measured at one one-hundredth of an inch, fell in Washington yesterday, according to the Weather Bureau, with Burleith and Georgetown experiencing a light sprinkle, as well as the downtown section.

Showers also were predicted for today, with virtually no change expected in temperature.

The following statement was issued by James J. Mahoney, a secretary to the governor.

"By direction of Gov. Roosevelt and having been present on the occasion of the visit of former Gov. Brough, of Arkansas, to the executive chamber in Albany, I wish to say that Gov. Roosevelt deeply regrets the very serious inaccuracies that have evidently crept into the remarks of former Gov. Brough as reported in the press. Man Thought Dying Of Collision Hurts

Melford Phillips Taken to Garfield Hospital After Crash.

Melford Phillips, 27 years old, believed to live in Montgomery County, Md., is thought to be dying at Garfield Hospital from injuries he received in an automobile accident early yesterday morning at the intersection of Connecticut avenue and Albemarle street northwest.

Phillips was riding in a car driven by Stanley L. Fant, 27 years old, who gave his address as Kent place near Ninth street northwest, and who is alleged to have crashed into another car driven by Benjamin Hollins, living on Connecticut avenue near Chesapeake street northwest.

The injured man suffered lacerations of both eyes, ears, throat and internal injuries. Fant was treated for bruises and scratches at the hospital and later taken to the Fourteenth Precinct Station, where he was held until released in custody of Attorney Howard T. Whalen.

Embrey Changes Plea To Guilty in Holdup

Paul C. Embrey, who, with Carl Benjamin Davis and Morris Beck, is under indictment charged with robbery in connection with the holdup of Gilbert E. Hyatt, jr., a runner for the Mount Vernon Savings Bank last August 1, pleaded guilty yesterday in District Supreme Court before Justice Frederick L. Siddons. Previously Embrey had pleaded not guilty when arraigned. Justice Siddons reserved sentence.

Davis and Beck, however, stand on their pleas of not guilty and intend to fight the case to the limit, according to United States Attorney Leo A. Rover.

Petroleum Economics Expert Is Promoted

E. B. Swanson, who has been acting chief of the division of petroleum economics of the U. S. Bureau of Mines, yesterday was appointed chief economist of the division. Mr. Swanson has been acting chief since October, 1928. He is a graduate of the University of Washington and has done postgraduate work in economics at the Robert Brookings Graduate School here.

Other personnel changes and additions are expected, to take care of additional studies of the distribution and utilization of petroleum products. Already G. R. Hopkins has been promoted to economic analyst and A. H. Redfield to the position of associate economic analyst.

Name of Policeman Forged, Bank Charges

James Garland Graves, 38-year-old Negro, living on V street near Thirteenth street northwest, was held at the Sixth Precinct Station for investigation yesterday after officials of the North Capitol Savings Bank had accused him of forging a policeman's name to a $43 check.

Graves is said to have attempted to cash a check signed by Policeman Robert Strong, of the Traffic Bureau. Detaining the man at the bank, the clerk called Sixth Precinct policemen, who placed him under arrest. Several other checks have been forged in Strong's name by a man answering Graves' description, bank officers said.

Three Plead Not Guilty To McCrory Robbery

Three men, charged with robbery in connection with the recent holdup of two employes of the J. G. McCrory Co. yesterday pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Justice Frederick L. Siddons, and failing to make bonds of $10,000, were committed to the District Jail, pending trial.

The men—John Irvin, Elmer Bennett and Henry Mechelinski—are alleged to have held up Earl D. Flory and Harvey W. Smith, employes of the McCrory firm. The men are said to have been en route to a bank with $1,200 of the company's funds at the time of the alleged robbery.

Mechelenski recently was returned from Baltimore, where he was in custody at the time of the return of the indictment containing the charge.

$10,000 Damage Asked In Auto Collision Suit

Merton A. English, an osteopath, of 3317 Sixteenth street northwest, filed suit yesterday in District Supreme Court seeking to recover $10,000 damages from Clifford W. Hurley and Mrs. Mildred E. Hurley, of 4910 Seventh street northwest.

English alleges that an automobile belonging to Hurley and operated by Mrs. Hurley collided with his automobile September 13, 1927, at Gallatin and Thirteenth streets northwest, causing him to be seriously injured. He claims negligence on the part of the defendants in the operation of their automobile and states that as a result of his injuries he was unable to practice his profession for a long period. Attorneys Robert L. Williams and Guy H. Johnson appear for the plaintiff.

MEDALS PRESENTED TO POLICE, FIREMEN

Seven Heroes Are Rewarded for Bravery Shown in Line of Duty.

ACTS ARE COMMENDED

Seven members of the Police and Fire Departments were the recipients of official recognition for bravery by the District Commissioners yesterday.

Policeman Robert S. Bryant was awarded the gold medal given annually to a member of the department for bravery. Private Van D. Hughes was awarded a silver medal and Private E. L. Shelton was awarded bronze bars.

Private Esley E. Davis, of No. 20 Engine Co., was awarded the gold medal for the Fire Department; Private Walter Walker, No. 20 Engine Co., was awarded the silver medal, and Private William E. Thomas, No. 7 Engine Co., was awarded bronze bars.

Baker Is Commended.

In addition to these men selected for the annual award of medals and bars as provided for by Congress, Private Earl L. Baker, of the Second Police Precinct, was officially commended by Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, and the Commissioners put their seal of approval on that commendation by approving the police chief's recommendation that Baker be made a "gold striper" and be given $5 a month extra pay because of his bravery in capturing Howard L. Carson in the latter's home Tuesday night.

Carson threatened to shoot Miss Alma D. Jennings if she did not agree to marry him. Police surrounded the house, but feared to enter the room in which Carson held Miss Jennings for fear he would shoot her. Baker crept across an ironing board stretched over an areaway to capture Carson.

Policemen Bryant and Hughes won their medal awards at the same time, when they pursued men who leaped from an unlighted automobile and fled at their command to halt. Bryant pursued one man and Hughes another. Hughes was shot and fell to the sidewalk, but fired, and wounded the fugitive. Bryant returned when he heard the shots and finally captured the man in an alley, knocking his pistol from his hand.

Shelton Captures Murderer.

Private Shelton responded to a call on January 5 that a murder had been committed in a house on Barry place. He entered the house and found the murderer standing over his victim with a still smoking pistol in his hand. He closed with the man and disarmed and arrested him.

Privates Davis and Walker won their recognition when they rescued three boys who were lying at the bottom of a gas-filled sewer. Davis did not wait for orders nor stop to put on a gas mask, and when, after rescuing two of the boys, he was overcome, Walker promptly took his place and rescued the third. Walker was placed on the list of men who are to receive $5 extra pay a month for meritorious service.

Private Thomas won his bronze bars when he dashed through the flames in a house on Barry place and rescued Harry Grady, colored, 20 years old, who had been overcome by smoke on the second floor.

Dancing Teacher Held On Jones Law Charge

Barbara Walker, 25 years old, of Fourteenth street northwest between H and I streets, who is charged with shooting Russell Prince last Sunday night, was arraigned in Police Court yesterday on a Jones law charge and entered a plea of not guilty. She was liberated under her original bond of $2,500, made at the time she was arraigned in Police Court and held for grand jury action.

Since the shooting of Prince the woman also has been arraigned in Police Court and released on $1,000 bond on an assault charge. Hearing on that charge has been set for September 17.

Osborne Hearing Set On Charge of Assault

William J. Osborne, who is alleged to have struck Policeman V. V. Vaughn, of the Traffic Bureau, Wednesday night during an altercation in which Aaron Trachtenberg was involved, was arraigned in Police Court yesterday on a charge of assault. Hearing on the charge was fixed for September 25. Trachtenberg was arraigned Thursday on a charge of assaulting the policeman and also will be given a hearing on that date.

The altercation in which Policeman Vaughn was injured is said to have resulted from Vaughn's efforts to place a parking ticket in Trachtenberg's automobile. Trachtenberg is said to have struck the policeman with his fists while Osborne hit him with a bottle. During the melee Vaughn shot Osborne, a wound which kept the man in the hospital until yesterday.

U. S. ACTION ASKED ON TALKING PLANE

LACK OF POWER CITED

The District Commissioners yesterday asked the Department of Commerce to compel pilots licensed by it to observe the laws and regulations of the District when flying over the National Capital.

Their letter, addressed to Secretary of Commerce Lamont, was the result of the appearance over Washington Tuesday and Wednesday of an airplane advertising, by means of a loud speaker a make of automobile.

"Within the last few days," the Commissioners said, "an airplane has been broadcasting an advertisement of one of the makes of automobiles over the city of Washington and the Commissioners have been in receipt of complaints from citizens as to the annoyance caused by such broadcasting.

"The airplane from which the broadcast emanated made no landing within the limits of the District of Columbia so that no prosecution could be made of the operator of the airplane. The Commissioners are of the opinion that it is detrimental to the best interests of the people of the District of Columbia to allow such methods of advertising but they are doubtful as to just the method of procedure which should be adopted to prevent a violation of the police regulations where they have no jurisdiction over the offender.

"They would be obliged if you would inform them whether it is a condition of the license granted to pilots of airplanes that they shall not violate the laws or ordinances of the jurisdictions over which they fly. It would seem this would be the only method of preventing the violation of such laws or ordinances where the pilot made no landing within the jurisdiction of the authorities enacting such law or regulation."

Child Felled by Auto Driven by Policeman

Calvin Eckard, 5 years old, of 118 North Carolina avenue northeast, was knocked down by an automobile driven by Private Jesse I. Moore, of the Fourth Precinct, in front of his home about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Although the child was not seriously injured, he was admitted to Emergency Hospital, where X-rays will be made this morning to determine the extent of the child's injuries. He was taken to the hospital by Moore.

Sisters Suffer Hurts When Struck by Auto

Two sisters, Miss Florence G. Smith, 54 years old, and Miss Margaret K. Smith, 65 years old, of 83 U street northwest, suffered shock, abrasions to the head and right side of the body early last night at Thirteenth and F streets northwest when they were knocked down by an automobile.

They were admitted to Emergency Hospital. First Precinct police said the car was operated by Lont T. Green, 53 years old, of Spring road near Fourteenth street northwest.

GRAND JURY STATUS OF CARSON STANDS

MAN STILL HELD IN JAIL

Although the District has undertaken to test the sanity of Howard Carson, the ardent wooer who kept police at bay, the test will not affect his status before the grand jury, District Attorney Leo A. Rover said last night.

Dr. D. Percy Hickling, District alienist, is to start a 10-day psychiatric examination of the youth at Gallinger Hospital next week, but whether the alienist finds him sane or demented, his case on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon, with intent to kill, will go to the grand jury.

Carson is still in the District Jail, where he was committed in default of $10,000 bail by Judge Gus A. Schuldt after he had made violent love, emphasized by a gun, Tuesday night to Miss Annie D. Jennings in her furnished room at his parents' home, 60 S street northwest, while a gallery of policemen watched helplessly for three hours from a neighbor's porch.

In a letter to Dr. Hickling ordering the psychopathic tests, Mr. Rover yesterday pointed out to the alienist that whether Dr. Hickling finds the youth sane or insane, it will still be necessary for the grand jury to indict and for Carson's attorneys then to answer the indictment with a plea of insanity in District Supreme Court.

Carson will remain in the jail at least until Monday, until he is transferred to the psychopathic ward at Gallinger.

$60 Theft Reported.

Harvey C. Buckwalter, stopping at 124 E street southeast, yesterday reported to police that a wallet containing more than $30, valuable company papers and a gold watch chain was taken from a locker at the Capital Power Plant, New Jersey avenue and E street southeast. Total value of the missing articles was given at $60.

JUDGE HEARS BRIDGE TROUBLE OF COUPLE

Probation Officer, Expert at Game, Detailed to Aid Man and Wife.

THREATS ARE CHARGED

That eternal cause of marital discord, bridge, came up in Police Court yesterday when Robert Mills, said to be an employe of the Washington Terminal Co., was arraigned before Judge Gus A. Schuldt on charges of threats brought by his wife, Mrs. Anna Mills, of R street near First street northeast.

Mrs. Mills told the court that her husband had promised her that he would join a bridge club. Later, she said, he refused and became angry when she attended meetings of the club, accusing her of meeting other men at the club. Several arguments ensued, she said.

The climax to the disagreement, the wife said, came on September 7, when Mills' brother sent him a note asking for repayment of a loan of $15. Mrs. Mills said that her husband was intoxicated and began to upbraid her, accusing her of influencing his brother to ask for the money. One word led to another, the wife declared, and the argument over bridge broke out anew, ending in a threat by Mills to kill her.

Judge Schuldt, after a pause, remarked:

"Well, I will refer the case to the probation officer for investigation. The probation officer is a bridge expert, and perhaps can see some solution for the difficulty."

Mrs. Mills said that she did not want her husband jailed because she needed his support, and that she did not wish to live with him because she feared him.

Man, in Swimming, Robbed.

Donald Law Harris, 3100 Tunlaw road northeast, yesterday asked police to aid him in locating the thief who removed a pair of shoes and a wallet from his car while he was enjoying a swim in the C. & O. Canal, near Widewater, Md. The wallet contained $6 and a number of fraternal cards, he said.

During the last month 921 cows were tested in the Fairfax County Dairy Herd Improvement Association No. 2. Of this number, 155 were dry. Sixty-eight were producing 40 pounds or more of butterfat and five were sold to the butcher. Only nine cows were on the honor roll. There were 46 cows that came in fresh, of which seven were young heifers.

The total production of the association was 400,420 pounds of milk and 2,015.06 ppounds of butterfat. This makes an average of 435.8 pounds of milk and 21.87 pounds of butterfat for each cow.

The highest herd average was again made by the herd of 34 cows owned by C. T. Rice, of Oakton. This herd made an average of 902.3 pounds of milk and 33.69 pounds of butterfat. The second highest average was made by the pure-bred guernseys owned by B. F. Salsbury, of Merrifield. This herd's record showed 737.6 pounds of milk and 32.19 pounds of butterfat per cow.

The highest individual cow record was made by a guernsey grade cow owned by Jenkins & Wilson, of Vienna. This cow produced 1,131 pounds of milk and 81.4 pounds of butterfat.

The owners of the herds state that the continued drought this summer has greatly curtailed their production and the average made this year is far below the averages made during the same period last year.

MARKETS IN DANGER, PRESIDENT WARNED

British Grain Dealers Say Reciprocity Looms on High Tariff.

SEEK TRADE ASSURANCE

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover was told yesterday by representatives of the English grain business that unless the American market for British goods is left open through moderate tariffs the reciprocal market abroad would be endangered.

The delegation, representing the cooperative wholesale society of England, was presented to President Hoover by Sir Ronald Lindsey, the British Ambassador, and Herbert L. Bodman, president of the New York Produce Exchange. It included Robert Fleming and Joseph Bradshaw, directors of the society.

In recent years, the visitors told the President, "enormous political pressure" has been put upon English merchants to buy British Empire goods.

"This pressure," they added, "might possibly affect the purchasing of staples in this country unless a market for the British manufactured products is assured."

Groups of Thirteen Colonies Will Meet

Robert P. Robinson, former Governor of Delaware, and Charles H. Grantland will represent Delaware at a meeting here this autumn of the original thirteen States, it was announced yesterday by Frederick Vining Fisher, executive officer of the District of Columbia Bicentennial Commission. The news came upon Mr. Fisher's return from Delaware, where he conferred with State officials.

The autumn meeting will consider the reunion of the thirteen States on July 4, 1932, as a part of the George Washington bicentennial celebration. Governors of all the States concerned have indorsed the plan. The reunion will be the first time since the Revolution that the States have met as a body.

Mrs. McCormick Denies Dill Espionage Charge

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Senator C. C. Dill, of Washington, member of the Senate campaign investigating committee, said today that he had been informed that a detective employed by Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick has been looking up his record here and elsewhere.

Senator Dill will attend the Senate committee hearing at Chicago into the campaign of Mrs. McCormick and other senatorial candidates in Illinois.

Waukegan, Ill., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Informed of a statement by Senator C. C. Dill, of Washington, that he had been told detectives employed by Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick were looking up his record at Spokane and elsewhere, Mrs. McCormick said tonight:

"I don't know anything about Senator Dill's charges, but if he did make such a statement, it is absolutely untrue. I am much too busy with my campaign to give the matter any further attention."

IRIGOYEN ARRESTED WHILE ON CRUISER

Status and Destination of Deposed President Is Still Mystery.

THIRD TIME IN CUSTODY

Buenos Aires, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—The status of Hipolito Irigoyen, deposed president of the Argentine Republic, tonight was as much a matter of speculation as it has been in the six days since he was overthrown from the seat directing the destinies of this nation.

Two ministers of Gen. Jose Francisco Uriburu's provisional cabinet told the Associated Press today that the deposed executive was still in Argentine waters aboard the cruiser Belgrano—on which he was placed yesterday—and that he was under arrest. This was in answer to reports that he would be landed in the neighboring nation of Uruguay soon or that he would be transferred to a steamer bound for Europe.

Hence his destination or his ultimate fate appears a mystery at present.

Sanchez Sorondo, minister of the interior, disclosed that Irigoyen was under arrest when asked about the reports concerning the transfer to Uruguay or to a steamer heading for Europe.

He said that the cruiser was about two hours steaming from the port of La Plata and would remain there to await orders, but added that the government soon would reveal what measures would be taken against the former president and other political prisoners.

Rear Admiral Abew Renard, who as minister of marine controls the movements of the Belgrano, told the Associated Press tonight that the former president still was aboard the cruiser, "Subject to an order I have received from the minister of the interior."

Irigoyen probably has become accustomed to arrest since he wrote the resignation that ended his political career a few moments after midnight last Saturday. Before he wrote this document he was under arrest, but he was informed immediately after that he was free.

Then, because of illness, Irigoyen remained in La Plata, where he had resigned, on a sick bed in the barracks of the Seventh Infantry. He was a free man, so the government said, but following trouble and shooting in the capital Monday night he again was arrested.

Shortly afterward the government announced once more that the former president was free to go wherever he wished, and he was put on the Belgrano yesterday, presumably going into exile without hindrance.

Now he is still under Argentine jurisdiction and is a prisoner aboard one of the naval vessels he once directed.

System Ordered In Making Arrests

Police to Fill In Special Facts Containing Facts in Cases.

Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of the Metropolitan Police Department, yesterday issued an order to all precinct commanders that police must be more systematic in presenting their evidence and cases in court.

The order, he said, grows out of the fact that there has been considerable criticism regarding the manner in which cases are presented to court by the police, and he thinks the cause is that the arresting officer seldom makes a memorandum of the facts which will aid materially in the prosecution of the case.

To aid the police in compiling the information necessary, Maj. Pratt has had special blanks printed and sent to all precincts, with appropriate space for each necessary fact. A copy of this is to be given the prosecuting officer in court, and the other to be retained by the maker for his own information when he needs it. At the disposition of cases the sheets are to be filled in and sent to Police Headquarters for permanent filing.

Wheeling Railway Control Studied

I. C. C. Recommends That West Virginia Line Be Denied Role of Ruler.

(Associated Press.)

The recommendation that the Pittsburgh & West Virginia Railway Co. be denied control of the Wheeling & Lake Erie Railway Co. was made yesterday to the Interstate Commerce Commission by its examiners.

Control of the Wheeling has been for years a subject of contention among lines serving Eastern territory and the controversy has resulted in several proceedings before the commission. The Wheeling gives local service in eastern and northeastern Ohio and its tracks with those of the Pittsburgh & West Virginia afford a direct and easy route between ports on Lake Erie and the Pittsburgh district.

Both lines were assigned to the Wabash Seaboard System in the general railroad consolidation plan of the commission issued in 1929.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

GOVERNOR FRANKLIN ROOSEVELT'S pronouncement on prohibition, followed promptly by endorsements by Democratic Chairman Raskob and Former Governor Smith, is being quite widely interpreted here in Washington as that group's determination to nominate the Democratic presidential candidate in 1932 and on a wet ticket.

There is every reason to believe that there was a collaboration of effort at that. One gets the impression that the governor would have preferred to remain on the fence, but the understanding is that in the conferences which Mr. Smith and Mr. Raskob had with him several weeks ago that they insisted there be no straddling on the prohibition question.

It may or may not be significant that Jouett Shouse, chairman of the executive committee, was in New York at the time the statement was made, ostensibly to arrange for speeches by the trio.

IT WOULD seem, too, that Mr. Raskob in his statement indorsing the Roosevelt statement sought to commit the whole party to it.

And the statement seems to have been drafted with a view to the South. The governor would not approach the matter by repealing the Eighteenth Amendment, but would have another amendment which would give the dry States a Federal guarantee that their borders would be protected. Such a guarantee existed before the Eighteenth Amendment, of course, in the Webb-Kenyon law, but by putting such a guarantee in the Constitution in the new plan a favorable impression is sought to be made on the South.

Another feature of the Roosevelt plan is tendered as a bait to the drys as a whole, and that is the provision in the new amendment permitting the wet States to handle liquor only through the Government. This presumably is intended to guarantee to the drys that the saloon will not come back.

It is this feature that lends itself to the attack of the Republican wets and they are already setting about to make the best of it.

"Let such political machines as those in Chicago, New York and Philadelphia handle the liquor! Never!" they say, and with considerable justification.

• • • •

THE trend in the Democratic party is unmistakably wet and it has been quite apparent for some time, too, that Mr. Raskob and former Gov. Smith had very definite ideas about the party for 1932.

Mr. Raskob has given the party the only effective voice it has ever had and that voice has been devoted almost entirely to the farm and tariff desires of the South and the West. The East has even been neglected, as the Massachusetts Democrats will sorely tell you.

But when it comes to 1932 it is quite evident that Mr. Raskob and Mr. Smith want to have a say. It is not a bad guess at this time that Gov. Roosevelt will get the nomination of something. Whether it will be just the liberal wing of the party remains to be seen.

ILLINOIS DRYS PLAN CAMPAIGN AT TEAS

Ten Leading Organizations of Women Plan Fight by Referendum.

VOTES OF "NO" SOUGHT

Chicago, Sept. 12 (A. P.).—A "tea party campaign" to arouse an "overwhelming 'no' vote" on the prohibition referendum in Illinois November 4, was instituted today by ten leading women's organizations. Ruth Hanna McCormick, Republican senatorial candidate, has said she would abide by the referendum.

Representatives of these groups, which Monday announced themselves in favor of concentration on the referendum, rather than indorsement of the dry candidate for senator, Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill, today prepared to distribute more than 200,000 pamphlets and form the nucleus of a speakers' bureau for an active campaign.

Wants Social Drive.

"As well as sending out literature and arousing the voters to affix 'No' on each of the three referendum propositions, repeal of the eighteenth amendment, the Volstead act and the Illinois law, I think every one of us should carry this campaign to the tea parties and social events we attend," Mrs. Catherine Waugh McCullough, president of the Illinois Democratic Women's Prohibition Enforcement League, said.

"We should make as many speeches as we can in behalf of an unquestionable dry opinion in Illinois, but a lot can be done if we carry the battle into social circles. It is the situation of most importance to women."

Organizations represented at the meeting were the Women's Christian Temperance Union, the Women's City Club, the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, the Democratic Women's Prohibition Enforcement League, the Methodist Women's Home Missionary Society, the Chicago Women's Church Federation, the Cook County League of Women Voters, the Women's Church Federation of Oak Park, the Congregational Women's Home Missionary Society, and the Women's Baptist Organizations of Illinois.

TINY GOLF COURSES IN CLASS BY SELVES

District Heads Expected to Extend Closing Hours for Their Benefit.

RECEIPTS ARE CUT NOW

Miniature golf courses are in a class by themselves, the District Commissioners agreed yesterday.

After hearing representatives of the Association of Owners of Miniature Golf Courses of the District the Commissioners decided that the existing police regulations requiring places of public amusement to close at 11:30 o'clock at night on week days and at 11 o'clock on Sunday nights should be amended so far as the miniature golf courses were concerned.

The amended regulations would permit the courses to stay open until 1 o'clock in the morning, but after that amendment had been agreed to some one remembered that there might be objections to such a late closing hour on Sunday nights and the matter was held temporarily. Extension of the closing hour of the golf courses, however, is expected.

The question was raised recently when police, acting on complaints of residents, forced the golf courses to close at 11:30 o'clock. Theretofore the courses had remained open indefinitely.

The owners yesterday petitioned the Commissioners for a later closing hour, declaring that if they were compelled to close at 11:30 o'clock their receipts would be seriously reduced and their profit would practically disappear. One owner said that his receipts had amounted to $125 a day when he had remained open until 3 o'clock in the morning, but that 11:30 o'clock closing had cut his receipts in half.

SANTO DOMINGO ILL PACKING HOSPITALS

Majority of Most Seriously Injured Likely to Be Public Charges.

MILK NEEDED BY BABIES

Santo Domingo, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—The survivors of last week's disastrous hurricane, which destroyed virtually all housing in the city, are gradually recoving from a state of dazed grief and are trying to get under cover—any kind of cover—as soon as possible.

The problem of mass shelter so far has been untouched by organized efforts, but temporary shelters made from wreckage of the storm ars springing up all over the city. The weather so far has been kind to those without a roof.

Cases Grow Serious.

Physicians are still unable to determine how many injured and sick remain from the storm. At every hospital injured are being atended daily and most of them had no attention for a week, with serious infections resulting in many cases.

One surgeon estimated that as many as 80 per cent of those seriously injured will, because of delayed attention, become permanent public charges, while many cases which at first were in the minor class, now have become serious.

Medical men assert that the hospitals will be congested for months while thousands still are packing churches and other public buildings spared by the hurricane.

Babies are suffering for the lack of milk and it is predicted that this will result in many deaths. Miss Katherine Fribley, of Chicago, welfare nurse at the International Hospital for nine years, operates the only baby clinic in the city and in fouh days has distributed more than 2,000 quarts of milk

Destroyer Is Due.

This, she says, is wholly inadequate. She estimates that hundreds of babies are ill, with more certain to be because of omproper diet and exposure.

The United States destroyer Gilmer is expected tomorrow from Port-au-Price with additional Red Cross medical supplies. Maj. Thomas E. Watson, of the United States Marine Corps, is expected to arrive at the sime time to become naval attache at the American Legation. He formerly was stationed here and President Rafael L. Trujillo requested he be returned to assist in an administrative capacity.

Washingtonians Give For Hurricane Relief

In addition to the $1,000 appropriated by the District of Columbia Chapter of the Red Cross for the relief of the Santo Domingo hurricane sufferers, Washingtonians also have contributed liberally. All the amount collected has been turned over to the National Red Cross to purchase supplies.

Those contributing locally and the amounts are: George D. Mitchell, 25; Henry P. Seideman, $50; D. J. Kaufman, $25; Mrs. D. J. Kaufman, $25; Adelaide Waters, $1; H. W. Suerd, $1; Miss O. McCarty, $3; anonymous, $5; E. Medora Jones, $10; J. D. Yelverton, $5; Irene M. Rodier, $2; Addie H. Snow, $5; Laura B. Farwell, $5; Ruby Taylor, $2; Pan-American Union staff, $285, and Mrs. F. H. Perry, $10.

Packers Reply to Rail Petition on New Rates

(Associated Press.)

Swift & Co., and Armour & Co., packing concerns, replied yesterday to the petition of railroads for modification of Eastern class rates recently ordered by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The carriers contended the result of the decision would be to decrease their revenues, but the packers said the decision would increase revenues to the railroads. The reply said the petition of the carriers gave a false picture and contained "apparent misstatements."

By the commission's decision rates were raised generally above the fourth class, but lowered on the fifth and sixth class, which includes most of the products manufactured by the packers.

COMPANIONS HELD IN FRIEND'S DEATH

fractured skull, severe cuts and an injury to his side.

Kent County authorities immediately took in custody and late this afternoon questioned David Clark, 24 years old, the Foreign Service School alumnus, son of Dr. William L. Clark, prominent cancer specialist, of Philadelphia; William Hayden, 23 years old, graduate of St. Joseph's College, in Philadelphia, and John Cooney, 23 years old.

Mallon Hurt on Estate.

Mallon, hurt while spending a week with the trio on Dr. Clark's estate 15 miles from Chestertown, was rushed by the three to the nearby town, where Dr. C. P. Copeland gave first aid and had the injured man taken to Emergency Hospital in Easton. Death occurred before he reached this place.

Grilled by Coroner Harry L. Dodd and Sheriff J. Thomas Hadaway, both Clark and Hayden maintained that they found their companion lying in a pool of blood at the foot of a windmill on the estate at Kentmere Park, expressing the belief that he had fallen from the top of the structure.

They said Mallon, while talking with them at 2 o'clock in the morning, walked off toward another bungalow, and that they did not discover the accident until they went in search for him. Both asserted that Mallon on several occasions had climbed the windmill.

Cooney said he remained at the bungalow and learned of Mallon's injury when Clark and Hayden ran back to the dwelling with the information.

Different Stories Alleged.

Dr. Copeland was quoted as declaring that one of the pair told him that he found the dying man in a lane on the estate, and that the other had explained that Mallon had fallen from a windmill or water tank. The physician also was quoted as expressing the opinion that Mallon's injuries could not have been caused by a fall of that nature.

Kent County officers announced that they had been informed that Clark and Hayden both requested Dr. W. D. Noble, of the Easton Hospital, "to keep the matter quiet."

Clark recently returned from France, where last June he received a degree from the University of Paris. Mallon was preparing to enter the United States Foreign Service.

An inquest was scheduled.

GRAND JURY TO HELP IN HUNT FOR CRATER

Inquiry Is Decided Upon as Mistake of Identity in Case Is Revealed.

POLICE HERE IN SEARCH

New York, Sept. 12 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—A grand jury investigation of the disappearance of Supreme Court Justice Joseph Force Crater will be instituted Monday, District Attorney Crain announced today.

The grand jury investigation was announced as the latest clew to the disappearance of Crater was dissipated. The latest blow to the hopes of those who had thought the police were finally on the trail of the missing justice came tonight when W. J. Perrin, vice president of W. C. Dambach, Inc., a wholesale drug company of Buffalo, made known that it was he and not Crater who had spent the night of September 10 at Tupper Lake.

J. J. Henderson, an official of the Hotel Statler, of Buffalo, was with him when he registered at the Altamont last Wednesday, Mr. Perrin asserted.

Identified by Five.

Five persons, including three employes of the Altamont, had identified Mr. Perrin as the missing justice, and Police Commissioner Muirooney himself had expressed the belief that detectives might be following a real clew at last. Perrin and Henderson had gone to Tupper Lake from Racquette Lake, Perrin being the one in golfing clothes who had been taken for Crater at Racquette Lake the first of the month.

With Max D. Steuer, the attorney, offering to raise the $5,000 reward in case the proposed city contribution is, as Mr. Steuer feels, illegal, District Attorney Crain announced he would institute a grand jury investigation into the disappearance.

The coming inquiry, Mr. Crain said, would have to be secret, but he said his office would do everything possible to find the missing official and aid in "discovering whether his disappearance or continued absence is due to a criminal act" on the part of any one.

$75,000 in Box.

The search in the Adirondacks was continued today as police theories were reconstructed by the news that examination of Justice Crater's safe deposit box by friends had revealed $75,000 in negotiable securities.

The examination was conducted primarily to learn what clews, if any, might be contained in the box. No clews or papers which would throw any light on the mystery were uncovered. But the securities, of a negotiable nature, were found, it is understood.

Police did not participate in the search of the strong box, which was performed in the presence of a bank representative and of a legal representative of Justice Crater. The securities were not touched.

Assistant Chief Inspector Sullivan said tonight he understood the securities were in a vault of the Empire Trust Co. The police, it was indicated, will request permission of the family for a second search.

Description Broadcast Here.

Washington police have joined in the national hunt for Justice Joseph Force Crater to the extent of broadcasting a complete description of the jurist who has been missing from the New York Supreme Court bench since August 6, Inspector William S. Shelby announced yesterday. Nothing else has been done, however, to cooperate with New York authorities, he explained.

The description of Justice Crater follows: "White, 41 years old, 6 feet, 185 pounds, brown eyes, mixed gray hair, medium dark tanned complexion, false teeth, right index finger crushed, yellow gold Masonic ring, wore brown sack suit, and either a Panama or soft brown hat at rakish angle, tortoise shell glasses when reading."

Inspector Shelby denied reports that a New York detective had been in Washington in efforts to locate an Atlantic City night club hostess wanted for questioning in connection with the case.

that, but it is known that the guards at the palace were trebled yesterday.

LITTLE CHANGE SEEN ON UNEMPLOYMENT

Labor Department, However, Believes Situation Will Improve Soon.

BUILDING TRADE LAGS

(Associated Press.)

Summarizing employment conditions for August, the Labor Department said yesterday there was little change as compared with July, but added a brighter outlook developed near the close of the month with regard to the next 30 to 60 days.

"There was a slight upward trend," the statement said, "in the shoe industry, particularly in the New England States, and in some localities the shoe factories worked on overtime schedules. While operations in the textile industry as a whole remained unsatisfactory, some improvement in this industry was noted in a few localities. Operations continued on a curtailed basis in the automobile and iron and steel industries, but there was an upward tendency apparent toward the close of the month in certain branches of the iron and steel industry.

"The forces engaged in the shipbuilding and repair yards, particularly those located along the Atlantic seaboard, were increased with every indication that the high level of employment maintained in these yards during the past 30 days will be continued. While operations in the bituminous coal fields continued below normal, there wa sa marked improvement in production and employment in the anthracite mines.

"Out-door work provided employment for thousands of skilled and unskilled laborers in practically every State of the Union. Building remained below the average usually apparent at this period of the year. The large volume of highway construction that has been under way for the past few months showed a further expansion in August and many additional workers weer absorbed.

"In spite of adverse weather conditions in certain sections of the country, a large army of men were employed in the agricultural areas. The installation of pipelines for the distributio nof natural gas continued on a large scale, giving employment to many men, particularly in the middle western and eastern States. Government, State and municipal improvements, including considerable telephone, construction and utility extension work, provided employment for a great many skilled, semiskilled and unskilled laborers."

1,339 Drivers' Permits Revoked During Year

The Traffic Department revoked 1,339 driving permits during the fiscal year ended June 30, according to an announcement made yesterday. Driving while drunk and speeding were the reasons for most of the revocations.

This number represented an increase of more than 200 over 1928, due partly to the fact that last year was the time for the expiration of the three-year permits issued in 1926. In some cases permits had been withheld from young drivers who had falsified their ages when they secured their temporary licenses.

The fliers were not injured, but the plane was destroyed by fire, the messages said.

but one buck. We fired a shot at him as he drove off, but I don't think he was hit." In the Maryland holdup, he said, they got about $4. Police were inclined to scout the robbery tale, as no recent holdups had been reported in the sections named.

A .22-caliber revolver was found in the home of one of the quartet. The leader explained that they had planned to rob a local gun dealer before "pulling any big jobs."

Among automobiles which police say were taken by the gang, and later abandoned, were machines owned by E. C. Graham, 2921 Forty-fourth place northwest; Bernard Saul, 3700 Massachusetts avenue northwest, and Frank M. Johnson, 3010 iWsconsin avenue northwest.

Six other charges of unauthorized use of automobiles, the technical phraseology for "joy-riding," were lodged against the boys.

Cramton Beaten In Official Count

Narrow Margin of 102 Votes Gives Michigan Seat in House to Wet.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Official canvass of the vote in the Seventh Congressional District in Tuesday's primary today gave the Republican nomination for representative to Jesse P. Wolcott, young attorney, with a majority of 102 votes over Representative Louis C. Cramton, veteran dry leader of the House.

Cramton would not discuss the possibility of a recount. He said, after the official totals had been made, that his future course lies with his friends and that he will not make any move until he has conferred with them. Under the State law he has until September 19 to ask for a recheck of the ballots. The final totals were: Wolcott, 25,753; Cramton, 25,651.

Wolcott, who is only 37 years old, advocated a Nation-wide referendum on prohibition in his campaign. He declared that he favors law enforcement but is not in sympathy with the prohibition laws. He is prosecuting attorney of St. Clair County and is a World War veteran.

Court Clerk Kills Woman and Self

Nominee to Legislature in Oklahoma Tells Officers of Suicide Pact.

Muskogee, Okla., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Dave Chandler, court clerk of Delaware County and Democratic nominee to the State Legislature, shot and killed Mrs. Dicie Stafford, former actress and wife of a Tahlequah musician, and perhaps fatally wounded himself late last night. He told officers it was a "suicide pact."

The shooting occurred in Chandler's motor car in a wooded spot north of Tahlequah. Mrs. Stafford, shot three times through the breast, was dead when persons living nearby reached the scene. Shot once near the heart, Chandler was taken to a hospital, where it was believed he would die. He told officers, "We wanted to die together."

The woman's husband, Jack Stafford, is a trombone player with a traveling orchestra. He was believed to be somewhere in Louisiana.

TARIFF TRUCES FAIL, LEAGUE CHIEFS FIND

Europe Borders on Economic Anarchy and Remedy Is Needed, They Say.

MOURN MANY DEFEATS

Geneva, Switzerland, Sept. 12 (A.P.). The League of Nations assembly reviewed its past year's work today and found the movement for cooperation in the economic field, launched twelve months ago, has many defeats to mourn and no great victories to celebrate.

Spokesmen for various countries, following each other before the international gathering of statesmen, are agreed that Europe now is in a state bordering on economic anarchy, and some joint remedial effort is a vital need for world peace and prosperity.

The assembly was told by its own leaders that attempts at a tariff truce had failed; that customs barriers, instead of crumbling, actually had grown more formidable in several states, and that continuation of the growth of its protectionist spirit was threatening to drive the few remaining free-trading nations into adopting that very high tariff policy which all loudly deplored.

Disagree on Form.

Beelaerts van Bloekland, of Holland; Peter Munch, foreign minister of Denmark; Premier Hertzog of South Africa; Foreign Minister Schober of Austria, and Paul Hyams, Belgium's minister of foreign affairs, raised their voices in a composite demand that "shortsighted nationalist policies" in the economic field be abandoned for some form of concerted international action.

While agreed as to the diagnosis, the speakers were not so much in accord as to what this "some form" should be. All insisted that concerted movement should take place within the bosom of the league. But a clear-cut program of operations was lacking.

Perhaps the plan of the Austrian leader was as well defined as any. Despairing of attaining cooperation even on the limited European basis, Premier Schober reverted again to the possibility of regional economic treaties by small groups of States holding common interests. This he called "the organic and synthetic methods" of economic collaboration.

Would Elude Politics.

"I consider that no political character should be ascribed to these efforts and that the formation of such groups should be determined solely by the imperative needs of European economy," said the venerable Austrian chancellor.

"A case in point is that of Central Europe, where it is desirable to conclude arrangements between countries exporting agricultural products eastward and their nearer or more distant neighbors who absorb their agricultural export surpluses and who in exchange grant them facilities for transportation of their industrial products.

"The cooperation of eastern agricultural exporting countries is an example of those new methods of commercial policy and economic agreement between states which must prepare the advent of Pan-Europe."

Await Graham Statement.

After hearing today these confessions of failure and demands for remedial action, the assembly awaited with interest the declaration tomorrow by the man who started this drive for concerted economic action—William Graham, president of the British Board of Trade. Mr. Graham, Mr. Henderson has promised, will have something to say of importance regarding the critical economic situation.

While speakers today recognized the existence of a grave economic crisis, especially in Europe, a number of them echoed Mr. Henderson's words of yesterday in urging closer application to the league's original and primary purpose, namely, a scheme of general disarmament. The value of the London Naval Conference was noted, but this was said to have realized only partially those fair hopes which had flourished a year ago.

Council Hears First American.

The assembly was exhorted to press forward the disarmament program through its preparatory commission and lay a sound base for the general conference next year.

The council today extended an invitation to Soviet Russia to take part in the contemplated conference on drugs and narcotics. Russia had not been among those originally invited, a fact which had aroused strong protests from the antinarcotic workers at Geneva. The conference will be held October 27.

The first American citizen ever to address the league council in person stepped before that body today, and before the delegates realized what was happening had said his few words and left the room. He was Charles B. Eddy, of New York, chairman of the league's Greek refugee committee.

He thanked the council and the Greek government for their support of his committee, whose work now is nearing completion. The incident caused considerable discussion.

Manufacturer Is Shot At Party in Hollywood

Hollywood, Calif., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Douglass Kendall, a manufacturer, was shot and slightly wounded early today at a party in his home. Police said a guest shot the manufacturer accidentally.

Officers said Kendall and his friends had improvised a target on the kitchen door and were firing at it with a small pistol. Kendall was taken to a hospital by Lloyd Hamilton, motion picture comedian, who told the police he arrived at the Kendall home just as the manufacturer was shot.

Two of Bandit Trio Still Elude Officers

Kentwood, La., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Two of the three bandits who robbed the Bank of Kentwood of $10,000 yesterday continued to elude a sheriff's posse today in a swamp near here after the third member of the gang had been shot dead from a tree while sniping at the officers.

About half the loot was recovered from clothing of the slain bandit, from their automobile and in the swamp where the fleeing robbers dropped it. The body was being held for identification.

Poisoned Student Put Under Hospital Guard

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Victor Rizzoli, of Newark, 20-year-old University of Alabama freshman, was recovering today from poisoning said to have been self-administered.

After he was taken to a hospital, Rizzoli was placed under observation when he threatened to jump from a second-story window. His condition was said by hospital attaches to be serious.

LETTERS BY DORAN MENTION CURTIS

which was Samuel Friebrun, who was among the Curtis boosters at the Kansas City convention. I issued a permit and later caught the company diverting its alcohol.

Although I had more than one opportunity to meet Senator Curtis during the 1928 campaign, I have only encountered him once in person. That incident gave me a firm impression of his insincerity about prohibition enforcement.

Early in 1927 Senator Curtis protested to Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Andrews about the dismissal of a prohibition agent named Buck, who had been working in Kansas and whose home was in Pittsburgh, Kans. The administrator at St. Louis had dismissed him because of irregularities in his expense account.

Asks His Reinstatement.

Gen. Andrews told Senator Curtis he would have O. D. Jackson look into the matter, but as Jackson was busy I was sent. I wired to Senator Curtis at Topeka that I would take up the matter at St. Louis on a certain day and asked that Buck be brought there. Buck did not appear, so I immediately telephoned to Senator Curtis at Topeka and then went there to see him. We spent the morning together and had lunch together.

He said he wanted Buck reinstated, but it was only after he had ascertained from my attitude that I was inclined to favor the reinstatement if possible that he consented to let Buck appear. He got Buck and a certain politician on the telephone at Pittsburg and told them to meet me in Kansas City the next morning, Sunday.

I went over the matter with Buck and his political friends. No evidence was presented to me that would clear Buck of the charge. The principal defense was that the thing was trivial. It developed that the reinstatement was desired for purely political reasons.

As the amount of money involved was very small and in view of the senator's insistence I decided to write a report that would permit Buck's reinstatement. This I did, although for the good of the service I am and was convinced that the reinstatement should not have been made.

Buck Gets Job Back.

In my report I did not clear Buck, but gave Gen. Andrews ground on which he could make the reinstatement if he desired. The reinstatement was made, and I believe Buck is in the service today.

But, to get back to the 1928 campaign.

In December, 1927, a man named Matthew Quay Glaser was announced at my office. He was a large, robust individual in a noisy suit of clothes. In his hand was an immense cane, and atop his head was a 10-gallon hat, which remained there as he pumped my hand effusively.

The good cheer vanished for a moment from Mr. Glaser's round face when he learned that I had never heard of him before, but then, in a voice that would have sounded loud in front of a Coney Island tent show, he enlightened me at length about his magnificent accomplishments.

Aids Curtis Campaign.

I listened patiently, though getting rather exhausted, and presently he informed me that he had been delegated by Senator Curtis as his campaign manager for New York.

Mr. Glaser was just paying his respects to me, he said, but after Curtis was elected President I could have anything I desired. I replied that I was a civil service employe and was not permitted to engage in any political activities, but I expressed my appreciation for his good offices.

Shortly thereafter Glaser called on me, bringing Joseph Steinberg, who had been assemblyman from the Fifteenth District in 1923-24 and whose ambitions to be State senator the following year had been sent glimmering by Courtland Nicoll. Glaser assured me that "Senator" Steinberg, as he called him, would be the next Attorney General at Washington.

Oh, I know, this was obvious tin-horn stuff, and not binding upon Curtis. But read a little further.

In any event, Mr. Glaser soon organized the Curtis-for-President Club, with headquarters at 233 West Fifty-second street. He was president and Steinberg was secretary.

WIN PERMITS THROUGH CURTIS

Sam Friebrun, Matthew Quay Glaser and Joseph Steinberg (left to right), who won permit for Spa Chemical Co. with Senator Curtis' aid. Glaser and Steinberg were Curtis' New York campaign managers. Friebrun was president of Spa Chemical Co.

Issuing Permits Big Job.

To the average individual, a prohibition administrator is a sort of policeman to arrest dry law violators. But up until last July 1, criminal investigations were only a small part of his job. A permit must pass through his hands for every gallon of medicinal whisky, industrial alcohol and sacramental wine that was legitimately issued. It was his job to watch where this was going and prevent it from being diverted into bootleg channels.

In industrial centers and congested communities the issuance of permits is in itself a big and most responsible job. This part of prohibition work remained in the Treasury Department in the recent transfer of prohibition administrators to the Department of Justice.

The interest of Glaser and Steinberg was merely an instance in the continual pressure which is being brought to bear for the issuance of permits.

It was not long before I began to find out why such an interest was being taken in me by these gentlemen. The first intimation came when Glaser called and asked for a permit for the Cornish Arms Pharmacy at 314 West Twenty-third street, in a hotel which I raided last year. This pharmacy whisky permit had been revoked.

Again Mentions Curtis.

I told Glaser I would consider the matter. As he was leaving, Glaser again asked me to meet Senator Curtis when he came to New York.

Then came the request of the Spa Chemical Co. for a permit to use denatured alcohol for manufacturing purposes, and I was informed by Glaser and Steinberg that Senator Curtis was anxious for the permit to be issued.

They continually pressed me about the matter, but I disapproved the permit on the ground that the chemist employed by the company was not satisfactory.

Subsequently a suit in equity was brought in the Federal court against me in which Steinberg was the attorney. The matter came up before Judge Bondy in his chambers on April 24, 1928. Steinberg and Glaser were present with the applicant, and on his promise to replace the chemist objected to Judge Bondy referred the matter back to me for reconsideration.

The following day Glaser came to see me with Samuel Friebrun, president of the Spa Chemical Co. Glaser wanted to know if the papers had reached me from Judge Bondy, and I said not yet. Glaser said he had known Friebrun for fifteen years and that he had spoken to Senator Curtis about this permit and Senator Curtis had told him to do what he could for Friebrun.

Told to "Give Him Break."

The hearing in this case was held the week following, and both Steinberg and Glaser came in to see me and said they just wanted to pay their respects. They told me that Friebrun, the applicant, had been very helpful to them in their work for Senator Curtis, that he had spent a great deal of time and energy at the headquarters, and that in consideration for this I should "give him a break."

Again they spoke of Senator Curtis' interest and said that they did not see why the permit should not be issued.

And a week later, under date of May 2, 1928, I received the following letter from Washington:

"Prohibition Administrator,

"New York, N. Y.:

"You are advised that Senator Curtis has again called my attention to the application of the Spa Chemical Co. of New York for a permit to use specially denatured alcohol. He states that it is his understanding the court has ordered this case sent back to you with favorable recommendations. Will you kindly advise me the present status of this case?

"J. M. DORAN,
"Commissioner."

Gets 700 Gallons Monthly.

Soon after this I issued a permit for the Spa Chemical Co. to withdraw 700 gallons of denatured alcohol a month. Although I was suspicious of the company, the chemist I had objected to had been withdrawn and I could find no fault with the company's personnel.

Now that it had obtained its permit, the Spa Chemical Co. wanted to expand its business. It applied for an increased allowance of alcohol. This matter dragged on all through the campaign, but I saw no reason to grant the increase.

Under date of November 30, 1928, weeks after the election of Vice President Curtis, I received the following letter from the Prohibition Bureau in Washington:

"Prohibition Administrator,

"New York, N. Y.

"You are advised that Senator Curtis has called this bureau's attention to the fact that the Spa Chemical Co., 1970 Park avenue, New York City, has been unable to secure action upon their application to increase withdrawals of specially denatured alcohol, although two inspections have been made. Kindly advise me as soon as possible the status of this case.

J. M. DORAN,
"Commissioner."

Sold to Other Companies.

I replied to Dr. Doran that this request had been disapproved because the present allowance was adequate for legitimate business needs and that "this disapproval was predicated upon the fact that this company at present purports to sell practically its entire output to the Beacon Drug Sundries Co., 291 Adams street, Brooklyn, and the Montgomery Chemical Co., 34 Montgomery street, Jersey City. The application for increase was predicated upon alleged additional orders from these two concerns."

I always watched the Spa Chemical Co. carefully and about a month after this letter was written, on January 2, 1929, my agents caught a truckload of alcohol being diverted from this permittee's premises. I revoked the permit.

Says Curtis Was Grateful.

Meanwhile Glaser came to see me on May 21 and told me how gratified Senator Curtis was when he heard that I had issued the permit to the Spa people. He said that in consequence Senator Curtis was my friend for life and had instructed his secretary, Miss Williams, that whenever I should telephone, even if it was at 2 o'clock in the morning, he wanted to see me, and if it was in the daytime, he wanted me to lunch with him.

Glaser said that Senator Curtis had told him to go and thank Dr. Doran for the Spa permit, but that he had told the senator the man he ought to thank was Maj. Campbell. Glaser added that he had tried to get Senator Curtis to write me a letter expressing his appreciation, but that the senator felt such a letter would not be necessary.

About this time I cited a druggist named Morris Manheimer for revocation of his permit, and Glaser asked me to dismiss the proceedings. This, of course, I declined to do, though Glaser assured me Manheimer was a boyhood friend of B. S. Moss, the theatrical man, and that he was a druggist of the utmost integrity. At the hearing, however, Manheimer confessed he had illegally sold liquor issued to him for medicinal purposes, which embarrassed Glaser but did not daunt him.

He came to see me, told me he had explained the whole case to Senator Curtis, and added that anyway he only wrote to recommend Manheimer because a certain valuable man to the Republican party, who makes large campaign contributions, requested him to do it.

In the meantime, Steinberg acquired other clients who wanted their permit matters adjusted in my office.

After the issuance of the Spa permit I was informed by my investigators that it was currently reported in political and permit circles that anything Steinberg and Glaser were behind would be O. K. in my office.

(Copyright, 1930.)

Tomorrow Maj. Campbell will tell of further difficulties with Washington over his refusal to issue permits for Senator Curtis' friends.

ST. MIHIEL VICTORY TRACED BY PERSHING

Battle Took Place 12 Years Ago on Eve of General's Fifty-eighth Birthday.

BOOK ABOUT WAR READY

and painted reminders of another, more stately, day. He looked eastward from the deepest window over the green beauty of the White House grounds, over the White House itself topped by the gently swaying folds of the flag to which John Pershing has given, with soldierly devotion, all the years of his manhood.

Today's sun will peer over that far horizon to see Pershing at his desk as the seventieth year of his life opens. Friends and high officialdom will come trooping to do honor then on his birthday to America's great leader in the World War.

But it was not of today that he thought as he sat so quietly looking eastward toward France yesterday. It was not of his own life story he dreamed, colored with glory and with tragedy; but of that day twelve years ago, and of comrades who fell and still sleep "over there."

That St. Mihiel victory was a milestone in American history. It fell upon the eve of Pershing's fifty-eighth birthday. It was a double victory for him. Not alone did his legions sweep away in hours an enemy salient that had stood for years against French armies, but the battle realized the thing for which he had fought from the hour he set foot on French soil.

It was an American army, American officered and under Pershing's personal command, that fought at St. Mihiel. And but for Pershing's dogged, unrelenting persistence in allied councils that army might have been disatipated in allied ranks as manpower replacements to fight under foreign flags.

It is all very fresh in the general's memory now. At 70 his face is deep carved with lines set there in France, but his shoulders are erect and soldierly as they were as a dashing cavalry lieutenant. And he has just finished another task, self set this time.

For Pershing has completed his memoirs, his own story of the A. E. F. from his appointment as commander to the armistice. It takes two volumes to tell it now, free of restraints that curb official reports. And every line of it, whether written during his several trips to France to look up data or here at home, is his own. It was all dictated to his military stenographers, then worked over in pencil to suit him. And it deals bluntly with many things, including American unpreparedness for the struggle and responsibility for that unpreparedness.

"And it is a book I never intended to write," the general said, smilingly. "Yet I have found that so few folks know where our Army came from or what it actually did. Even veterans of the A. E. F. know so little. So I have set it down as a duty to them and to their sons."

"And have you found some pleasure in doing it?" the general was asked.

"Yes," he said. "And that is strange because I dreaded it at the start. Perhaps I may write again some day. Perhaps I may start with those boyhood days in old Missouri and write of what I have seen and known. Who knows?"

ARGENTINA AND PERU.

The question of extending recognition to the new revolutionary governments of South America is engaging the attention of the Department of State. Business interests are said to be pressing for immediate recognition of the Uriburu dictatorship in Argentina and the Cerro dictatorship in Peru.

Recognition of these military dictatorships might place the United States in a very embarrassing position. They are not stable organized governments. There is no assurance that they are supported by the peoples concerned. They may be overturned at any moment by counter-revolution or by other juntas.

The Provisional President of Argentina, Gen. Uriburu, properly describes himself as a "bird of passage," and asserts that he will hold power only until a government has been established. But he is extremely anxious to obtain recognition from the United States, without which it would be difficult for Argentina to borrow money. The Irigoyen regime, it is charged, piled up a huge burden of debt, and doubtless the temporary government is in need of funds. American business interests at Buenos Aires have cabled glowing accounts of the Uriburu dictatorship and have urged the United States Chamber of Commerce to use its influence in obtaining recognition by the United States Government.

Instead of liberating former President Irigoyen, it now appears that Dictator Uriburu is holding him on a war vessel in Argentine waters. This action indicates that the dictatorship is afraid of an uprising by Irigoyen's partisans. The former president has a strong following, and nothing but a display of force is keeping them in order. Whether the military and naval forces are united in support of the new regime, or whether they may turn about and upset Uriburu is a question that should be determined before the United States acts.

The treatment of former President Leguia by the new dictator of Peru is not such as to recommend the new government for early recognition by other governments. Mr. Leguia was in frail health before the revolution, and the shock of the revolutionary crisis has left him prostrate. His physicians report that he refuses food and drink and is in a state of mental and physical collapse. Yet he is kept in prison, with dire threats of vengeance hanging over him. He should be sent to Panama, where he can obtain the best of hospital treatment. The present Peruvian authorities should perceive that the death of Leguia while in prison would be attributed to cruel and inhuman treatment, and that, on the other hand, the government would gain credit if it should extend personal consideration to the broken man.

Before recognizing the temporary dictatorships that have sprung up in South America, the United States can well afford to wait and make sure that fairly stable governments have been established.

MUSICIANS AND THEATERS.

Now is the time for local theater owners and the musicians to compose their difficulties and not after a strike has been permitted to materialize. The dispute involves the question: Who is to decide upon the size of the orchestra in the theater. Musicians have been working under a blanket contract calling for orchestras of a specified size in each of the theaters and the owners now insist that the size of these orchestras be materially reduced. The advent of the sound reproducing apparatus, they say, has made it no longer economically possible to retain large orchestras. The musicians' union, however, will not listen to proposals for reducing the size of orchestras. A strike has been called for September 19, and at present it appears that both the stage hands and the projectionists will go out in sympathy with the musicians.

The strike, if it should materialize, will be against the best interests of the public, the theater owners and the labor unions involved. It will be an unnecessary strike, because it must result sooner or later in a compromise of the points in dispute. If both sides determine to make concessions and effect a compromise the strike can be avoided.

All over the country musicians and their employers are having contractual difficulties. Cincinnati and Cleveland recently experienced movie strikes; in Detroit and Philadelphia the musicians are now out on strike. The issues everywhere are similar to those in dispute in Washington. Mechanically reproduced music threatens to deprive some musicians of their jobs, and the musicians' unions are striving desperately to keep their men at work. It may be doubted, however, that strikes will save their jobs. Dr. Walter Damrosch is as good a friend as music and musicians ever had. Upon his return recently from Europe he deplored the fight against so-called canned music, saying: "I am deeply concerned with the plight of those who are being deprived of a livelihood by the introduction of sound-reproducing machines into theaters and motion picture houses. But nothing can stop the progress of these inventions, and I am convinced that they will help in the musical development of the American people." The present depression among musicians is, in his opinion, a temporary condition. He predicted that the growing interest in fine music among the American people would be stimulated by the widespread introduction of reproducing apparatus and would result in the establishment of symphony orchestras in many additional American cities. These orchestras will provide the best kind of jobs for the country's musicians.

SANTO DOMINGO'S LOAN.

On the advice of a relief committee the Dominican Republic has decided to seek a loan of $3,000,000 to repair some of the damage done by the last week's hurricane and relieve the suffering of its people. According to the plan, $1,000,000 would be used for restoration of government buildings and public works, and the remainder would be made available in small amounts at low interest to the afflicted inhabitants. Arrangements for such a loan are an urgent necessity.

Since 1905 the United States has administered the customs of the Dominican Republic under an international agreement. At that time the tiny country was under a crushing burden of debt, but that debt has been substantially reduced. Financial guidance by the United States has enabled the Dominicans to make public improvements and meet their international obligations as well. The country is today entirely solvent, and in a position to repay the loan sought to relieve its suffering.

It will be necessary for President Hoover to approve the plan to float an emergency loan in the United States because the republic is bound by treaty not to increase its external indebtedness without the consent of the United States. The President is not likely to hesitate in approving this plan, since the Dominican public debt amounts to only $20,000,000. This is not excessive in view of the country's resources. The government has demonstrated its ability to meet its obligations.

The nature of the emergency also carries great weight. Santo Domingo is staggering under its appalling load of death, sickness and destruction. The Red Cross is feeding 18,000 in one section of the city, and 30,000 are without shelter. When the immediate emergencies have passed these people face the discouraging task of rebuilding their city, reconditioning public works and reviving stricken industries. Americans will gladly furnish the requested loan, and render whatever other aid may be necessary to help this prostrate country regain its feet.

SELECTIVE IMMIGRATION.

Drastic restriction of immigration from all parts of the world will result from a new policy adopted by the State Department on the request of President Hoover. The department has no authority to alter immigration quotas, but it has control over the issuance of visas, and consuls have been instructed to withhold visas from all aliens likely to become public charges after their arrival in the United States. This administrative measure is a substitute for legislation that Congress failed to enact at the close of last session.

The State Department has already given an illustration of the effectiveness of the existing immigration regulations. Mexican immigration was reduced nearly 90 per cent by the exclusion of aliens held likely to become public charges, and illiterates and other undesirables. Unemployment is such at present that most aliens who come here with the expectation of finding work are likely to become public charges, and foreigners who plead that they have jobs awaiting them in America are automatically excluded under the contract labor law. There is every reason to believe that the instructions issued to consuls will put an effective check on the influx of foreign laborers.

Protection of labor through control of immigration is as essential as protection of industry by the tariff. Virtually all the great nations have taken similar steps to guard against further unemployment during the business recession. The immigration act in itself is not sufficient to safeguard American workmen under abnormal economic conditions. The administration deserves special credit for working out a temporary restriction that will serve until Congress can deal with the subject.

The courts have held that an immigrant possessing a consular visa and enough cash for his immediate necessities may not be barred because of peculiar conditions of unemployment at his destination. But since consuls may refuse to issue visas without fear of being overruled by the courts, the administration can easily handle the situation. This is not, however, a satisfactory means of overcoming the deficiencies of the immigration act over a long period of time. President Hoover intends that this policy should operate only as an emergency measure.

When Congress reassembles it ought to take up the question of selective immigration. Under this plan, which has the indorsement of the country's foremost authorities on immigration, aliens would be admitted only as fast as they could be absorbed into the economic life of the country. If mechanics were needed and laborers were not, mechanics would be given preference in the quota of each country. The system should be flexible enough that all immigration could be stopped when the country has a surplus of workmen in all trades.

When such a system is adopted it can be invoked immediately after a period of unemployment sets in. The current depression period has extended over almost a year with no curtailment of immigration, except from Mexico. In the meantime some 210,000 aliens have been admitted, about 80 per cent of whom entered into competition with unemployed American workmen. Foreigners have an unfair advantage in such competition because of their lower standards of living, which make them willing to work for less. Men who supply the country's productive energy ought not be imposed upon in this way when jobs are fewer than workmen.

While the new policy is an emergency measure it may be expected to contribute to the solution of this problem on a permanent basis.

ANDREE'S DIARIES.

The diaries of Salomon August Andree unquestionably will prove to be historical human documents of the first importance. Their finding interested the entire world; everywhere publication of their contents is eagerly awaited. Meanwhile, however, there has developed intense rivalry as to what organization or newspaper shall have first rights to their publication. Huge sums have been offered for the documents.

The propriety of selling documents of this nature may be questioned. They belong to the world, and they should be released free of charge for simultaneous publication by the press of the world. If the heirs of Andree are to be paid for the diaries, the remuneration should come from the Swedish government which, no doubt, plans to preserve the originals for posterity.

Science develops an electric light that can be extinguished by a mere puff of breath, but it had to wait till the prohibition era to do it.

WARNING FROM A FILIPINO

From the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

It is refreshing to find a native Filipino of light and leading discussing with courage, candor and sound judgment the question of the immediate independence of the Philippines. Mr. Vicente Villamin, an economist and publicist of distinction, told the Kiwanis Club at a luncheon why he opposes immediate independence. He discussed the question from the standpoint of the Filipinos, not of Americans, although he gave strong reasons why America should postpone the granting of independence until the Filipinos have had further opportunity to develop their resources and build up a strong economic foundation upon which to establish an independent government.

Mr. Villamin holds that immediate independence or independence within so short a period as five years, would be suicidal for the Filipino people, without any cause for suicide given by the United States. He credits the United States with a great work of construction and instruction in fitting the Filipinos for democracy. American experts have laid the foundation of effective sanitation and education, and instead of oppressing or exploiting the Filipinos America has given them all these advantages with full liberty, as full as that enjoyed by American citizens. We have given them the rights and privileges of American citizens without the obligations.

Although for ultimate independence, Mr. Villamin opposes immediate independence chiefly on economic grounds, though he adds a strong argument against it from the standpoint of the international situation in the Orient. He asserts that politics has ruled. In the clamor of the politicians the Filipinos have overlooked the economic side of the question, and are just beginning to realize that "the maintenance of industrial payrolls for the masses is much more important than the maintenance of government payrolls for the politicians." In fact, one depends upon the other. He foresees that by depriving the Philippine industries of United States tariff protection and practical free trade with America, independence would sap the lifeblood of the country and plunge the people into poverty, misery and chaos. It would lower the standard of living to the level of the Chinese coolie or the Japanese peon and undo the constructive work that has been done in the Philippines. The archipelago is a foreign trade country, most of its production being an exportable surplus. As an agricultural country it is capable of producing many commodities which America now buys from other foreign sources, frequently monopolized products of possessions of other countries. The lack of capital and initiative and the addiction to politics instead of business has been largely responsible for this.

Mr. Villamin believes that by shifting production in the Philippines from the industries depending on the American tariff, developing commodities which will be more and more needed by the United States, but not grown there, the economic relations of the two countries would be put on a stable basis.

The arguments for immediate independence Mr. Villamin declares are based on six economic fallacies:

1. That Philippine products are detrimental to the interests of the American farmer. 2. That an established market for American industry should be sacrificed for the theoretical benefit to American agriculture. 3. That the Philippine sugar industry is capable of tremendous expansion. 4. That Philippine industries can be placed on a nonprotected basis in five years. 5. That markets for Philippine products can be found abroad so easily. 6. That political and social institutions can stand without an economic foundation.

Mr. Villamin forsees not only disaster for the Philippines but trouble for the United States if we should abandon them before the country has been put on a strong and prosperous, economic basis and the government is capable of maintaining itself.

When from the eighteenth hole I turn
And quit the course forever more,
St. Peter all my faults shall learn
As he reviews my final score.
I shall admit I raised my head
Or pressing, used to dip my knees,
But whether yellow, white or red
I never stopped to hunt for tees.

And as he runs my record through,
I hope he'll know I struggled hard
My best in every game to do.
But golf's not all upon the card.
When the last faulty score is read
And every eight and nine he sees,
Perhaps 'twill help if this be said:
I never stopped to hunt for tees.

Tell him who knows me over there
I was not much, as golfers go,
Say that my game was only fair.
Ninety I seldom got below.
Tell him that putts I used to miss
Which any dub could make with ease,
Then to my credit add just this:
I never stopped to hunt for tees!

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Flapper Daughter.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY DEAR LOUISE:

Yesterday I heard some well-intentioned soul urging you always to search for the true and the beautiful and never to see any evil.

The first part of her advice is sound enough, but I want to warn you that the habit of refusing to see evil where your common sense tells you evil exists will cost you money and self-respect and make you a stupid accessory to much of the world's meanness.

It is one thing to be generous enough to forgive evil and quite another to pretend that it doesn't exist. In one case you may be helping a penitent sinner to get another start; in the other you will merely encourage a sneak to keep up his evil practices.

It isn't kindness or tolerance that causes people to shut their eyes and pretend that evils do not exist. It is lack of character—the moral weakling's effort to avoid unpleasant realities.

If a girl of your acquaintance goes wrong and you and your buddies are morally certain that she has, you can't do any good by pretending to believe she is pure and undefiled still. That will merely convince her that it is easy to fool people and thus tempt her to quit all efforts to be decent.

Be merciful in your judgments. Help the fallen when you can. But remember always that the fear of public opinion does more than anything else to keep people straight; remember that you are a part of the public, and that by pretending to be fooled you take away from the weak their greatest safeguard.

I don't want you to be one of these holier-than-thou critics, forever sneering at the faults of others and denouncing them to call attention to your own goodness, but I do want you to be honest with yourself and the world and not encourage rottenness by refusing to admit its existence.

Many a poor kid has gone to the bad because his spineless parents refused to entertain suspicion when he developed the habit of finding things.

Love,

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THOSE SOUTH AMERICAN REVOLUTIONS.

What's happened to the old-fashioned Latin-American revolutions? They used to be dramatic, noisy, spectacular and thrilling. Artillery was employed. The palace was shelled. Administration officials were required by the rules of the game to spend at least a week trying to outjump cannon balls. Ambulance drivers dropped in their tracks. Special traffic signals were necessary for east and west bound firing squads.

• • • •

South America has had a series of them during the past week or two and they have been so quiet you could hear a letter of resignation drop. They were evidently conducted by an Anti-Noise Commission.

• • • •

About the deadliest weapon being used in 1930 Latin-American revolutions is the telephone. The nearest thing to violence occurs when the revolutionists ring up a President to tell him he is through and get an answer that he is out.

• • • •

"Where is he?" demands the spokesman for the insurrectionists.

"At the moving pictures, I think," replies a palace attendant.

"What time will he be back?"

"I can't say, exactly. Is there any message?"

"You might tell him the Communications Department of the Revolutionary Committee called to notify him that his services will be no longer required."

"He was planning a trip anyhow," the secretary replies. "What time will you want the keys to the premises?"

"Some time after lunch tomorrow will do. Tell him we will send a committee to help him pack if he so desires. And tell him we hope he enjoyed the movie."

• • • •

No fiery ultimatums. No shells through the windows of the President's bathroom. No setting fire to the east wing. No clatter of cavalry on the cobbled streets. No rumbling of artillery. No good, old-fashioned free-for-all rifle and bird-gun practice from treetops, apartment windows and the roofs of business houses.

• • • •

Nobody even shuts off the radio to hear what's happening outside. Ammunition agents don't even get up from their poker games. The news movie photographers spend the entire revolution without getting a picture of an innocent bystander being carried to the rear on a stretcher. Even the consumption of flashlight powder is nil.

• • • •

A few students, emotional youngsters, chagrined by the decline of a revolution as a public spectacle, pick a fight with the campus cops and fire a few volleys from .22-caliber revolvers; a mess sergeant is accidentally hit by a carelessly tossed water bottle; a baby swallows its rattle, and an excitable diplomat rushes out of a legation without buttoning his vest. But outside of that, everything is regular.

• • • •

The President receives a military junta, turns over the keys to the palace, offers everybody a cigar, gives the new president a correct inventory of the vintages in the wine cellar and says everything in the palace is just as he found it, except that the B batteries are run down. The junta thanks the President and asks if it can do anything to make him happy. The President thinks a minute and says he wishes it could do something for his lumbago.

• • • •

The revolutionists offer to convey him to their best hospital and give him free treatment. And the revolution is over. There oughta be a law.

NEW AERIAL MANEUVER.

An aviator escaped from Sing Sing the other day. Executing a new aerial maneuver known as the jailspin.

Two boys have completed an automobile trip from New York to Los Angeles and back backward. This gave them a big advantage over the motocycle cops, one of whom seemed to know how to operate a bicycle while facing the wrong way.

Add similes: As sore as a polo pony's ankles after an international match.

Public links golfers held a driving tournament the other day. Many of them drove a ball more than 250 yards. Or directly through six or eight foursomes, presumably.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

British Marines at Work in Santo Domingo and American Marines Fail to Appear—Why?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I can't see how it can help but be a matter for world comment to read in this morning's Post of the wonderful, and first efficient help, rendered by the crew and officers of the British cruiser Danae to the stricken people of Santo Domingo, and further along in the same article to read "The coming (to Santo Domingo) of American Marines to join in the clearing up work, as requested by the President, tonight (September 10) seems uncertain."

Why?

What is the reason for the indifference, certainly apathy, toward the terrible suffering of the people of Santo Domingo? What has that small country ever done to us to deserve to be "turned down" at such a time as this?

There has been no large concerted effort in any quarter to render the much-needed aid—at least none so reported in the newspapers. The British "white wings"—as the paper called them—"before night had made a decided change in the appearance of the streets of this hurricane-stricken city." And yet the destruction is a week old and nothing done till this big-hearted British cruiser pitched in to help the Dominicans in their distress.

What about our vaunted "generosity" and "efficiency" in time of need? ISABEL S. SHEPARD.

Falls Church Resident Takes Issue With "Suburbanite" as to Arlington County Conditions.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am not a booster for Arlington County and I kick plenty about some conditions there, such as the dirty condition of some of the stores and vacant property through which the street cars pass, and the dumping along the right of way which is permitted throughout the county, but I dislike to see an injustice done and a wrong impression given, such as "Suburbanite" gives. People living in Arlington County do not wait 30 minutes for a car. There is a 20-minute schedule during the day from about 6 a. m. to 6 p. m. The car service from Washington through Arlington County is about the best out of the city, so far as I can learn. You can go to a station and be absolutely certain that at exactly the minute the car is due it will be there, and that it will leave Twelfth Street Station and arrive at precisely the time it is scheduled. The cars are always well heated in winter and well lighted, and the motormen and conductors are most obliging and courteous.

And since when and where has this "Back to Washington" attained such momentum?

Two Cafeterias Where Cheerfulness and Good Food Make an Example for Other Restaurateurs.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There is a certain cafeteria—in fact, two of them—in the downtown section of Washington operated by the same people. And they are run by folks that know how. The places are kept scrupulously clean, the food is good and not too expensive. But these are not the only attractions. The places are peryaded by an atmosphere of cheeriness, if that's the word I want—an unobtrusive desire on the part of everybody around to make one's lunch or dinner hour a real pleasure, apart from the matter of food and its price.

This atmosphere does appear to be an artificial something, like the cold air we get from the patent cooling systems of the picture houses. It flows spontaneously, just as if each individual concerned in the affair takes a genuine delight in "being nice." It is still true that "the perfection of art is to conceal art."

In such surroundings one can get as much joy out of a meal as is possible outside one's own home. It is a wonder more restaurateurs do not look up the secret. M. H. B.

Postal Collections and Deliveries Said to Be Delayed by Substituting Foot Carriers for Motor Trucks.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Is the Postal Service slipping? The question arises from a study of the mail collection service that is in force in the residential sections of Washington. The reliable and speedy automobile collection truck has given way to slow-moving collections by men on foot. Mail collected from boxes is first taken to branch postal stations instead of direct to the City Postoffice. The first collection of the day is supposed to take place at 10 a. m., the second collection at 3 p. m.; then the one and only collection of the day by truck is made around 9 p. m. It is 10 o'clock and after before mail on this last collection arrives at the City Postoffice. It is after midnight before letters from this collection for Philadelphia and New York leave the city.

This curtailment of collection in the residential sections, the substitution of men for auto-collection trucks, the delay in mail leaving the city, may be due to a desire to "out-Burley Burleson," a Postmaster General noted in the Postal Service for his many queer schemes.

We are paying for speedy collection and delivery of mail. Let us be given our money's worth.

Ready to File Complaint Against Motorists Who Break Traffic Rules.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: May I indorse the suggestion of Mr. Stephen Hawels in your columns today. I pledge my support by agreeing to take the number of such careless motorists and reporting it to whomever it should be sent and to appear at any hearing and testify under oath if and when it is necessary to do so concerning occupying street crossings, driving around other motorists to pass them, failure to keep proper distance at car stops, starting across street crossings while pedestrians are in act of crossing before green lights are on, &c. What other readers will do so?

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Mexico City Hosts Fete Mr. Morrow

Round of Activities for Envoy on Eve of Departure.

By JEAN ELIOT.

ON the eve of leaving Mexico City for the United States, American Ambassador to Mexico and Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow are involved in a round of farewell festivities. The President of Mexico and Senora de Ortiz Rubio entertained at dinner in their honor at Chapultepec Castle on Thursday evening, with Mr. Arthur Bliss Lane, counselor of the embassy, who will be charge d'affaires after Mr. Morrow's departure, also in the company of guests.

Ambassador and Mrs. Morrow had a reception at the embassy yesterday afternoon to say goodby to members of the American colony. Another final hospitality was the luncheon given yesterday for the Ambassador by the American Chamber of Commerce of Mexico City.

On leaving for the United States next week, the Morrows will travel by way of the City of Guadalajara, as the ambassador is desirous of visiting one of the most beautiful places in Mexico. En route he will cross three Mexican States, which he has not yet seen, bringing up to 24 the total number he has visited. Ambassador Morrow proposes to reach Washington the first week in October after a week's rest at some point on the homeward journey not yet decided upon.

Mr. Morrow will not leave Mexico City until after the celebration of Mexico's Independence Day, September 16, in which he is to take a leading part.

Mexico's Independence Day will also be celebrated in Washington, the Mexican Ambassador, Senor Don Manuel Telles, now dean of the Diplomatic Corps, giving a luncheon at the embassy for members of his staff and for the Mexican delegates to the inter-American conference on agriculture, forestry and animal industry.

Gen. Pershing To Pass Quiet Birthday Here

Wartime Chieftain Will Be 70 Years Old Today.

Gen. John J. Pershing, 70 years young today, shares a birthday with several distinguished Washingtonians. Among them is Senator Henry F. Ashurst, of Arizona. This is also the birthday of Mr. Glenn Brown, well-known Washington architect; of Col. Clarence Crittenden Calhoun, and of Mr. David Edward Finley, one of Secretary Mellon's "bright young men" in the Treasury Department.

So far inquiry has unearthed no entertaining for Gen. Pershing to mark his anniversary, but is the custom for officials of the War Department and the Army big-wigs to call upon the wartime chieftain on his birthday and without doubt the general will hold an impromptu reception in his office today.

Gen. Pershing returned to Washington recently after spending most of the summer abroad and is at present staying at the Metropolitan Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Himes are at Prospect Hall, their country home near Frederick, Md., where they arrived on Thursday. They spent the summer at their cottage at the Thousand Islands.

Envoy's Girls Gain Fame by Feats Abroad

Misses Grew Distinguish Themselves at Istanbul.

Turkey seems to be having a highly stimulating effect on the Grew girls, daughters of the American Ambassador to Turkey and Mrs. Joseph Grew. The youngest, Miss Elsie Grew, who is but sixteen, has written a most engaging little volume dealing with her travels with her father and mother in the little known regions of the Turkish interior. And now Miss Anita Grew, an older daughter, comes into the news as a candidate for international swimming honors.

Although she failed in her initial attempt to swim the Bosporus one day this week, she covered 15 miles in 5 hours and 23 minutes, which is believed to be the long distance record for any swimmer, man or woman, off Istanbul, and she proposes to have a second try at her goal in the near future.

Members of the American colony in the Turkish capital were greatly thrilled at the feat, which was regarded as the more remarkable because Miss Grew had not trained for the undertaking and her longest previous swim had not been over 6 or 7 miles. Greased from head to foot in true channel swimming fashion, and fed with hot chocolate and soup from a motorboat convoy, she was still going strong when she ran into a strong sea, which made it advisable for her to leave the water. She used a breast stroke which she had herself perfected.

Even as a youngster here, Miss Grew was famous for her skill in the water. Her older sister, Miss Lilla Grew, now married to Mr. Jay Pierrepont Moffat, was one of the Grew girls best known in Washington, as she made her debut here while her father was serving as Undersecretary of State. The Moffats are now in Switzerland, Mr. Moffat being attached to our legation in Berne.

Miss Jean Kincheloe To Be Week-End Hostess.

Miss Jean Kincheloe will entertain a house party over the week-end at Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Syme's cottage in Virginia, her parents, Representative and Mrs. David H. Kincheloe, chaperoning the group of young people. In the company will be Miss Caroline Hyde, daughter of the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Hyde; Miss Peggy English, Miss Mildred English, Midshipman James H. David, Midshipman Cleon Keithly, Midshipman Eugene Mayer and Mr. Francis Wells.

Maj. Jack W. Heard, U. S. A., and Mrs. Heard have arrived in Washington and have taken a house at 2637 Woodley place. Maj. Heard is a student at the Army War College this year.

Mrs. Frank W. Smith has returned to town from New York, having spent the summer studying at the Parsons Art School.

M. C. A., now a traveler and lecturer, and fresh from a summer-long tour of Europe, will give a personal interpretation of Oberammergau, its work and personalities.

Miss C. L. Peterkin, of Parkersburg, W. Va., is the guest of Mrs. Marguerite duPont Lee at the Powhatan.

CHURCHES EXPAND RAPIDLY IN CAPITAL

Adas Israel Synagogue Will See Installation of New Rabbi, Dr. Metz.

OTHER CHANGES LISTED

This is a great day of church building and enlargement to take care of growing congregations and new congregations. There probably was never before in the history of Washington anything just like it. The great and glorious cathedrals are not the whole of the program, though they are the most imposing. When they and the national churches and the national shrines and other new enterprises are completed, Washington will be unrivaled among American cities for its Catholic and its Protestant church buildings.

It is in the enlargement of church plants that one finds a real growth in the spiritual life of the community. This is going on all about us and is confined to no one denomination. All of them seem to be caught in the whirl of development.

The Adas Israel Synagogue, at Sixth and I streets, has just emerged from the hands of the builder who has repaired and redecorated the temple and installed new lighting fixtures and made numerous other changes preparatory to the coming of the new rabbi, Dr. S. H. Metz.

Dr. Metz to Be Installed.

Dr. Metz will be installed tomorrow night when the synagogue will be rededicated. He comes here from the Washington Heights Synagogue in New York City. Like all rabbis, he is highly educated, and is quite an addition to the religious life of the community.

Among those who will take part in the rededication ceremony will be Maj. Julius I. Peyser, Joseph A. Willner, Mrs. Charles L. Pilzer, Joseph Stein, Lee Baumgarten and Col. Joseph Fromberg.

Adas Israel congregation was organized in 1869, it built the present synagogue in 1906, and it has a membership of 400 communicants. It is quite a force among the Jewry of this city.

Work will begin this week on the erection of a new parish hall at Nativity Chapel, at Massachusetts avenue and A street southeast. This will replace the old parish hall, which has been used for the past 27 years.

Cost to Be $35,000.

The construction work will be handled by Morrison Brothers, of Bethesda, at a cost of approximately $35,000. Plans for the church improvement have been in progress for a considerable time, and financing of the new hall was arranged by a building committee of which C. A. Davis is chairman. The Rev. E. M. Thompson is rector of the church.

After the new hall is completed, the chapel will be remodeled. This will consist of the installation of a new roof, doors, windows, heating plant and the construction of a new sanction room, new rector's room and a new choir room. Morrison Brothers estimate that the new parish hall will be built within three months.

During the summer months the Blodgett property, adjoining the Foundry Methodist Church, on the corner of Sixteenth and P streets, has been remodeled for church school purposes. The Sunday school assembly room of the church is now being remodeled into a beautiful and commodious dramatic hall and adapted for modern Sunday school work. The church parlors and old office on Sixteenth street have been transformed into a small chapel in which a bronze tablet has been placed in honor of Miss Katharine J. Laws, who taught in Foundry Sunday school for over 40 years. The tablet is the gift of Mrs. Mary Blaine Barker.

Pastor's Office Is Moved.

With the beginning of the fall work Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, the pastor, has moved his office into the new building on the corner of P street.

These alterations and improvements, both in the church property and in the recently acquired church house, are a part of the Foundry forward program.

Christ Lutheran Church, New Jersey avenue and Morgan street, having sold its property, has been worshipping at the old Zion Church at Sixth and P streets. Recently it has purchased a lot at the corner of Sixteenth and Gallatin streets northwest, and has had an architect draw plans for a beautiful building there.

It will have to be beautiful to match Grace Lutheran Church, which also moved from a congested downtown section, and the Sixth Presbyterian Church, long located in the Southwest section, but now occupying one of the most exquisitely wrought churches on upper Sixteenth street. Inside and outside this new church is a gem, and it has a gem of a minister, too.

It is quite remarkable how these downtown churches can move into the suburbs and draw their congregations after them. They all seem to thrive in their new localities, and it is such a fashionable locality out Sixteenth street, too.

Last Service Tomorrow.

Pastor J. Frederic Wenchel, of Christ Lutheran Church, holds his last service tomorrow in old Zion and after that he will move his pulpit to the Colony Theater, Georgia avenue and Farragut street northwest, until his Sixteenth street church is ready for occupancy.

Work on the new Sunday school building of the Central Presbyterian Church—Woodrow Wilson's church—has begun, the foundation being laid this week. This building will be three stories high, with a basement, and will have a frontage of 90 feet on Irving street.

The corner stone of the new church school building being erected by the Washington City Church of the Brethren having been laid, work will be pushed on that enterprise until it is completed; and it is now going ahead with wonderful rapidity.—D. R. B.

Rally Day Planned In Ninth Street Church

Big plans are under way for both Promotion Day and Rally Day in the Sunday school of the Ninth Street Christian Church.

Committees of this church are working under great pressure with committees of other churches for the arrangements necessary to the holding of the International Convention of the Christian Church here October 14-23.

Dr. Morris to Preach At Church of Epiphany

Dr. James W. Morris will fill the pulpit at the Church of the Epiphany tomorrow morning and evening and his morning sermon will be broadcast over WMAL. He will break the bread of life on "The Law and the Prophets."

Dr. Z. B. Phillips, the rector of the Epiphany, will return to his flock regularly next Sunday.

Man, 83, Sets Record In Church Attendance

Henry C. Lehmann, aged 83, and his grandchild, Edna Mitchell. Mr. Lehmann started going to Sunday School at 80, to take his granddaughter, and has not missed a Sunday during those three years.

Henry C. Lehmann Has Not Missed Sunday for Three Years.

By DAVID RANKIN BARBEE.

Ye who believe in placing your sins of omission on the weather and your sins of commission on your age, attend to the tale of Henry C. Lehmann, the oldest Sunday school scholar in the District of Columbia.

Mr. Lehmann is 83 years of age. He did not begin to go to Sunday school until he was 80, and for three years now, blow hot, blow cold, come rain, come snow, he has never missed a day, has been tardy but one time, and he lives nine miles from his church.

I love to reach far back into a man's past to find out what sort of a person he is. Often we are simply "sports," as the botanists say, or throwbacks to our ancestors, as the biologists phrase it; and just as the sins of the fathers are surely transmitted to the third and fourth generation, so their good qualities often skip two or three generations, or they accumulate through the generations and produce a genius or a George Washington.

This good old man's earliest recollection is going to Sunday school in Stuttgart, Germany, with his grandfather, who had joined the Lutheran Church in 1776. Who of us can go so far back?

And so it fell out, one lovely June day in 1927, that little Edna Mitchell, the blithesome little sunbeam in Mr. Lehmann's household, said to her mother: "I am not going to Sunday school. It is too far, and it is too hot!"

Her old grandfather heard her. His memory instantly went back to the day long before our Secession War, when he, a child, had said the same thing to his mother, and her old father pricked up his ears and then he put on his hat and, extending his hand, said:

"Komm mit mir, Heinrich!"

And little Heinrich went.

Seventy-five long years pass and that scene is reenacted in little Heinrich's own home in far-off America, and he, now a grandfather, pricked up his ears, and then he put on his hat and, extending his hand, said:

"Come Edna, little sunshine. It is not too far for grandfather, and so it will not be too far for you."

I do not know who was most surprised that Sunday morning, Edna, the Rev. Gerhard S. Lenski, the minister of Grace Lutheran Church, or Henry C. Lehmann, jr., the superintendent of the Sunday school.

The elder Mr. Lehmann lives at 1515 U street southeast, with his son-in-law, Mr. Leonard Mitchell. This is in Anacostia, and Grace Lutheran Church is at the corner of Sixteenth street and Varnum street northwest. It would tax the strength of a vigorous man in middle age to make this journey on a street car once a day; but what shall we say of this good old man who leaves home every Sabbath morning before most of us are up, makes the long journey with little Edna sitting by his side and holding his hand, goes to Sunday school, remains for the preaching service, and when there is a night service during the Lenten season he is back there again?

Sitting in his home the other night, chatting about his life and his interest in his church, I asked him why he had made the sudden resolve to come out of hiding and once more take his place among his brethren in the House of the Lord.

"This little child," he replied. "I owe it to her to set her a good example as long as I live. And when she sees that her old grandfather has the strength and the inclination to go to Sunday school, she will not rebel any longer. And maybe," he went on, with a sigh, "my example will inspire others to bring their children to Sunday school and to go themselves."

"Indeed, it has, already," Pastor Lenski, who was of the little gathering, responded heartily.

"Mr. Lehmann is my exhibit A. Since he began to come to Sunday school our attendance there has more than doubled, and his influence on the congregation has been so inspiring and stimulating that our numbers there have likewise doubled."

A smile wreathed his honest face, and his vivid eyes flashed with the hue of delight, as he exploded, pretty much as Col. Roosevelt would have done if he had been the pastor and were telling the story:

"Whenever I want to shame my people a bit about their failure to come to church, I ask them to look around and see if they miss Mr. Lehmann from his pew. 'Surely,' I tell them, 'if that good old grandsire can come 9 miles to church, you can come nine blocks.'"

It must give one a lot of satisfaction, even though a modest man, to hear such hearty praise, and yet it is not misplaced. Mr. Lehmann can look about himself and see that his stalwart sons are carrying on for him in the vineyard he so often watered and planted and cultivated for his Master. There, Sunday after Sunday, stands Henry C. Lehmann, jr., directing the affairs of that Sunday school of which his father is the oldest scholar and his niece among the youngest; and there, Sunday after Sunday, in his own pew its William G. Lehmann, another son, who by the grace of his brethren is president of the congregation. And there by his side sits the little ray of sunshine, Edna, with her hand in her grandfather's.

They say that the Church of God is losing its hold on people, that they no longer go to it because the church no longer has any message for them. This may be true, but it would seem that it is not true of Grace Church nor of the Lehmann tribe. When Mr. Lehman first came to Washington in 1877, he joined a little Lutheran chapel, which was the forerunner of the first Grace Church. He has a photograph of the interior of that chapel, and of its sucecssor, which is the present very beautiful church on Sixteenth street. For 35 years he has been an active member of this Grace Church, and every stick and stone in every one of its chapels is entwined in the fiber of his being.

We were talking of the first Grace chapel, and the old man got up quickly and disappeared from the room. Presently he came back with the photograph of the first Grace chapel, taken more than 50 years ago. He held it tenderly as if it were alive, and soon he was talking about the pastors of bygone days and of the things that men had placed in that chapel.

"Do you really enjoy going to Sunday school now?" I put the question to him to take his mind off of the old church that stood at Thirteenth and Corcoran so long, and the old pastor who had ministered there for 25 years.

"More than I ever did," he replied, like a whip lash." I have time now to study the lesson and to meditate on it and I learn things from the good old Book that I never knew were there. No, man," he concluded, "should have a closed mind on the Bible. It is the only book that never grows old and never grows stale and never grows tiresome."

As we talked together in the most informal and often rambling sort of way I could not keep my eyes off of this frail little old man of 83 long years, who has not made a great deal of fuss in the world. He told me that he had seldom been sick, that even now he has most astonishing health, that he eats when he pleases and what he pleases, that even in the hottest weather he sleeps without discomfort. He married when he was 25, has been married 58 years, his good wife is still living. They reared a family of five children and an orphan niece. And all of them are in the church and active in its work. This is a great contribution for one man to have made.

It was as an immigrant that Mr. Lehmann came to America in 1864, settling in New York. The Civil War was on, and New York City was a military place; so he joined the infantry on arrival and then the drum corps, and every Sunday they had him out "hay-foot, straw-footing" it all up and down Broadway and Fifth avenue, or beating the drum on Avenue A. Tiring of this, he joined the light artillery and they simply changed not his habits, but his duties. Instead of beating the drum on Sunday, he had to fire the cannon to let the people of New York know a war was going on. This was terribly demoralizing to the young German immigrant, and as soon as the war was over he quit the army and went back to church.

In Washington he was employed from 1877 until he retired eight years ago in the Government Printing Office and in the Treasury. Twice he had his time extended and was up for third extension when a spell of illness caused him to withdraw his application.

Pastor Lenski brags on his star pupil, but maybe there are other pastors here who have scholars who make this record stand back. Who has a scholar as old as Mr. Lehmann? Who one that has such a perfect score? The Church Page of The Post wants to know about them.

CATHOLIC CHARITY PARLEY IN CAPITAL

Conference Will Be Held From September 28 to October 2.

PLANS ARE COMPLETED

A religious gathering of national importance will be the Conference of Catholic Charities, which meets in Washington September 28 through October 2. Thousands of Catholics from all over America are expected to attend, and Washington Catholics for more than a month have been making plans for the reception and entertainment of the delegates.

Representatives of more than 600 hospitals, 500 child-caring homes, 40 homes for the aged, 40 diocesan agencies and many other religious and lay organizations will attend the conference.

Some of the most prominent churchmen and laymen in this country are on the program, and every day will be full of important events.

Mr. James Fitzgerald, of the Particular Council of Detroit, speaks at the luncheon meeting on Monday, September 29, on the subject, "The Participation by Vincentians in Laymen's Retreats."

Rev. Bishop to Speak.

At the afternoon session of the conference on that same day, the Rev. W. Howard Bishop, pastor of St. Louis' Church, Clarksville, and president of the Catholic Rural Life Conference, will give a talk on "The Visitation of the Poor in Their Homes." Mr. Mark O. Shriver, of the Metropolitan Central Council of Baltimore, will also give a talk.

Holy Name members will be eager to attend the discussions on Big Brother work. The Ladies of Charity, the members of the Blessed Virgin Sodality and the members of other women's organizations will wish to be present at the sessions which will deal with problems which appeal to such organizations.

Miss Angela Hartman, of Baltimore, will tell at one of these sessions about what is being done at the community centers which are conducted under the auspices of the Sodality Union of Baltimore.

Archdiocese Well Represented.

The Rev. Edwin L. Leonard, Archdiocesan director of charities; the Rev. Dr. John M. Cooper and the Rev. Dr. William J. Kerby, of the Catholic University of America, will take part in the discussions.

The Rev. Dr. William J. Kerby, of the University, will preside at one of the meetings. The Rev. Dr. John O'Grady, of the University, is the secretary of the National Conference. Dr. O'Grady is director of the Catholic charities of Washington.

The conference will be opened with a solemn pontifical mass at Saint Patrick's Church, Washington. Bishop McNamara will pontificate. The sermon will be delivered by the Right Rev. Thomas C. O'Reilly, Bishop of Scranton.

Many Expected From Baltimore.

It is expected that there will be an especially large delegation from Baltimore on the opening day of the conference.

A meeting of Washington groups actively interested in preparations for the conference was held Monday night at the Willard Hotel.

The following societies were represented:

Saint Vincent de Paul, Knights of Columbus, Holy Name Society, Sodality Union, Catholic Daughters, Daughters of Isabella, Catholic Women's Benevolent Union, Curley Club, Aloysius Club, Newman Club, Catholic Students' Mission Crusade, Ladies of Charity, International Federation of Catholic Alumnae, Ladies' Auxiliary, Ancient Order of Hibernians; Catholic University Alumnae, Trinity College Alumnae, Knights of Saint John, Ancient Order of Hibernians and the combined Welfare Workers of District Charities.

Representatives from these organizations composed the many committees at work on the details for the promised success of the gathering.

On Monday night another large meeting will assemble at the Willard Hotel to hear reports from other committees and make more detailed reports for catering to the guests who will be here during the convention.

Pastors Return From Vacations

Dr. Sizoo and Dr. Pierce Prominent Absentees; Dr. McCartney Back.

Nearly all the holidaying pastors are back among their people, and will be in their pulpits Sunday. The prominent absentees are Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo, minister of New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, who is in the West, and Dr. Ulysses G. B. Pierce, minister of All Souls Unitarian Church, who, with Mrs. Pierce, is still in Europe.

Dr. Albert Joseph McCartney, minister of the Church of the Covenant, who spent the summer with his family in California, is domiciled at Wardman Park Hotel for the winter. Dr. Newton P. Patterson, the associate minister of the Covenant, has returned from Europe and will assist Dr. McCartney Sunday.

Dr. F. W. Perkins, minister of the Universalist National Memorial Church, has returned and will break the bread of life to his people tomorrow.

VETERANS THRILLED BY BLIND PREACHER

Rev. Robert A. Blair Talks at Walter Reed About His Famous Dog.

CHAPLAIN BOYD, CHARGE

Those who were privileged to hear the Rev. Robert A. Blair, the blind minister from Parnassus, Pa., at the Church of the Covenant last Sunday, were thrilled at the relation of his experiences with his dog and the lessons the dog had taught him. Regrets were expressed, after the services, that the blind and otherwise disabled veterans of Washington could not hear Dr. Blair and get the inspiration of the dog and his master.

Thereupon, Capt. Paul V. Collins undertook arrangements to have the sermon and the dog demonstration repeated at Walter Reed Hospital, and several members with automobiles volunteered to carry veterans from other military hospitals to that meeting. From Mount Alto Diagnostic Hospital three or four carloads of patients were thus in attendance.

Although there was scant opportunity to announce the meeting at Walter Reed Hospital, the spacious hall of the Red Cross Building was filled with veterans.

Chaplain Boyd in Charge.

The meeting was conducted by Chaplain Boyd. Capt. Collins, in introducing the speaker and dog, related a war adventure with strange dogs, eager for human sympathy in their terror under the bombardment of the Etaples British Hospital, in 1918, when a big dog, panting with fright, voluntarily poked his nozzle up the sleeve of the captain and became quiet, under human touch.

He also related the story of Senator Hawes, who once gave a pup to a country preacher, and the pup grew into the prize Irish terrier of America and earned for the little struggling church $1,800 a year.

Dr. Blair was even more thrilling to the disabled veterans than he had been to the Covenant congregation, and at the close of his discourse he gave a demonstration of his dog that startled many in the hall.

Preacher Led by Dog.

The blind preacher was led by the dog across the stage, around a screen, through an exit, down two flights of steps, through a dark passageway and out before the footlights. In the meanwhile a nurse who knew the treacherous steps, ran forward, expecting a fall, and so many of the soldiers stampeded to the rescue that the dog, fearing an attack, stopped them with a commanding bark, as she led her charge out into the main hall.

Dr. Blair explained that all the dogs trained by the Seeing Eye, Inc., at Nashville, to lead the blind, are females, for "the female of the species is more faithful than the male"—in spite of Kipling. Senator Hawes declares, however, that the male Shepherd never attacks a female, even though she affronts him by taking his bone; he is too much of a gentleman to bite a lady.

The veterans crowded around the preacher and dog, eagerly asking questions. It had been proposed to equip Walter Reed Hospital with three or four dogs to lead the blind patients, but Dr. Blair showed that that would be impracticable, since German Shepherds are all "one-man dogs" and will not serve strangers.

Rev. Frederick Harris Returns From Abroad

The Rev. Frederick Brown Harris has returned to Washington and to the work at Foundry Methodist Church after two months in England, Scotland and Wales. With his family he visited over twenty cathedral towns and most of the outstanding historic and literary points of interest in England. He spent some time inspecting both Oxford and Cambridge Universities. He attended and was introduced to the Wesleyan Methodist Conference at Leeds.

During the weeks in England he preached two Sundays in the great Methodist Church at Bristol, where thousands attended his ministry. On the last Sunday in England he also preached in John Wesley's old church in London, City Roads Chapel, which is the mecca for Methodists from all parts of the world.

Church Young People Plan Events for Fall

The committee on young people's work of the Federation of Churches held its first fall meeting last Monday night in the Y. M. C. A., the chairman, D. Roland Potter, presiding. He is a former president of the Christian Endeavor Union of the District. Eugene Scheele, of the Epworth League, was elected vice chairman and Miss Virginia Sinclair, secretary.

A three-fold program of activities was adopted, Miss Pauline Hann being chosen chairman for evangelism, Miss Ceba Miller, chairman for education and recreation, and Miss Ruth Rodier, chairman for social service. It is expected that the last group will undertake some specific plans for helping to support the hospital worker. The entire committee, when the personnel is completed, will comprise about 25 of the active young people in the organizations of the B. Y. P. U., C. E., Episcopal Y. P. S., Epworth Leagues and Luther League.

SENTENCE SERMONS

By the REV. HAROLD E. BEATTY
(Pastor of Georgetown Lutheran Church).

THE BOOK WONDERFUL.

THE Bible is a wonderful Book! Let us glance at just one of its "wonderful words." Look at the word righteousness. Righteousness as a principle, righteousness as a profit, righteousness as a personality.

First: Righteousness as a principle. The one principle pervading the Kingdom of Heaven is righteousness.

"The Kingdom of God is not meat and drink, but righteousness, peace and joy in the Holy Ghost."—Romans, xiv:17.

When righteousness is completely done on earth, then the Kingdom of Heaven will appear.

"We, according to His promise, look for new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness."—II Peter, iii:13.

Second: Righteousness as profit.

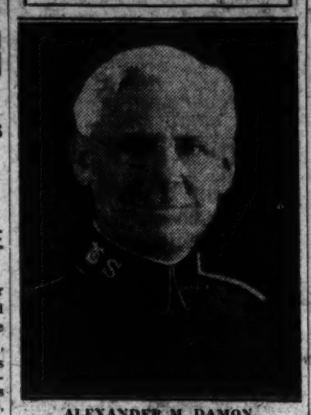
"Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness," and what will be the result? "All those things shall be added unto you." And not only "all things," but also "peace and joy"—happiness.

Nothing pays so supremely, so superbly, so beautifully, as righteousness. And what is righteousness? It is doing right.

Third: As personality. Righteousness does not relate ultimately to systems, organizations, things, but only to personality. The person who does rightly most nearly perfectly approaches most nearly the perfect personality.

But we know of only One who fulfilled "all righteousness." Therefore, we know only One perfect Personality. And who is this One? Isaiah answers, "And His Name is called Wonderful."

ARMY LEADER



ALEXANDER M. DAMON.

Salvation Army headquarters are agog over the coming of Commissioner Alexander M. Damon to Washington for a three days' meeting, September 20-22. Commissioner Damon is in charge of the Southern territory of the Army, and has been a member of the organization for 40 years. He joined when a youth and has climbed step by step to the top of the ladder.

Value of Prayers For Rain Subject

St. Mark's Rector Replying to Question in Sermon Will Say "No."

Some weeks ago the church page had an article about praying for rain. It told of how the old prophet Elijah prayed for rain and the Lord sent it; and how Uncle Jimmy Axley, the famous old Methodist circuit rider, often prayed for rain when a drought was on, and the rain came.

Not every preacher believes the Lord answers such prayers. One of them, the Rev. Hulbert A. Woolfall, rector of St. Marks' Church, who was formerly rector of the Episcopal Church at Laurel, is going to preach Sunday on the subject: "Does Prayer Bring Rain?" His answer is "No!"

In this sermon Mr. Woolfall says he will attempt to show that God reveals Himself best through law and order. Mr. Woolfall is a very popular young minister with his people and with all who come in contact with him, and surely he will have his church packed Sunday to hear his exposition of this interesting theme.

Sunday School Opens Tomorrow in Capital

St. Margaret's Sunday school, at Connecticut avenue and Bancroft place northwest, will open tomorrow morning, with the Rev. Robert Shores as superintendent. Dr. Shores announces: "A graded school teaching the Christian nurture courses, with kindergarten, grammar school, junior high school and high school, leading to graduation and diploma; a scientific system of instruction in morals, ethics and religion, taught with Christian enthusiasm."

Registration of children takes place Sunday morning, September 21.

Youth Will Rule Day In Christian Church

Youth day will be observed at the Vermont Avenue Christian Church tomorrow, and the pastor, Dr. Earle Wilfley, will have a special message for the young people at his morning hour and will turn the evening service over to them. At the latter hour all the young people's societies will participate in a symposium on "The Church as Viewed by Modern Youth."

These young folks also will furnish special music under the direction of the choirmaster, W. E. Braithwaite. Miss Katharine Wilfley, assistant to the pastor, has arranged a fine program for the entire week for the young folks.

Washington Minister Conducts Question Box

Dr. F. F. Holsopple, pastor of the Washington City Church of the Brethren, is carrying his congregation through a course in the First Epistle to the Corinthians, and they are liking it. This is the feature for the Sunday evening services.

He also conducts a question box, which has proved interesting and helpful. Questions are placed in the collection plate, or given to the pastor or ushers, and are answered at the next service. This gives the minister time "to bone up" on his answers. Ninety communicants came into this Dunker church last year, by letter and by baptism.

Evangelistic Services For Berwyn Baptists

Evangelistic services will be conducted nightly throughout next week, beginning at 8 o'clock tomorrow night at the Baptist Church in Berwyn, Md., by G. W. Griffin, an evangelist of Denver, Colo.

His first sermon will be on the subject, "Broken Plans." Well known laymen and clergymen of Berwyn will participate in the various programs.

M.E. Church Group Conference Is Set

146th Annual Session Is to Be Held in District This Month.

Clergymen and laymen of the Methodist Episcopal Church South in Maryland, Virginia and the District will attend the 146th annual session of the Baltimore Conference of the denomination to be held there at the Mount Vernon Place Church September 24 to 29.

The meeting will be presided over by Bishop W. B. Beauchamp, now of Richmond, who was appointed presiding bishop of this conference at the recent general quadrennial conference of the church to succeed Bishop Collins Denny. Bishop Beauchamp, from 1926 to his appointment, had supervision over the north Georgia, south Georgia, Mexico, Texas Mexican mission and western Mexican mission of the church.

Aside from the customary announcement of assignments for all pastors in the region, the forthcoming conference will give major attention to consideration and vote on the subject of a judicial council for the denomination. Enacted as a law at the last general conference of the church, the legislation must meet approval of three-fourths of the 38 annual conferences before it takes effect. It provides for creation of a supreme court in the denomination to settle controversial questions now handled by the College of Bishops and its appeals committee.

Young Lay People Assist in Service

John Alexander Kendrick Aids Pastor of Takoma Park Church.

A new way has been found, at Takoma Park Baptist Church, to get children interested in the church service, and that is to preach them a sermonette and have one of their number take part in the service. The pastor, the Rev. William E. LaRue, preaches the sermonette, and tomorrow he will have as his subject: "Work or Starve." That subject would make sleepy adults sit up and take notice.

"I follow the practice," Pastor LaRue says, "of having the children come from the Sunday school into the church service, where I gave them a sermonette, before the regular service, after which they are at liberty to go.

"I invite a boy or girl to go into the pulpit with me, and assist me, by announcing the hymn, leading in the responsive readings, reciting Scripture and offering prayer."

This surely is a fine training for the youth of that congregation, and maybe it explains why so many Baptist laymen can pray in public and are at home in church affairs.

John Alexander Kendrick, aged 13, who lives with his parents at 604 Whittier street northwest, was the first youngster in Pastor LaRue's congregation to volunteer for this pulpit service. When he made his first essay, he surprised everybody with the facility with which he conducted the services. The congregation gets a thrill out of this innovation, and Master Kendrick will thrill them once more tomorrow morning, for he is slated to be in the pulpit again with the pastor.

Dr. Daugherty to Attend United Brethren Meeting

Dr. Simpson B. Daugherty, minister of Memorial United Brethren Church, North Capitol and R streets, is closing out the fifth year of his pastorate, and when he goes up to annual conference at Red Lion, Pa., Sept. 30, he will have a good report to lay before the brethren.

A total of 479 members have been added to his church roll in these progressive five years, 115 of them the past year. All of these were brought into the church through pastoral and visitation evangelism. The present membership of the church is 1,138, and the collections for benevolences and current expenses run to $20,000 a year. It is no wonder that the quarterly conference voted unanimously to have their pastor returned for another year.

Summer Union Service Programs Are Ended

Union services in which Mount Pleasant Congregational, All Souls Unitarian and Universalist National Memorial Churches have cooperated all summer, have come to an end, and each congregation will return to its regular program tomorrow.

At All Souls Unitarian Church, Dr. Franklin C. Southworth, formerly president of Meadville Theological School, but more recently of Chicago, will be in the pulpit. He was recently a delegate to a great conference in India.

Principal Made Head Of Sunday School

Mr. Harvey A. Smith, principal of Central High School, is the new superintendent of the senior and young people's departments of Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church.

He will meet with his teaching staff Friday evening of next week and outline the work for the year.

Dr. Charles Goodell To Speak in Capital

Dr. Charles L. Goodell, of New York, for many years pastor of leading Methodist churches in the East, and now secretary of the Commission on Evangelism of the Federal Council of Churches, will come to Washington for an address and evening's conference on October 29.

The Committee on Evangelism of the Washington Federation of Churches is bringing him here. This will be a big event.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

THE ether will hold much to delight the sports fans today. Those interested in yachting, particularly the outcome of the race between the Shamrock and the Enterprise, will stay close to the loudspeaker during the day for reports to be made at intervals over WRC and WMAL. This is one of the most elaborate sports broadcasts ever planned.

The Columbia network will carry play-by-play descriptions of the National Tennis finals at Forest Hills (WMAL, 12:30 to 3:30 p. m.), dividing the air, if necessary, with the yacht broadcast.

The final round of the P. G. A. Golf Tournament will be described immediately upon conclusion of the tennis broadcast, also through WMAL.

The Futurity race description from Belmont Park will be distributed to listeners over an N. B. C. network (WRC, 3:10 p. m.).

DANIEL Breeskin and his concert quintet will make their second appearance this evening for the Washington Gas Light Company (WRC, 6:15 p. m.) in another program of tuneful melodies.

In his political speech over Columbia the other night, Senator Pat Harrison contributed his own sound effects.

"I hold in my hand a spurious coin," he said, describing the campaign coin of the Republicans in the 1928 campaign which read, "Good for Four Years of Prosperity."

Then he dropped it on the table before him. It sounded like a plugged nickel.

Vaughn de Leath, one of radio's bright lights, has been "loaned" to Station WTAM, Cleveland, for six months.

FOLLOWING an organ recital in a New York department store recently, the announcer awoke to the fact that no speaker's microphone had been provided. The only "mikes" were those hanging from the ceiling of the auditorium 15 feet above the floor. After an anxious 5 minutes, he discovered a painter's ladder and teetered from the top rung for the entire program, while two men held the ladder.

"Listen to music if you want to enjoy it," is the suggestion of Howard Barlow, orchestra director frequently heard. "Though literature and painting may require long hours of library study and technical analysis, music comes much more easily. All that the student need do is to listen to it; first for enjoyment only, and then for a knowledge of its structure."

The 700-kilocycle frequency now carries this announcement:

"You are listening to WLW, the Nation's station, in Cincinnati."

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

FROZEN CHEESE WITH FRUIT.

(Bureau of Dairy Industry.)

2 Neufchatel or cream cheeses.
1 cup double cream.
¼ cup milk.
1¼ cups powdered sugar.
¼ teaspoon salt.
½ teaspoon vanilla.
½ cup chopped canned pineapple, preserved cherries, dates, figs or raisins.

Break up the cheeses and mix the milk with them. Add the sugar, salt and chopped fruit and vanilla and mix thoroughly. Whip the cream until it is stiff, and fold in the cheese mixture. Pour into a mold, pack in crushed ice and salt, and let stand three or four hours to freeze. Pound baking power tins lined with tough white paper make suitable molds. Serve the frozen cheese in slices with or without a garnish of the chopped fruit. Or if preferred, leave the chopped fruit out of the mixture and serve it as a garnish on top. A whole preserved fig on a round of the frozen cheese is a particularly attractive combination.

This same mixture unfrozen is also an excellent filling for Charlotte russe made with lady fingers or sponge cake.

Dare Interprets the Mode

For her hat-box, Dare selects these Paris hats for fall.

Paris, Sept. 12.

ONE may say what one pleases about Paris styles for the American woman, and I for one won't say a word, every one being entitled to his or her opinion and prejudices. But if any one says that any other city in the world knows even half as much about the art of hat-making as Paris, I will have to firmly correct them. I can't tell you why it is, but it is an indisputable fact that the Paris modiste is the only person who knows how to twist and fashion a hat around the face of the person this hat is framing, in just the way that a hat should be twisted to frame a face.

But when it comes to asking how much money a woman should pay for a hat, that is quite another story. For one may go to Reboux, to Lemonier, to Rose Valois or Rose Descat and pay as high as $50 for a perfectly simple hat without any ornament whatsoever which might have accounted for this extraordinary price. True, the hat is a marvel of line and structure, and the design will undoubtedly be a very smart one, and one which could not have been achieved by inexpert fingers. Therefore, one looks right and feels right in the hat.

On the other hand, you may go just around the corner, and find the famous little French modiste who makes delightful hats with quite the same amount of practice and experience as those with the better name, but who prefers to copy the accepted models of the more important modistes, rather than trust to her own design. She also has her own models or will try her very best to interpret your idea for you in the hat you think you want. She is the bane of the Haute Modistes' existence, but a life-saver to the woman who either can not or will not pay $50 for headgear.

Then there are always the hats you can pick up at sales in basements and cheap department stores, which an expert eye can instantly pick out, and clever fingers can very simply remodel by just taking off one extra something here, changing a ribbon there, adding an incrustation another place.

• • • •

And last but not at least . . . indeed, first, . . . there are those chic hats that I sketched for you today, which make a good part of any fall hat wardrobe. I had them made, some of them my own designs, some of them copies of big houses' models, by my little around-the-corner hat lady in Paris. And then Mamzelle took them all to pieces (mentally) and copied some of them herself for fall . . . and all of them she tells you how to make in this week's illustrated leaflet. Hats, hats, do you want a new fall hat? And make it yourself! Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post right this minute, and you will have the illustrated leaflet which tells you how to make these I sketched today. Better cut out this drawing, too, and save it.

Are you watching the Dare Weekly Fashion Letter that appears each week in The Sunday Washington Post? It keeps you en rapport with Paris styles.

The Goofus Auk

The Great Goofus Auk has just learned to talk
Which detracts from her charm in a way,
And quite poor she's become,
She was much richer dumb
As silence is golden, they say.

Oh well, as a female it's best she can talk,
For when females must talk, why they must;
And it quite often happens
If they're gagged in their youth
Before they are old they just bust!

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

HOW often should I apply water to dahlias? A DAHLIA FAN

When your plants are in borders or near shrubbery where alien roots can absorb the moisture, it will be necessary to water often and thoroughly. In fact, when the weather is extremely warm, dahlias should be watered every other day. On the other hand, if your plants are in a free, open place, where they do not have to divide the moisture with their neighbors, once a week may be often enough to apply water. Dahlias bloom on soft growth only. Therefore do not allow the growth to become checked for want of water.

Please tell me how to start a night-blooming jasmine. Must I plant a cutting or sow seed? RUTH W. M.

These plants or vines are best started from cuttings, which should be started in February or March.

Will the sweet fern make a practical ground cover plant for planting on a rather high and very barren bank? HOWARD J.

Yes, but keep in mind that it does not do well in limestone soils.

Must hardy asters be transplanted oftener than once in five years? MISS JEWEL L.

Clumps of these asters should be lifted and reduced every year and only five or seven of the strongest shoots from the outside of the plant retained and replanted in their old location after a supply of well-rotted manure has been incorporated with the soil.

Please tell of six plants which you know will thrive in partial shade. EMILY H. U.

Matricaria, forget-me-nots, clarkia, dielytria, gentian and columbine will all do well in partial shade.

Do you think liquid manure would increase the size of the individual flowers on my zinnias? FANNY K.

Yes; do not give too much, however, a half cupful to a plant will be sufficient to use for one application. Use two applications two weeks apart.

Is it best to water scarlet sage every day? My neighbor tells me this is not the way to have large flowers. A NEW READER.

Yes, these plants must be watered every day that it does not rain.

Please tell the months when lupine blooms. I am away in August and want varieties which will bloom when I am home. HARRIET H. K.

The flowering season is during May and June.

Will dusting the plants of asters get rid of the aster beetle? ANNIE T. Y.

Yes. Use lead arsenate for this purpose.

Please tell what to use to get rid of scale on ferns. ALICE R. T.

Literally scrub them away with the aid of a small brush. They are tenacious pests and are hard to dislodge. You will have to go over each frond separately. When the plant is free from insects, spray it once a week to prevent a return of the pests.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"VIRGO."

If September 13 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a. m. to 10:15 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 3:40 p. m., and 7 p. m. to 8 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to 12:30 p. m. and 9 p. m. to 10 p. m.

The astrological aspects for this date are materially beneficial, although there will be experienced mental and spiritual depression. The evening hours favor love and romance—guard your heart and do not declare your affections! Mind less acute and efficient than usual.

Children born on this September 13 will soon indicate that their brains are real thinking machines, and they will desire to exercise their own ideas and opinions. They will never be anybody's shadow or echo and will have strong, positive personalities.

The biggest character asset with which you were born is your courage, and Samuel Johnson once said, "Unless a man has this virtue he has no security for preserving any other." Courage never appears alone and you possess its accompanying coattributes—self-denial, self-confidence, assertiveness, energy and integrity of purpose. You are one of those en viable people who get things done. You are not fate's football; you have always played center-forward yourself. Your vision shapes an idea and your ambition and pluck carries it through to materialization.

The two-sided ball of existence, work and play, with you is so blended together that the play side is indivisible from the work side. You get a lot of fun and enjoyment out of everything you do. You never fail to put a large dash of humor into all the commotions you make. You are very outspoken, blunt in your compliments and blunt in your criticisms. Your words seldom hurt, however, for behind them is kindliness and soundness.

You are not a "know it all," and you choose able and loyal confederates. You do not make the mistake of doing too much yourself. You know your strength and you know your limitations. You have a loving nature and would make a splendid wife or husband for one who wants a constant, loyal and true life-partner. You will be active within and without your home.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

NOT AN EXCLUSIVE CLUB.

DR. J. B. HAWES, JR., proposes a new organization, the D. F. club. Since this is a conservative family newsaper, it is not proper to say what D. F. stands for. Dr. Hawes offers to be the first member of the organization, and to supply its first requirement.

When a young ambitious man he was constantly overworked and habitually fatigued. He would round out a hard day's work by a few games of squash. He noted that he had an infection of some sort most of the time—a cold, a sinusitis, boils, or something else. He consulted a wise old friend and a frank one. This old friend supplied him with the name of his proposed club. He told him that a fatigued, tired man needs rest and not squash. Following the advice removed Dr. Hawes from the clan of Job, and supplied him with the first plank in the platform of his club. It is: If thou playest hard games when fatigued, thou are eligible to the D. F. club. People who do this are called the exercise extremists. There are other ways of qualifying as an exercise extremist.

Another qualification is to be a cold air enthusiast. Among these are the tender people who try to sleep out when the temperature is 40 below zero. Another variety is composed of the cold water cranks—the people who go in swimming in midwinter. Those who break the ice to swim Dr. Hawes designates as mildly insane.

Another group, and a large one, is that of the diet faddists. In this group are those who eat too much, those who eat in a hurry, and those who carry business to the table. Worthier of the name food faddists are those who go "nutty" about combinations of foods and bizarre diets of one sort or another. This qualification very greatly increases the potential membership of the D. F. club.

Still another qualification is the worrying habit—crossing tomorrow's bridges today, and even crossing bridges that do not exist and never will. Dr. Hawes developes just one detail under this head; it relates to buying on credit—installment plan buying.

Dr. Hawes says further that a seasoned man with great capacity to endure cold, may sleep in zero air or swim in icy water with safety or even advantage, but that many who try to follow that example without being trained for it are just plain eligibles for the D. F. Club—whatever that is.

CURE IS IN MENTAL TRAINING.

Mrs. M. R. writes:

For the last year I have been rather unusual. By that I mean, I am very easily irritated and would like to be alone all the time. Sometimes when I am lying down my whole body seems to stiffen and I could just scream right out at that time, but I can control myself. I am very lonesome at times, whether among people or not, and when I feel real lonely I start crying. I have no reason to feel lonely, because I have plenty of people near me all day. I am losing weight slowly. I am 5 feet 4 inches tall, rather medium build, and weigh 120 pounds. Two weeks ago I weighed 136 pounds.

Could it be possible that worrying is the cause of my present condition? If so, how can I overcome this attitude?

REPLY.

Your trouble is mental. The remedy is mental training. For one thing, you are hysterical. Hysteria is an exaggerated emotionalism. You should be able to control the hysteria and greatly improve your emotional balance.

Largest Meteorite Of Stone, 820 Pounds

Iowa City, Iowa, Sept. 12.—An 820-pound stony meteorite that fell a few months ago near Paragould, Ark., is the largest meteoric stone whose fall was observed and which has been recovered intact, announces Dr. C. C. Wylie, professor of astronomy at the University of Iowa. The large stone is now in the Field Museum in Chicago.

When it fell it seemed to burst into three pieces, at a height of about five miles. A second piece, weighing about eighty pounds, has been recovered, while Dr. Wylie suggests that a third piece may yet be discovered.

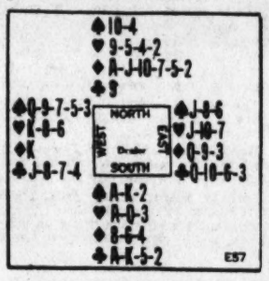
WORK ON BRIDGE

(This article is intended for the Auction and Contract Bridge beginner.)

As a variation of the play given last Saturday, the following hand is submitted. It shows a rather unusual situation and yet one with which the beginner should be familiar.



South would be the Declarer with a No Trump contract (at Contract Bridge it would be three No Trumps) and with Spade led, he could take the first trick with impunity because he still has the suit stopped.

Looking over his hand he can see that he has the certainty of taking in addition to his two Spades, two Clubs and one Heart, so he will need four Diamonds in order to secure game. He can not tell what to do with the Diamond suit until the adverse distribution of it is developed, so he will lead a small Diamond from the closed hand, expecting to play the Ten from the dummy, and to let an adverse honor win in the East hand. This would be a finesse rather than a duck.

However, when West's King is played, all this is changed. It is not yet certain whether the King is alone or has the Queen with it; might be played as a false card in the latter situation but, either way, the King must be allowed to win. If the Queen is in the hand with the King, it can be captured; if the Queen is in the East hand and guarded, it would be held up and stop the suit if North played the Ace. When the King of Diamonds wins, the Spades will be established by the lead of the Queen; but the Declarer should hold up his winnings Spade until the third round of the suit, when he can lead another Diamond and see what the situation is.

When West discards, the Declarer will have failed in his hope of catching the Queen, but he must duck again or else East, who has the Queen and Nine, will hold up the Queen and block the suit. If East, after winning with the Queen, should lead a Club, Declarer's task is easy. If he lead a Heart, game is assured by going up with the Ace and crashing the Diamonds.

The "double-duck" is a play that requires patience to develop, but is effective in hands built for it.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

A Clergyman's Love.

DEAR Miss McDonald: You have helped many; please help me. I shall try to give the situation briefly. I am 28 years of age and expect to get the bachelor of divinity degree in June. I have had a rather wide experience with girls. For many reasons I have never had just one sweetheart at a time. I have not found one who filled all of my expectations and desires. It might be fickleness, but no one girl has held all of my attention for any length of time. I did not want to fall in love, therefore I divided my interests. I felt that I might fall in love with the wrong girl. I have gotten to the place where I do not want to be jumping from one girl to another, or to be going around with several. I feel that with just one sweet girl I can work and study better.

I have been going about with a girl for more than two years who meets most of my expectations. She is 20 years of age. She is in her second year in college (a school of music). I think that I am most interested in her.

This is the problem:

During the last school term I introduced her to one of my classmates. He is about my age. We are friends only as friendly classmates. She is a very friendly girl, and most people think too friendly. They would talk with each other whenever and wherever they met on the campus. This seemed all right, and I paid no attention to it. He has a girl. He asked my girl, and she went to a musical with him. Both told me about it. I disapproved of her going about with him on the basis of my friendship. She promised not to do it again. He has been in the city all summer without work, and I imagine he gets lonesome. He goes around to take her books to read and to hear her play the piano. He had a distant friend to visit him, and he took him to see my girl before he took him to see his girl. They, with another girl, went walking. I disapproved. Was I wrong? I called to see her one Sunday and he was there. They were playing the piano and she was even singing, and she had never sung to me nor had I ever heard her sing at all.

Later I asked her whether he had been to see her any more, and she said my attitude that night had kept him away. She has been out of the city for about three weeks, until school opens. He told me that she had written him. One of her close girl friends told me I was the only person she had written to—which indicated that she had not written to many folks. What do you think of this situation? Should I give her all of my attention? Give me your whole reaction. J. M. G.

In other words, you are jealous. Had the young lady been a meek mouse and never looked at any man but her wonderful bachelor of divinity, she would still be to you just one of the several fair ones who interested you. But she dared to look upon the rest of mankind as the campus offered and behold—you "disapproved." You know, because you have an acute attack of good old-fashioned green-eyed jealousy, feel that you must in some way keep off intruders upon your preserves, and you are even willing to give up other girls and declare yourself to this one. I am against the idea. For you, it would be unwise.

What you need is more girls, not fewer. A clergyman meets many women, lovely women. And he meets them in their weakest moments—when grief or stress has reduced their morale, and when their very need makes them appealing. The man who has married some girl of 20 at college because he was jealous of his roommate's interest in her, is in a precarious predicament, ten years later in the midst of a strong appeal to which his very nature makes him unusually susceptible.

A clergyman, of all men, should marry at leisure, knowing many women very well, and choosing one very definitely because she is irresistible. Not because, after regarding her as one of several for years without palpitation, he suddenly becomes resentful of another man's interest.

Clergymen, as a class, are very emotional men. Not deep. And not naturally "one-woman" men. The nature of their profession provides unusual opportunity for personal unhappiness if they are not satisfactorily mated. Just as a matter of sound sense, conquer your youthful jealousy, and marry only when a compelling attraction leaves you no other course. That is not theology—it's experience speaking.

And every happiness and success in your coming work.

CHILDREN TO YIELD MAP TO SEA FLIERS

SHIP PROPELLER SPLIT

Portsmouth, N. H., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—The French fliers, Coste and Bellonte, will get back the map which guided them over the Atlantic Ocean, two Portsmouth youngsters said today. Louise Stef and her brother, John, who found the map when it fell from the plane Question Mark as it sped over this city, made the statement when told Bellonte had asked, through the press, that the map be sent to him.

There was little doubt that the Stefs did not relish the prospect of giving up their treasured keepsake, but both agreed that if the fliers wanted the map it should be returned to them.

In his statement to the press Bellonte said that in return for the map he would see that the Stefs were given any souvenir of the flight they might want. He said he wanted the map for sentimental and scientific reasons.

New York, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—The injured propeller of Dieudonne Coste's transatlantic plane was sent to the hospital today.

After the Atlantic flight and a hop to Texas and back a fine split was discovered in one end of the wooden blade. Another propeller was ordered by cable from Paris and is on the way, but won't get here until Wednesday.

At first it was decided to start the 15,000-mile good will tour around the country on Monday with the propeller as it was, but today Coste changed his mind. The propeller was taken off the scarlet sesquiplane and sent to a factory for mending.

Tomorrow afternoon Coste will superintend a test of the repaired "prop" in the factory. On Sunday he will take it up for a flight test and unless it should not function properly the tour will begin Monday morning No delay is expected.

PAY TRIBUTE TO MME. NUNGESSER

Soon after it was learned in Paris that Capt. Coste and Maurice Bellonte had landed safely in New York, Mme. Coste (left) and Mme. Maurice Bellonte (right) visited Mme. Nungesser, whose son, Capt. Charles Nungesser, died in the first attempt to make a nonstop flight from Paris to New York.

Behind the Screens

With NELSON B. BELL

IF it were necessary to run a heading over this portion of today's column, it might well be "Reel Life and Real Life," because:

Billie Dove actually paints excellent oils of dog and still life.

Tennis has become the foremost sport of the stars, supplanting golf by a wide margin.

Hobart Bosworth once toured Mexico with Hermann, the Great, most noted of the world's magicians.

Loretta Young, Polly Ann Young and Sally Blane—the last named prominently cast with Douglas Fairbanks, jr., in "Little Accident," with which the Rialto will reopen next Friday, so I hear—are not triplets, but look almost exactly alike.

Dorothy Mackaill was a chorus girl at 15—somebody else divulged the age, lady, not I—in Maurice Chevalier's first show in Paris.

Walter Pidgeon wore a monocle—monogram, Jack Oakie calls it—as a young Canadian college man, but as a movie actor abandoned it.

Douglas Fairbanks, jr.—see third paragraph above—is thought an art poser by some, but was a professional artist before he made his first movie.

Directors get extras to swallow their fear—same as Adam's apple—and take chances by promising to put them in close-ups.

Cecil B. DeMille's youngest daughter, Katherine, is acting under the name of Kay Marsh. An older daughter drove a chariot in "The Ten Commandments."

Warner Oland spent the summer on his island off the coast of Massachusetts.

Lois Moran, just 21, writes entertaining sketches and poems.

Theda Bara, off the screen for six years or so, still receives approximately 200 fan letters a week.

"Tess of the D'Urbervilles" was made in 1917 for a total cost of about $10,000 and seven years later was remade with Mary Pickford as the star, at which time the story rights alone cost $50,000.

Director Roy Del Ruth never sees his pictures in their completed form and neither can I, some of them.

Noah Beery will not make personal appearances or talk over the radio. Reason—stage fright.

There are three generations in the home of Claudia Dell, former "Follies" girl who just closed a local engagement with Al Jolson in "Big Boy," at the Metropolitan. She lives with her mother and grandmother.

William von Brinken, who held the rank of baron in Germany before the collapse of the Kaiser's government, portrays a comedy baron in "A Royal Flush," a two-reeler.

Nick Stuart's—Nick, you know, is Mr. Sue Carol—first contact with motion pictures occurred when, as an errand boy for a sporting goods store, he delivered a box of blank cartridges to Tom Mix.

Addie McPhail has played only bride roles since she originated the character of "Mrs. Newlywed" in a comedy series four years ago.

And if you are not one who faints at the mention of reproducing apparatus, 137 different sound devices are used to provide noises for the Aesop's Fables cartoon comedies.

Contrary to expectations, and by grace of one of those eleventh-hour changes of mind and booking on the part of the New York office, the Four Marx Brothers are not occupying the screen as the current attraction at Loew's Columbia Theater.

So enthusiastic was public clamor for further opportunity to view Greta Garbo tempting the clergy in "Romance," that that excellent picturization of the stage play continues a third week on F street.

To make everything even, "Monte Carlo," which by every rule of custom should have been held over at the RKO-Keith Theater, was taken off last night.

There evidently needs to be a little tightening of the liaison between Mr. George R. Bilson, of the advertising department of First National Pictures, and his home office.

Early in the week, when Mr. Bilson, in company with Mr. Ewing, of the local Warner offices, visited the glittering suite shared by Mr. Daly and me, he emphasized the fact that today's presentation of "Scarlet Pages," at the Metropolitan, was to mark the world premiere of the subject chosen to introduce Elsie Ferguson as a star of the talking screen. Not only did he emphasize it; he bore down on it with everything he had—no less. And he emblazoned the line in his ads.

So on Thursday it appeared in this column as what I presumed to be a fact. Now I learn from divers and sundry who saw it there that "Scarlet Pages" was last week's attraction at the Globe Theater in Atlantic City.

Probably what Mr. Bilson meant was that today's showing is the world premiere for Washington only!

If you were not there in person, you will be interested in the arrival in Washington of Coste and Bellonte for their audience with President Hoover, shown in the news reels for the new week. As a matter of fact, you will probably enjoy it even if you were there.

And Gallant Fox wins that driving finish by a nose, too.

If you have wondered what became of the fan who used to read the subtitles aloud, he now sits back of me at every performance tapping the back of my chair with his toe in time with the music. The irritating so-and so!

ATLANTA FILES SUIT ON CENSUS REPORT

City Wants Outlying Towns Recently Annexed to Be Included in Figures.

MANDAMUS WRIT ASKED

Civic pride came to the forefront yesterday in an unusual manner when the City of Atlanta, Ga., a number of business enterprises and a business man filed suit in the District of Columbia Supreme Court, seeking a writ of mandamus to compel W. M. Steuart, Director of the Census, to publish the city's population as 360,692, instead of 270,367.

Immediately afterward Justice Frederick L. Siddons signed a formal order requiring Mr. Steuart to show cause September 19 why the writ of mandamus should not be issued. It was understood that a considerable fight will be made by other Southern cities to prevent Atlanta from obtaining the figure of population it seeks. Among cities mentioned as possible objectors are Houston, Tex., and Memphis, Tenn.

The petition sets out that the Director of Census has failed and refuses to give Atlanta credit for the population of several suburbs, which it recently annexed. It points out that Mr. Steuart in bulletins already published gives the population of the municipality as 270,367—the figures for the city proper. This is not correct, Atlanta and Atlantans claim, declaring that the six adjoining municipalities were recently annexed and incorporated into the City of Atlanta and that their combined population of 90,325 should be added to that of Atlanta proper.

Suburban cities recently annexed and incorporated are listed as: College Park, Decatur, East Point, Hapeville, Avondale Estates and a borough which was taken into the city before it had been incorporated as a distinct community.

In addition to the City of Atlanta plaintiffs in the action are the Georgian Co., publishers of the Atlanta Georgian; the Atlanta Journal Co., publishers of the Atlanta Journal; the Constitution Co., publishers of the Atlanta Constitution; Hotel Winecoff, Hotel Ansley, Hotel Henry Grady, Hotel Piedmont, Robert Fulton Hotel, the Haverty Furniture Co., and Ivan Allen, who is designated as the holder of considerable real estate.

The petition recites that "the Director of the Census is about to publish a list of cities of the United States, including Atlanta, in the order of their population. Mr. Steuart threatens to and will, unless a writ of mandamus is issued, publish the population of Atlanta as 270,367, which is the population of the single borough of Atlanta, and does not include the population of any of the other boroughs included within the corporate limits of Atlanta. He further threatens to publish the populations of the other boroughs as though they were separate citizens," though they were separate cities," work irreparable harm. They point out that Atlanta will lose its standing as one of the leading cities of the south and that as a result business conditions will be damaged and real estate values decreased.

Attorney C. Bascom Slemp, Louis Titus, Ralph B. Flaherty and James L. Mayson appeared for the petitioners.

MISS MYSTERIOUS - - - By Larry Lawrence

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

A co-ed at the State university, affectionately known as Babe, gets a letter from her guardian, Clement Forseith, of Seattle, Wash., saying he has lost all her money and is going to commit suicide. He also says that her real name is not Thelma Towsley, as she has always believed. But he gives no further clew to her identity. She confides to a friend, Violet Rimmel. A handsome young man from the West Coast appears and says he knows of her trouble and proposes that she marry him as a way out. A telegram warns her against this man, who uses the name Morgan. At a fraternity dance Pete Jones, Milwaukee senior, proposes. Babe turns him down. He says he has seen suspicious characters following her. The same night she is kidnaped. Pete rescues her from the kidnapers, takes her to his father's summer home. The captured kidnapers escape and Babe and Pete have to flee from them. They spend the night in hiding in a small shack. Getting back to Milwaukee the next day, Babe sends Pete back to school, saying that she must go West and fight to learn her real name, but she decides to stay in Milwaukee and get a job. She learns that her room at college has been robbed and two old brooches taken. After days of search she fails to land a job. Coming into the lobby of the hotel where she is staying under the name of Theodora Thomas, she is seen by a man who offers her a strange job. She accepts. They go to a rambling resort and the man, who uses the name Mac, tells her to vamp a man he indicates. The man is Morgan. She goes to his apartment and he says that Forseith is not dead. Morgan then makes violent love to Babe and she accidentally shoots him. She is found in his apartment by Mac, who searches the room and finds the brooches that were stolen from Babe. Morgan disappears and Mac tells Babe that he is searching for a murderer. By comparing notes they decide it is Forseith and they are certain that it was Forseith who had her kidnaped. Babe decides to get her picture in the papers as a lure to Forseith. She feigns amnesia and is taken to the Emergency Hospital for mental observation. Gus, leader of the kidnapers, learns this and drives to the hideout of a Chicago gangster to get Forseith, known as The Duke. Mac is waiting outside the hospital to protect Babe when he suddenly realizes that he is in love with her. An automobile draws up.

CHAPTER XIV.

Mac pulled his hat down over his eyes. "If it is the man I want he may recognize me," he thought. "It has been years since he has seen me, but he might remember my face."

The street lights were not very bright. Moving cautiously toward the car, he saw a dignified looking man step out of it. Instinctively Mac reached into his coat pocket. It was his man. No mistake about it. Mac took a firm grip on the weapon. He held it so he could shoot through the coat if need be. Forseith was walking rapidly toward Wisconsin avenue. Evidently he meant to enter the building from that side. He had not turned around, so Mac stopped long enough to get a good picture of the car in his mind. It was a sedan of a high priced make, but several years old. It bore an Illinois license plate. Mac repeated the number on the plate several times. Then he saw that he could cut across the broad lawn and head the man off.

"I could race up and put a bullet in him now," the thought seeped into his mind. "Perhaps that would be the best way, after all. It would protect Babe. He was already calling her Babe to himself. A silly name, he mused, and then wondered why he should think of such trivial things while matters of life and death were in the making.

But would it protect her? Wouldn't it be worse? It would be a cowardly act to shoot a man down without warning. It was not what he had planned all these years. No, it was not the thing to do. Besides, Babe. What would happen to her? Mac was angry at himself for having thought of killing the man. He had to do something and do it quickly. Perhaps he had better race across the lawn, smash him in the face and so stop him.

As this plan presented itself he began to like it. Maybe with luck he could drag his victim away with him. He started to cut across the lawn, still covered with a light snow, when he was conscious that some one was following him. He turned to see Gus not far behind. This ugly, brutish man, he noticed, also has his right hand in a coat pocket.

Mac slowed his pace and Gus also slowed up. By this time the Duke had reached the entrance and was stepping in. Mac followed. He waited a moment inside the hall to see if the big man would enter. He did not.

Mac Discovers Forseith.

The Duke went to the information desk and Mac followed. He waited while the Duke talked to the nurse on duty.

"I am Charles Francis," he heard him say.

"Always uses C. F. for initials," the thought flashed into Mac's consciousness. "Babe said the man was Clement Forseith. I knew him as Charles Frankle and now he says he is Charles Francis. It is a habit of crooks to use the same initial in their aliases, I have heard," he mused.

Forseith, at the desk, was talking in a well modulated, cultivated voice, a voice that sounded highly respectable unless one were a keen analyst. To such a person it was a little too oleaginous.

"I am from Denver and just got to Milwaukee this afternoon, when I was terribly distressed at seeing the picture of my niece in the paper. I was shocked to learn that she had suffered from a lapse of memory. Very unfortunate, very unfortunate. We all thought that she had been completely cured.

"I am very anxious, of course, to see her at once and take her to a sanatorium. We would all feel very grateful to you and to the hospital if I could take her away with me now."

The girl at the desk had pushed a button. As soon as the Duke stopped speaking she snapped, "I don't know whether you can see the girl or not. If you will wait just a few moments I'll find out." His smooth talk hadn't fooled her.

"Yes, indeed," the Duke said, and stepped aside, almost bumping into Mac who, in his eagerness to hear all, had edged close. Mac saw that the Duke had inspected him hastily and had immediately attempted to assume a haughty, snobbish air as if he didn't know there was any one else within a mile.

The girl was looking straight at him now and Mac knew he would have to do some quick thinking. "Did you wish to see somebody?" the nurse shot at him.

"Well, I hope I don't have to see any one," Mac said loud enough that the Duke, who was now settled in a chair with his back to a wall and some distance from the desk, could easily hear.

Looking for a Friend.

"No, I hope I don't. But the truth is I am worried about a friend of mine. He has disappeared and I thought I would make the rounds of the hospitals. I thought he might have been hit by an automobile."

"What's his name?" the nurse demanded. "I'll see if we've got him here."

"His name is Richard Smythe." The nurse got out the entry book and ran her finger down the list. It took a little time and of course that was what Mac was playing for.

"No Smythe brought in today," she said.

"Well, he's been missing for three days."

"We wouldn't have him that long. This is an emergency hospital," the girl said, but she turned the pages and started looking for the name.

While she was leafing through the book an intern in a stiffly starched white coat came down the steps toward her desk. The nurse indicated the Duke with a nod of her head and the intern went up to the seated man.

"What is it?" he asked.

The Duke had to tell his story again. The intern nodded and led the way to the elevators. Mac guessed rightly that he was taking him to the room where Babe was held, practically a prisoner. An urge to follow gripped Mac, but his judgment told him he had better stall and not make any false moves. He was glad that he had remained, for he saw the nurse pick up a phone and, low as her voice was, he could distinguish enough of her conversation to know she was telling some one at police headquarters that a man was asking to see the mystery girl.

Mac didn't know whether to be pleased or displeased at this information, yet he reasoned, rightly, the man would not be able to carry her off bodily without the police knowing where she was taken. Maybe they would serve as his allies, after all. Still, he distrusted police. Had the police not let this same man escape years ago, and had they not let him go on being a crook, perhaps a killer again, for all these years?

It was not the time now to turn this man over to them anyhow, not the time and, certainly, not the place. He decided to wait outside watching the car and, if Babe were brought down by Forseith, to shoot it out with him. The nurse had looked through the book thoroughly. He had no more reason to wait, so he thanked her and walked away.

Gus was waiting not far from the door. Mac moved past him as if he did not exist, walked to Wisconsin avenue and crossed over to the big clubhouse there. He figured that would serve as a blind. Hundreds of couples were streaming into the club. It was simple to get lost in that group and come right out again. He did this and, seeing an empty taxi halted by the red light, he got in and told the driver to swing around the block in a hurry and then slow up as he passed the hospital.

Babe Claimed by the Duke.

It didn't take long, but during the drive he feared Babe might be taken away. Mac was happy to see the car with the Illinois license still waiting on Twenty-fourth street when his cab had completed the turn.

"Swing over and park behind that car," he ordered. Once there, he said, "I'm waiting for a friend. I'll just sit in the cab."

At this moment in the hospital Babe was shouting, "No, no. He's not my uncle. I know he's not my uncle," while a terribly interested young doctor looked on and a rather bored but alert detective studied Babe and the elegantly attired man.

The Duke turned to the doctor, rather than the detective, to make his plea. "You see, it is as I said. She never recognizes one of her family when suffering from these very unfortunate spells.

"I think the thing to do is to have her come with me right now. I'll rush her to the best sanatorium here, where she can have every care, and I'll send for her parents."

The detective answered for the doctor. "The young lady will have good care here. You send for her parents and they can see her here."

The Duke saw that he was stopped for the time being. "I'll get her parents here right away," he said as he turned to go. Walking out of the hospital, he passed Gus as if he did not recognize him but went to the parked car.

When Gus followed and got into the driver's seat the Duke let out a string of oaths at him. "You blankety blank fool," he said. "What were you doing hanging around the door. The dicks may have spotted your mug. No use giving them two leads to work on. And you look like a burglar. It stands out all over you."

"Hey, wait a minute, Duke," Gus stuck in. "I was hanging around there to protect you. There was a guy looked like he was trailing you. He had a rod on him, too."

The Following Taxicab.

"Oh, that sap. I knew he was behind me. I was all set for him. You were just as obvious as a policeman." The Duke was very angry that he had failed to walk away with Babe and it was a relief for him to open up with the language he could use so well when he sloughed his cultured manner.

The car pulled out and a taxi followed. "I suppose you don't know that the chump is following us, but he is," the Duke growled at Gus. "Drive slow so he can't fail to keep up. I would like to get a better look at him. I've seen that face before, somewhere—I wonder where."

The taxi followed for a few blocks and then Mac rapped on the window and ordered, "Let it go. Turn off anywhere and then drive downtown."

As he got out downtown he was figuratively kicking himself all the way to his hotel. "I'm a coward or a fool," he kept telling himself. "I must be getting soft. I saw him and did nothing. I'm letting love for a slip of a girl 10 years younger than myself make me overcautious." His thoughts were running in this channel for an hour before he decided that after all Babe was perfectly safe in the hospital for the night and then he went to bed to dream of cottages here and there, and in each cottage the lovely Babe was always present.

Babe lay in her white cot wondering how long she could fool the doctors, wondering whether she were really fooling them at all or not, and wondering what Mac was doing. It seemed that sleep would not come to her. Her mind leaped from one problem to another and, as it had been doing for the last few nights, always involved itself in an argument over Pete and Mac. When at last she dropped off to sleep she dreamed she was being carried away by a man with gray hair, a very fashionably dressed man who had an oily tongue. And first Mac would come to the rescue and fail and then Pete would come charging down, like a knight of old out of a story book, and he would rescue her from the dragon with gray hair and slippery tongue. Then suddenly she would be back in the claws of the dragon and it was Mac who was racing to the rescue.

An overstimulated mind plays queer tricks on a sleeper.

Pete was dreaming, too. His roommate had been kidding him about Violet Rimmel. "Why are you hanging around that campus queen? Don't you know you don't stand a chance?"

Pete had taken the kidding without objection. He was willing to have it thought that he was paying a little court at the shrine of the popular Violet, rather glad to have his roommate fooled about the true state of affairs. But just before he had dozed off he realized that the roommate was not greatly fooled, for he asked, "Can't Violet give you any news about Babe?"

"Oh shut up and let me sleep," Pete said. And when he dreamed he was carrying water for Babe, endless buckets of water, and Babe was drinking from each, a dainty sip, and thanking him, and he seemed to be happy in the role of slave.

Each of these three persons whose lives seemed to have suddenly drawn together into a tangled knot awakened with the feeling that a crisis was bearing down upon him.

Pete had hardly finished dressing when one of the boys came running in with the Milwaukee paper. "Hey, Pete. Babe's picture is here. She must have gone off her nut." Pete grabbed the paper, read the caption and sank back on the bed. But he was up in an instant.

Health Better Than Riches

"Before I was married, my mother and sister and I did all the farming work on a 64-acre farm for eleven years. I married a farmer and now in addition to my housework and the care of my children I help him with the outside work on our farm. After my last child was born, I began to suffer as many women do. Our family doctor gave me medicine but no results. One day he told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did and now I am a new woman and I know that good health is better than riches."—Mrs. Clyde I. Sherman, R. #1, Lickdale, Pennsylvania.

STOCKS AGAIN LOSE; STRONG START FAILS

Many Leaders Drop 1 to 2 Points; Newton Steel Is Able to Gain 4.

WHEAT AND CORN SLUMP

New York, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Stocks ran into a bear drive in the last half hour of today's market and earlier gains of a point or two were exchanged for net losses of about the same extent in the active shares.

Reduction of the short interest during the recent advances had impaired the technical position and the bulls, finding that little support was at hand from covering operations or from public participation, were apparently content to stand aside. Total sales of 1,905,000 shares were larger than yesterday's, but considerably under the higher totals of earlier in the week when prices were rising.

Movements up to noon were largely indecisive. Buying of the utility and specialty stocks stimulated activity and by early afternoon the market had reached its highest levels of the day. Weakness of wheat, corn and cotton helped set the stage for the late selling, which assumed some vigor. A rally near the close lacked strength and failed to hold.

Wheat Futures Decline.

September wheat broke to 80¾ cents a bushel, a new low for the season, and failed to make much of a recovery, closing 1½ off. Other futures lost nearly a cent. Weakness in Liverpool and renewed Russian offerings on foreign markets were factors in the decline. Corn was heavy, 1¾ to 2½ cents net lower, reflecting favorable Nebraska crop advices and lower cash markets. Cotton finished with net losses of 19 to 33 points, equivalent to 95 cents to $1.65 a bale.

The merchandising group on the big board was unsettled by Sears Roebuck's sales report for the four weeks ended September 10. This showed a decline of 14.1 per cent from the same period of 1929 and although there was a 10.6 per cent rise over the previous interval this seasonal improvement contrasted with a 17.6 per cent gain for the corresponding four weeks a year ago. On the other hand, Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea's August sales set a new high for that month.

Copper shares were in supply after publication of the statistics on refined stocks at hand September 1, revealing an increase of 25,649 tons to a total of 347,688 tons, or more than three times the aggregate for the same date last year. Consumers of the red metal, it was said, are virtually out of the market and producers who are still quoting 11 cents a pound are doing virtually no business.

Trade Reviews Optimistic.

The weekly trade reviews said there had been further gains in several lines. Dun's found it possible to take "a more hopeful view of the outlook," adding that this better feeling was supported by "expectations of improvement to come and some tangible instances of present gains." According to Bradstreet's, industry is holding "most of the gains previously indicated and there has been additional improvement in wholesale purchasing."

Several of the market's leading stocks came out of their recent narrow ranges with losses of 1 to 2 points. Among them were American Can, American Telephone, General Electric, Westinghouse Electric, Atchison, Union Pacific and Public Service of New Jersey. A. M. Byers, Foster Wheeler and Columbian Carbon lost 3 to 4. Pennsylvania Railroad and Sears Roebuck yielded a point. U. S. Steel, after selling 1¼ higher on the rally, broke a point net lower and closed with a loss of ½, which was the extent of General Motors' decline.

Newton Steel was again a strong feature, rallying 6 points on buying accompanied by reports that another steel company controlled by the Eaton-Otis interests was seeking its acquisition. The stock's net gain was 4 points. Autostrop Safety Razor was active and Wall street revived talk of a merger of that concern with Gillette.

Foreign exchanges turned heavy. Sterling cables sagged ¼ cent and the German mark eased to a new 1930 low at 23.81½ cents for cables.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Grain prices in Chicago were struck down today by an epidemic of selling fever which affected every major grain marvest in the world. The ailment left all grains weak, with little strength left for rallies. Selling was persistent throughout the session here, but it came mostly in small lots. Houses with connections in Canada and foreign countries were the most prominent venders of wheat in Chicago, most of which was construed as hedging against actual purchases of wheat. All deliveries of wheat in Chicago sounded new depths as they plunged into the lowest levels of the season. Winnipeg wheat prices were even lower than Chicago, and Liverpool prices also registered new lows. Support for the market, such as it was, came mainly from commission houses with standing orders to buy at various fixed levels as the market went down. Corn was afflicted with the same ailments which sent wheat crashing down and likewise was without support.

Wheat closed lower at ⅝ to 1¼ cents net lower than yesterday's final quotations. Corn finished at almost the bottom prices of the day, 1¾ to 2⅜ cents down; oats, ¾ to 1¼ off; rye, ¾ to 1⅞ cents lower, and provisions ranged from unchanged to a decline of 10 cents.

Wheat prices made only slight recovery from the lowest prices touched. Trade was quiet. A cable from Liverpool said a big business was being done in Canadian wheat abroad, but that United States hard winters were neglected. Advices from the Atlantic seaboard intimated that export business on this side was light and slow.

Liverpool showed extreme weakness early, largely because Russia has renewed offers of large quantities of cheap wheat. Scattered liquidation was in evidence on the downward course of prices. Australia also was reported to be offering excellent quality wheat at low prices, anxious to dispose of it before the new crop comes along.

Corn was weak from the start, with deferred deliveries breaking nearly 3 cents a bushel from yesterday's close. Stop-loss orders were uncovered during the decline, but there was a lack of aggressive buying support. Many traders who have been buying of late showed a marked lack of enthusiasm for that side of the market today. Little attention was paid to crop reports, and selling of corn against purchases of wheat to close spread transactions also was a depressing factor. May corn went to a discount under May wheat today, compared with a fractional premium yesterday. Country offerings to arrive were small and shipping demand only fair.

Oats sank with wheat and corn and because of scattered liquidation. Rye showed resistance to pressure and did not fully reflect the decline in wheat.

Provisions averaged lower, sympathizing with grain weakness and because of sellers.

CONVERTIBLE BONDS ARE ACTIVELY SOLD

MONEY AT 1½ PER CENT.

New York, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Inquiry for high grade bonds was a little more active today, as money rates pointed downward, with the piling up of funds at the banks in preparation for the September 15 Treasury financing and income tax payments.

This was counterbalanced by selling of the convertibles, and some of the more speculative issues, in sympathy with stocks, however, and possibly by liquidation to meet the quarterly tax payments, so that prices in the aggregate were about unchanged at the finish. The day's transfers aggregated $8,318,000 par value.

Call money was decidedly the most plentiful of any time this week, but the official rate was maintained at 2½ per cent, money in the outside market was freely offered at 1½ per cent, the turnover in funds on Monday is expected to amount to some $1,250,000,000, and if the Government makes a substantial overdraft at the Federal Reserve, the money market may be flooded for several days.

Rails Prove Active.

Rails were the most active features of the domestic liens. With the interest payment on the St. Paul adjustment 5s settled, the St. Paul issues were active and firm. The 4¾s sold up ½ to a new high, and the 5s of 1957 gained ¼. The adjustment 5s were unchanged at 54¼ at the close.

The Seaboard Air Line issues, however, were distinctly heavy; this carrier is said not to be earning its fixed charges, but sponsors of the latest reorganization hope that some provision can be made. The refunding 4s dropped 4¾ points to the year's low at 40. Convertibles generally eased with stocks. Baltimore & Ohio convertible 4½s, and Rock Island convertible 4½s were off minor fractions. Most of the high grade liens were steady to firm, some at new highs.

American Cyanamid Loses.

In the industrials, the American Cyanamid 5s lost a point on the omission of dividends on the class A and B stocks. American Metals 5½s eased a little, perhaps reflecting the unfavorable copper statistics as reported for August.

Several utility issues were in good demand. Among the less active Keystone Telephone 5s rose nearly 4 points to a new high at 90. Niagara Falls Power 6s rose 2¾ to a new peak, and Utah Power & Light 5s rose ¾ to touch 98, a new peak. Abitibi 5s and American & Foreign Power 5s were firm. In the oils, Shell Union 5s fell back close to the year's low.

U. S. Government issues attracted the most active inquiry of the week, and the Liberty 4¼s reached new highs. The foreign dollar bonds were fairly active, particularly Latin Americans, but trends were somewhat irregular. The advance in the Argentine 6s was interrupted by profit taking, but the 5s moved up a point. The Brazilian issues rallied substantially. High grade Europeans were in fair demand, and showed little change.

TILDEN LOSES TITLE, BOWING TO DOEG IN U. S. SINGLES; NATS BEAT CHISOX, 8-7; SARAZEN AND ARMOUR SURVIVE

CHICAGO'S TYING RUN IS CUT OFF AT PLATE BY CRONIN'S THROW

Shortstop Leads in Attack With Four Safe Hits.

Marberry Is Credited With Victory Despite His Rout.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—A lead of eight runs, compiled through the medium of sound hitting and four very ludicrous errors by the opposition in the early innings, proved barely sufficient this afternoon to permit the Nationals to nose out the Chicago White Sox, 8 to 7, in the first contest of their four-game series.

The victory, while the margin is too great to make the fact of more than statistical interest, permitted the Naationals to move to within 6½ games of the idle and league-leading Athletics, and to intrench themselves more firmly in second place over the Yankees.

White Sox Outhit Nationals.

The White Sox, after a feeble start against the effective hurler that the veteran Fred Marberry was in the early going, outhit the winners, getting sixteen hits to the Nats' twelve, and came on with a rush in the late innings that only gilt-edged support prevented from being disastrous for the Nats.

Washington was away to an early start, efficiently turning two hits and a White Sox error into one run in the first inning and getting six more hits and taking advantage of another error to score five more tallies in the second. Midway of the second session Tommy Thomas, the right-hander who had started on the mound for the Sox, yielded his position to the southpaw, Garland Braxton, and Braxton proved most effective until the seventh. In that inning two hits and two more White Sox errors gave the Nats two more runs and an eight-run lead.

Marberry weakened in the seventh to permit the White Sox to shove five runs across the plate, and the losers got five hits and two more runs off Marberry, Brown and Hadley in the eighth. Walsh turned the Nats back hitless in the eighth and Moore gave them only one hit and no runs in the ninth, but Hadley slipped through a hectic ninth inning unscathed to pull the Nats through to victory.

Marberry's Eleventh Victory In Succession.

The victory was Marberry's eleventh straight and his fifteenth of the season, but much of the credit belongs to Cronin, Myer and Rice. Cronin was effective on the offense, getting four singles and a walk on his five trips to the plate, and had seven assists. Outstanding were his nipping of Tate's attempted steal of second that ended the dangerous eighth inning, and his throwing out of Watwood at the plate in the ninth to end the game with what would have been the tying run.

Rice singled to start the Washington scoring in the first inning, going around to third on Ryan's bad throw to first and coming home on Cronin's single to left field.

Dave Harris doubled to left field to open the second, got to third on Hayes' fly and after Spencer had fanned, came home on Marberry's single to left field. Myer's double to right sent Marberry to third and Tommy Thomas to the showers, Braxton replacing him. Rice doubled to center on the first ball pitched to score Marberry and Myer and then rode home on Manush's single to right field. Cronin got a single to left that sent Manush to third and, when Cissell muffed the throw from the outfield, Manush scored, Cronin being caught at second as he endeavored to take advantage of the confusion by going down.

Marberry Weakens in Seventh.

Braxton tightened after that and Myer's scratch single over first base was the only hit he yielded up to the seventh. Rice walked with one down to start the seventh. Manush forcing him. Cronin singled to right and Jolley let the ball get through him, Manush scoring and Cronin carrying on to third. Crouse let a pitch get past him and then threw down to third as Cronin started home. The ball hit Cronin in the back and the Nat shortstop came before Braxton tightened to survive the inning without further difficulty.

Marberry had earned his day's wage most satisfactorily by holding the White Sox to five scattered hits over the first six innings, but with one Sensational Jockey Brings String to 16 for Meet.

Special to The Washington Post.

MARLBORO RACE TRACK, Sept. 12.—A new world's consecutive riding record of nine victories was established here today when Albert Adams, a 17-year-old lad of Baltimore, kicked Wandering Jim, owned by Jim Bean, of Washington, home ahead of five other 2-year-olds in the day's 5½-furlong opener.

Adams began his streak in the sixth race on Wednesday when he booted R. A. Johnson's Malcolm home to pay $5.80. He drove James Arthur's Guarany home in the next race at odds of $6.

$5 Parlay Would Have Netted $32,459.40.

Yesterday Adams had six mounts as follows: J. W. Bean's Wandering Jim, $4.50; M. C. Cunningham's Southland Chief, $18.90; Tommy Francis' West Drift, $8.00; Mrs. S. Paradise's Colonel Seth, $7.40; R. Paradise's High Dell, $7.50, and F. C. Frisbie's Overlook, $6.30, to tie the former world's record established by Walter Miller in 1906 and equaled in 1923 by Ivan Parke.

As Wandering Jim paid his backers $3.60 today, a $5 straight wager on all of Adams' mounts since he started his sensational riding streak, would show a profit of $32,459.40. Of course, it would be impossible to make such a parlay anywhere on a half-mile track, still the statisticians got a thrill out of figuring just how much it would have been possible to win on Adams' nine consecutive victories.

Adams will be astride the following horses on tomorrow's program, the fifth and final one of the Southern Maryland Agricultural Fair Association's fall meeting:

First race—Bounder. Second race—Bucalphus. Third race—Elusagon. Fourth race—Nothing as yet, probably Ruban Rouge. Fifth race—Let Alone. Sixth race—Guarny. Seventh race—Rock Queen.

Wandering Jim was away slowly, but was kept in on the rail until straightened out on the backstretch, where he went up fast to be on even terms with Pencil, the pacemaker, at the turn for home. It was nip and tuck between Wandering Jim and Pencil down to the wire, with the former winning by a nose. A similar distance back came Cookie G.

Adams' Streak Snapped In Second.

James A. Latane and Jovis Spencer, of Baltimore, members of the Maryland racing committee, came down to watch Adams perform. They were both mighty well pleased at seeing a Maryland lad establish a new world's record.

R. Wolverton proved the lad who put an end to A. Adams' winning streak when he drove Primlin, owned by Mrs. William Seabridge, of Baltimore, home ahead of Bounder, one that was ridden by Adams. Third money went to Gallopette.

Wolverton broke Primlin on top of the field of seven and, although Bounder got to within a half length of the winner on the back stretch, Wolverton gave his mount a sound

VETERAN PROS PLAY TODAY IN FINALS OF P. G. A. TOURNAMENT

Kirkwood Falls Victim of Gene by 5 Up and 4.

Former District Pro Beats Lacey After 36-Hole Fray.

By BRIAN BELL.

FLUSHING, N. Y., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Gene Sarazen and Tommy Armour, two seasoned golf professionals, who oddly enough never have met in match play competition, will go out tomorrow to decide possession of the Professional Golfers Association championship.

From a field of 63 crack pros starting the championship play Monday only the stocky, dark American of Italian parentage and the prematurely gray Scot are left.

Sarazen advanced to the final round by defeating Joe Kirkwood, who thrills golf galleries by sensational trick shots, his winning margin being 5 up and 4 to play. Armour had a sterner struggle in winning his chance at the championship. He had to go the full 36 holes to eliminate Charley Lacey, young British pro of the Pine Valley Club, Clementon, N. J., 1 up.

Armour's Poor Putting Prolongs Match.

The Scot's putting touch failed him at the last minute and his young opponent took a new lease on life when he seemed to be definitely out of it. Tommy used up three putts at the thirty-fourth and three more at the thirty-fifth, and Lacey was only 1 down with 1 to play when Armour had been within a short putt of winning 3 and 2.

Sarazen played better than par golf all day, and although Kirkwood struggled gamely through the first 22 holes to keep the match level, he slumped at the close. Sarazen, fighting to shake off the jinx supposed to attach to a home pro winning a championship on his own course, was 3 under even 4s and a shot under par for his day's play.

Sarazen has twice won the P. G. A. championship, first in 1922 when he was also open champion, and again in 1923. He first captured the title at Oakmont when he defeated Emmett French, 4 up and 3 to play, and repeated at Pelham at the expense of Walter Hagen in a great 38-hole match. Armour won the open championship in 1927 and now holds the Canadian open title.

Lacey All-Even After First Nine Holes.

Armour and Lacey gave indications early in the day that their match would be a close one. They were even at nine holes and although Lacey was up only once, when he won the thirteenth hole with a birdie 3, he kept in striking distance by coming back every time he was in danger of being wiped out. Armour had a two-hole advantage at the luncheon intermission and increased it to four at the first two holes in the afternoon.

Lacey then recovered some of the lost ground with birdies at the third and fifth holes and was still 2 down at the three-quarter marker. He drew within a hole of his opponent by winning the twenty-eighth when Armour was stymied, but knocked Tommy's ball in for a birdie 3 at the twenty-ninth when he was the stymie victim.

The British youngster won the thirty-first and seemed about to stage a real come-back, but the Scot holed a birdie 2 at the 209-yard thirty-second. Lacey wasted two shots in a trap at the thirty-third and when Armour had a 4-foot putt for a half in 5s at the thirty-fourth, the match seemed to be over. Tommy missed, however, and instead of winning 3 and 2, was dormie 2. Tammy had some more bad shots in his putter and Lacey won the thirty-fifth with a 5 to a 6.

This brought the match to the

Ruth Pounds No. 46; Tigers Beat Yanks, 5-4

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—A double by Charley Gehringer, his third hit of the game, and a single by Dale Alexander with two out in the ninth today gave the Tigers a run that beat the New York Yankees, 5 to 4, in the opener of a five-game series. The defeat cost the Yankees their last chance to take the American League pennant. The best they can do now is to finish a half game behind the Philadelphia Athletics, who were idle today.

Ruth kept pace in his home-run race with Hack Wilson by hitting his forty-sixth home run of the season, with the bases empty, in the second inning. He remained three homers behind the Chicagoan.

Shamrock V, Enterprise On Edge

First Test for America's Cup Booked for Today.

Sir Thomas Lipton Starts Fifth Try for Trophy.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Shamrock V and Enterprise, the house of Lipton and the house of Vanderbilt; British seafaring skill and American nautical ingenuity; emerald-hued sentiment and white-hulled efficiency.

They comprise the apparent ingredients of the naval classic of the year—the sailing race for America's Cup, most prized of the world's yachting trophies, in the series starting tomorrow 9 miles southeast of Brenton Reef lightship.

Race Probably Lipton's Last Bid.

Sticking closely to the facts, it's a race between Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock V, flying the burgee of the Royal Ulster Yacht Club of Belfast, Ireland, and the Vanderbilt-Aldrich syndicate's Enterprise, chosen representative of the cupholding New York Yacht Club, whose roster of members reads like a substantial portion of Who's Who in America.

Actually, and from the viewpoint of the popular interest manifested, the race represents probably the last bid of the gallant old Irish baronet, a prince among sportsmen, to lift the "old mug" that he has cherished possession of in vain since Shamrock I went down to defeat before the fast-flying Columbia in 1899.

This is the fourteenth renewal of the British-American yachting rivalry that sprang from the victory of the schooner America around the Isle of Wight in 1851 the fifth successive British challenge sponsored by the 80-year-old tea merchant and former Glasgow grocery storekeeper who has spent millions in one of the most spectacular sporting quests of all time.

Popular Hopes Are With Challenger.

"Will he win?"

That's the question they were debating tonight along Newport's narrow, old-fashioned streets, in the mansions of aristocratic America lining the rocky shores of the bay and among the old salts who have spent their lives on the sea.

The answer is an almost universal expression of sentimental support for "Old Tommy" and the fifth of his famous line of Shamrocks. Popular hopes are with the challenger. Conviction, whenever it is candidly expressed, favors the sleek American defender Enterprise, a 2-to-1 favorite in the betting and unquestionably the finest racing yacht this country has ever produced.

They are hoping for a "good blow" tomorrow, and they probably will have it unless there is a marked switch in the prevailing weather of the past week. Brisk southwesterly winds kicked up the surface of the sea this morning. The breeze dropped off from around 25 to 15 miles by late afternoon and showed signs of shifting to the eastward quarter, with the possibility of stormy weather by the time the warning signal is hoisted at 10:30 a. m. (Eastern standard time) for the start of the first race.

Light Wind to Better Shamrock's Chances.

The lighter the blow, however, the better the chances of Shamrock V, in the opinion of the English experts who have sized up the merits of the two rivals. The challenger admittedly is a faster sloop before the wind but not so good as Enterprise against the wind.

Since the first and subsequent odd-numbered races will be on a windward and leeward basis, 15 miles each way, the outcome is expected to hinge on whether Skipper Harold S. Vanderbilt can gain enough ad-

10,000 WATCH YOUTH DEFEAT CHAMPION IN TWO-HOUR STRUGGLE

"Big Bill," Limping, 10-8, 6-3, 3-6, 12-10 Victim in Fray.

Shields Beats Wood to Gain Place in Finals Today.

By TED VOSBURGH.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Young America caught up with the big Bill Tilden at last this afternoon. The 37-year-old champion went down to a surprising defeat at the hands of a young California giant, 16 years his junior, Johnny Doeg, in a match that had 10,000 fans on the edge of the seats for two solid hours.

By scores of 10—8, 6—3, 3—6, 12—10, the powerful Doeg turned back the still mighty Tilden in the semi-final round of the national tennis championship, and tomorrow he will clash with a 19-year-old rival from the East.

Finalists Youngest in 49 Years' History.

Big, strapping Frank Shields, of New York, playing wonderful tennis, downed a fellow New Yorker, Sidney Wood, in the first of the semifinals, 6—2, 6—3, 4—6, 6—3, and Doeg's remarkable victory gave this classic tournament two of the youngest finalists in its 49 years' history.

Even though beaten, the one and only Tilden brought thunderous applause from the packed stands as he battled with never-failing courage against a younger man, who was playing the tennis of his life.

When sorely pressed Big Bill again and again pulled seemingly miraculous drives and aces out of his bag of tricks, but they did not stump Doeg as they did a year ago when he bowed to the master in five hard sets in the semifinals of this same tournament.

Doeg today fired right back with placements and acing drives of his own, outdoing Tilden in power of service and lunging in to kill the champion's returns with whizzing volleys.

Tilden's right leg, which has bothered him in many a previous match, had him limping throughout most of the last three sets. The leg appeared to give him great pain, but Big Bill threw caution to the winds to race about the court, leg or no leg, in quest of Doeg's searching volleys and soft, deceptive chop strokes.

Doeg Only Title Victor Over Tilden Since 1919.

Not since little Bill Johnson downed him in the final round in 1919 had big Bill lost to an American in the United States championships. Only the great Frenchmen, Henri Cochet and Rene La Coste, had accomplished the feat before.

Tilden, over that period, compiled his total of seven championships with a string of six between 1920 and 1925, and another title last year when he won his way through a field of younger rivals in the absence of the French stars, who had captured the championship for the three previous years.

This year Tilden started in quest of his eighth national title as the favorite against the field, so strong had the belief in his continued supremacy become. But the younger generation had made long strides in the intervening year as was proved by the great play of Doeg and Shields.

There was wild excitement in the concrete stadium of the West Side Tennis Club in the dramatic moment when Doeg, after being held at bay by the gallant champion through a 22-game fourth set, punched across the two perfect placements that accomplished Tilden's downfall. One was a perfect chop stroke that fell into totally unprotected territory, and the last was a whizzing volley that carried with it the finality of fate.

Tilden Runs From Court After Defeat.

Doeg rushed to the net to shake hands with his opponent, and Tilden, after congratulating his opponent, ran Widener Star Ready for Today's Test at 7 Furlongs.

Equipoise Holds Hope of Whitney Barn in Classic.

By ORLO ROBERTSON.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Fifteen 2-year-old thoroughbreds quietly munched their oats in luxurious stalls tonight, occasionally glancing out over a flower-banked Belmont Park track, where on tomorrow they will set forth in quest of the pot of gold waiting at the end of the rainbow known as the Futurity.

Although the entries number two fewer than last year., when Harry Payne Whitney's Whichone won $105,730, the richest purse in American turf history, there will be no lacking of quality on tomorrow when the championship aspiring turf youngsters face Starter George Cassidy down at the far end of the 7-furlong Widener straightaway.

The 1929 renewal of the historic turf classic figured as strictly an all-Whitney affair, but, in contrast, tomorrow's running looms as a wide-open affair with the three outstanding candidates for the 1930 juvenile title battling with twelve other speedsters for the winner's prize, which should amount close to $100,000. If all fifteen start the race will gross $108,600.

Equipoise Holds Whitney's Hope.

In an effort to make it two straight, Whitney is sending out Equipoise, a speed demon that many say is equal to the Whichone of 2 year and 3 year old fame. Unlike last year, however, when the Whitney silks were the favorite, Equipoise will rule the second choice tomorrow, the honor of public favoritism being conferred on George D. Widener's Jamestown, a strapping son of St. James, that swept all before him at Saratoga, with the exception of the Hopeful.

Jamestown should face the barrier at odds of 8 to 5 or even shorter, with Equipoise, offered at 5 to 2. Gifford A. Cochran's Epithet, the third of the big three, which will pack the top weight of 130 pounds, qualified as a candidate for 2-year-old honors by defeating Jamestown in the Hopeful, and probably will be held at 3 to 1. When he conquered Jamestown, however, the Cochran flash had only 117 pounds up and then just managed to win by a nose.

Winner Gets Start Toward Record.

A victory by either one of the heavyweights would send his total earnings for the year soaring above the $150,000 mark—a respectable start toward all-time money-winning honors, with the many rich 3-year-old stakes still before him. Gallant Fox, present holder of the title, had won only $20,000 when he closed his 2-year-old campaign by running third to Whichone and Hi-Jack in the same race last season.

Linus "Pony" McAtee, than which there is no better rider of 2-year-olds, will be astride Jamestown, while Sonny Workman, youthful hero of many a stake race, will be astride Equipoise. Epithet will have the guiding hand of old Bill Kelsay, a veteran when many of the present crop of jockeys were still in their cradles.

thrashing to draw away from Bounder in the home stretch.

Jockey Adams registered his fifteenth victory of the meeting when he drove Miss Rhoda Christmas' Secrecy home ahead of Alchemist and Merichar in the 5½ furlongs of the third.

Secrecy waited back of the pacemaker, Merichar and Alchemist until the turn for home, where he went out in the center of the track and, closing very fast, won going away.

A powerful ride by Frankie Dougherty enabled Bob Crawford's Clay Pigeon, the odds-on favorite, to win the 5½ furlongs of the fourth race.

Clay Pigeon Up in Final Stride.

When Clay Pigeon moved around the first turn he was sloughed and forced wide, dropping from second to sixth position. However, Dougherty went to work on his mount and gradually picked up the leaders to be right on top of Argail and Sweet LaCruse at the turn for home.

In the dash to the pay-off line Sweet LaCruse took the lead from Argail, only to have Dougherty drive Clay Pigeon into the lead right at the wire.

The many Washingtonians in the crowd strung along with W. A. Smithson's Tazewell, and the 7-year-old chestnut gelded son of Tchad—Victoire De Verdun justified that confidence by winning the fifth, a mile and a sixteenth, to pay $12.20.

Johnny Shanks rated the winner perfectly. He waited for three-quarters of a mile back of Tempter's pace and then took command to win handily from Cabellsdale, with Wondering Gold, the favorite, third.

Frankie Dougherty scored his second victory of the day when he drove the Justa Farm Stables' Justa Pal home ahead of Quadroon and Have a Care in the mile and one-sixteenth of the sixth.

Adams Scores 16th of Meet On Battle Shot.

Dougherty let Quadroon set the pace for half a mile and moved to the front to win as his rider pleased Have a Care, within striking distance of the leaders for a mile, tired, but was next best.

Jockey Adams registered his third victory of the day and his sixteenth of the meeting when he drove Mrs. Bryan Harris' Battle Shot home ahead of four others in the mile and a sixteenth of the day's curtain affair.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WANDERING JIM, $3.60, $2.20, $2.20; PENCIL, $2.30, $2.20; CHOOKIE G., $2.30.

WANDERING JIM broke slower than usual, but was rushed into second place at first turn. In the run down the back stretch WANDERING JIM closed in on PENCIL the pacemaker, and they were on even terms turning for home. In the run to the wire WANDERING JIM outgamed PENCIL to win by a nose. The latter was another nose in advance of CHOOKIE G., who came from far back and was running faster than the first two at the wire.

SECOND RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:43. Off at 2:48. Winner, Mrs. E. I. Seabridge's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PRIMLIN, $11.20, $5.00, $3.60; BOUNDER, $3.30, $2.60; GALLOPETTE, $2.70.

PRIMLIN was given a hustling ride from the break. She broke on top and was hard hustled all the way home to win handily from BOUNDER. Latter, off second, chased the winner throughout and had no excuses. GALLOPETTE, away with the leaders, was taken the overland route and was next best.

THIRD RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:21. Off at 3:23. Winner, Miss Rhoda Christmas' b. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SECRECY, $5.70, $3.10, $2.40; ALCHEMIST, $4.60, $3.00; MERICHAR, $2.60.

SECRECY kept within striking distance of the leaders and, saving ground at every turn, came out into the center of the track in the dash to the wire to win going away from ALCHEMIST. Latter broke fast, but after taking lead at the first turn, ran very wide, but came again to be setting the pace at the turn for home. He tired in the stretch and just missed. MERICHAR, under punishment throughout, had no excuses.

FOURTH RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:52. Off at 3:53. Winner, R. Crawford's ch. g. CLAY PIGEON broke alertly, but was outrun to the first turn. He was bumped as he entered the back stretch and forced back but, under energetic handling, came again and won going away. SWEET LACRUSE forced the pace throughout and was next best. ARGAIL, well up going to the first turn, forced CLAY PIGEON wide and opened a long lead on the back stretch, but tired badly in the run through the home lane.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $600; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:28. Off at 4:28. Winner, W. A. Smithson's ch. g. TAZEWELL, restrained back of TEMPTER'S pace for three-quarters, went around leader on the turn as his rider pleased. CABELLSDALE broke slowly, worked his way up gradually and, after looming up dangerous at the stretch turn, tired in run to the wire. WANDERING GOLD broke well, but ran out at turn into back stretch the first time around. He came again, but could not menace the two.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $600; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:02. Off at 5:03. JUSTA PAL, restrained off the pace for a half mile, moved around her field and was taken in hand to win as her rider pleased. QUADROON, used up forcing the pace, could not withstand the winner's challenge. HAVE A CARE ran an even race.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $600; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:32. Off at 5:33. Winner, Mrs. B. Harris' br. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BATTLE SHOT, $4.10, $2.60, $2.40; EUGENE S., $4.20, $3.00; SAUCY, $2.90.

BATTLE SHOT won a very lucky race. After making the pace for three-quarters, she was passed by EUGENE S., whose rider then started easing him up in the stretch. BATTLE SHOT'S rider, quick to take advantage of the break, rousted his mount and came again to win by a nose. SAUCY, used up forcing the pace, was next best.

—Lincoln Fields Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

THE Steger Handicap, $5,000 added, features the Lincoln Fields card this afternoon, bringing together again many of the best campaigners familiar to Chicago racing. Chief among these is the Rogers Caldwell filly, of Nashville, LADY BROADCAST, which has done everything but fly in the West.

With her track record at Arlington Park, and her victories since over handicap horses of note, she should win this stake. Picked against her is the erratic PIGEON HOLE, which, at his best, should be the contender. The race is at a mile, and that should give all the contenders a chance to show their best. MY DANDY, beaten off last out, should regain his speed and be a contender, probably the best for third, with ESKIMO next. This is one of the most interesting races of the Lincoln Fields fall meeting.

FIRST RACE—This is for horses 4 years old and up, claiming. MISS LEE is rated best. She will have the veteran PERCENTAGE to beat. There is little difference between them at the weights. LEE COOPER, an outsider, may get in the money.

SECOND RACE—In the second race for 2-year-olds, OSWEGO appears the class, by odds, and is selected to defeat BONFIELD, CAMP PRINCE and others. It is possible ROYAL ROGUE may wake up and give a surprise, but OSWEGO has been thoroughly tried and is at his best. He should win on his last race.

THIRD RACE—This is a classy affair, called the Valley Brook Country Club Purse. J. N. Camden's HONEY LOCUST is regarded the wake-up horse in the race, with CLUBHOUSE to beat. H. P. Whitney's entry of TANTIVY and RUEFUL is dangerous RUEFUL seems to have the speed of the entry, but HONEY LOCUST has beaten better horses.

FOURTH RACE—EIL WEIR seems selected in the fourth race because of the absence of any particular class, although EIL WEIR would do better on a heavy track. PORTMANTEAU is in best form and probably will be the contender. GAMBOL has outside chance and may get closer than third.

SIXTH RACE—GOTOIT will have Fort Dearborn in the sixth race and will have his hands full. BROWN BRUTUS should hold the others safe. GOTOIT is overdue, very fast and this looks like the day.

SEVENTH RACE—HONEST JOHN has a good chance in the seventh and will have only THEORIST JANE as the dangerous contender. WOODLOT has a look-in, but only for the show money.

DI ESTE, M'CARTHY, SHOREY, PITT TO SEMIFINALS

Bannockburn Golf Play to End Today

Semifinals This Morning With Finals in Afternoon.

Twelve Extra-Hole Matches in Yesterday's Play.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

THE semifinal round in the Bannockburn Golf Club annual invitation fall tournament will be played this morning between William P. DiEste, Argyle, and M. F. McCarthy, Beaver Dam, in the upper bracket, and John C. Shorey, Bannockburn, and Harry G. Pitt, Manor, in the lower half.

DiEste finished third in the recent District amateur championship; McCarthy was runner-up last year in the Beaver Dam Club championship; Shorey won the Bannockburn tournament last year and is a former District junior champion, and Pitt is a former winner of the Middle Atlantic championship and this year won the Chevy Chase invitation tournament for the third time in succession.

DiEste in Two Overtime Matches.

Pitt won his way into the semifinals by comparatively easy matches both morning and afternoon yesterday, but Shorey was carried to the home green by John G. Biggs, jr., Argyle, and was only one up when on the seventeenth green he ran down a putt from the far edge of the green for a birdie 2.

Di Este's experience was more exciting. Although in the forenoon struggle against John L. Quigley, unattached, he was 4 up with only 5 to play, Quigley squared the match on the eighteenth green and DiEste won by virtue of a birdie 3 on the nineteenth hole. In the afternoon, playing against William L. Pendergast, former champion of the Bannockburn Club, he was carried to the twenty-first hole before he won. In this extended match both players halved the nineteenth hole in birdie 3's.

McCarthy, who began his match against J. T. McCarthy, Bannockburn, with a birdie 3 on the first hole and an eagle 3 on the second hole, had to play 20 holes before he won and then he had to sink a birdie on the decisive green.

Twelve Matches Carried Extra Holes.

The number of matches which were carried beyond the eighteenth green yesterday constituted almost a record. One 21-hole contest; two which went to 20 holes, and nine which were decided upon the nineteenth green, afforded the golfers a succession of thrills. Many of them were more or less spectacular, especially the finish of the match between Clarence Dodge, jr., Columbia, and Fred W. Rade, Manor, when Dodge sank an eagle 2 from 75 yards off the green.

A. S. Gardiner, jr., Columbia, who was 2 up and 2 to play in a match against Carl M. Noetzel, Argyle, three-putted the eighteenth green and the contest ended in Noetzel's favor on the extra hole. Gardiner's second shot skidding over the nineteenth green. Robert C. Hird, one of the younger Manor players, was forced into two nineteen-hole matches in the second sixteen, but fortunately won both, so that he survives for the semifinal round in his flight this morning.

Baggett-Heron Tied for Net Honors.

In fact, a column could be written concerning the experiences of the 24 players who walked from the eighteenth green to the nineteenth tee but the few incidents which have been related are typical of all the rest.

As there is only one prize for low net, the tie between J. J. Baggett and J. B. Heron, each with 69, will be played off at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

CAPITAL CITY PLAY-OFF STARTS

Eagles - Bausermans, Dixie Pig-Tigers Play Tomorrow.

FOUR sandlot baseball teams that have battled their way to section titles will start the play-off tomorrow for the unlimited class championship of the Capital City League.

The Anacostia Eagles, champions of the District section, will entertain the Bauserman Motor Co. Team, winner of the Virginia section title, on the Congress Heights diamond. At the Byrd Stadium, University of Maryland, the Takoma Tigers, champions of Montgomery County, will meet the Dixie Pigs, newly crowned champions of Prince Georges County. Both games start at 3 o'clock.

Hard-Fought Games Expected.

Some of the hardest-fought baseball of the season is expected in these two battles between clubs representing these four sections. Both games should draw large sandlot crowds.

The Eagles are planning to use either Hal Brown or Jimmy Goodwyn on the mound against the Bauserman's Club. These hurlers have proven their ability in the blated rush that carried the Anacostia team to its triumph over Columbia Heights, St. Joe and the others in the District race.

The Virginians have three hurlers ready. They are Bennie Wormersley, Bernie McCarty and Hull. The latter pitched the Firemen to victory over the Police recently.

It is expected that the Takoma Tigers will depend on Ray Davdson for their starting pitcher. Francis or Skinner may be used, however.

The Dixie Pigs are likely to start Blackie Adair. He turned back Mount Rainier in the section play-off and is now in top form.

GREENVILLE WINS AGAIN.

Macon, Ga., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—The postsearies of the South Atlantic League began again in Macon today with the home team dropping another battle to Greenville, 7 to 3. The Spinners have a two-to-one count in games.

Williamstown, W. Va., Sept. 12.—Raymond "Dutch" Neale, former coach of Salem College, will be coach of Williamstown High School Football Team this season in place of Al Jolley, who has resigned his contract, following an offer to play professional football with a Brooklyn team, which he accepted.

Jolley will train at Magnetic Springs, Ohio. The Brooklyn team opens its schedule September 21 against the Chicago Bears in Chicago.

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 12.—Frank "Daddy" Billmeyer, of the Cumberland Gun Club, won the high prize in the annual postseason shoot of the Maryland and West Virginia Trapshooting League, held at Barton. He defeated Irvin Ritchie of the South Branch Gun Club in the shoot-off for high gun. Billmeyer and Ritchie finished the regular season for high gun with scores of 187 out of a possible 200 targets for the four league matches, and in the shoot-off Billmeyer nosed out his rival by a single bird, breaking 24 out of 25 to Ritchie's 23.

Mrs. "Bunny" Sanders, of Keyser, W. Va., received the prize for being the high woman gunner in the league, while Bill Powell, of Cumberland, was high junior gunner.

SCRIMMAGE IS ORDERED FOR G.U.

Smith Takes Charge of Linemen; Five on Injured List.

Special to The Washington Post.

POINT LOOKOUT, Md., Sept. 12.—Georgetown University's football players, in training here, will indulge in their first scrimmage of the season tomorrow. While Coach Tom Mills had hoped to delay the rough work, he has come to the conclusion that the squad is advanced to a point where scrimmage is necessary.

The Hilltop coaches are hoping that scrimmage will not add to the injured list. Five men remained at the hotel today, nursing sprains and bruises. They were Costello, quarter back; Johnny Bozek, half back; Muti, end; McCafferty, end, and Leary, half back.

SEMIFINALS FOR 2 D. C. GOLFERS

Hunter, Jr. and Sasscer Near Title in Baltimore Event.

Special to The Washington Post.

BALTIMRE, Md., Sept. 12.—It will be Washington vs. Baltimore in the championship semifinals of the Suburban Country Club's invitation golf tournament as a result of the escond-round matches today over the Park Heights avenue course.

J. Munro Hunter, jr., Indian Spring Golf Club, will lay Charlie McCourt, of Clifton Park, in the upper half of the firs tsixteen tomorrow morning, while Leroy Sasccer, another Indian Spring representative, will match strokes with Harris ones, of Rolling Road.

The championship final is scheduled for the afternoon. Hunter advanced with victories over Dr. Larry S. Otell, Indian Spring, the medalist, and Tom Sasscer, Leroy's brother. The scores were 3 and 2 and 4 and 3, respectively.

Hunter Rallies After Being 3 Down.

Otell was 3 up on Hunter after the first nine holes, but the medalist's game faltered badly on the incoming nine, while Hunter, Washingtonian, rushed through with some fine golf to take advantage of the opening Otell presented him.

In the match with Sasscer, Hunter assumed an early lead and never left the result in doubt. Leroy Sasscer did not encounter much trouble in defeating both his opponents. After downing Spencer S. Overton, Forest Park, by 4 and 2 in the morning, he came back in the afternoon to eliminate E. E. Johnston, Baltimore Country Club, 4 and 3.

Johnston had advanced to the second round by virtue of a victory over Harold N. Graves, jr., Indian Spring.

AMERICA'S CUP RACE SERIES STARTS TODAY

vantage sailing into the wind to offset anything Shamrock can pick up on the run.

It is also much guesswork, however, so far as the experts are concerned. The respective capabilities of the two sloops will not be accurately known until they have been put to the racing tests. So far as designing skill, money and technical ingenuity can devise, Enterprise and Shamrock V, each costing upward of $500,000, and the American boat closer, perhaps, to $1,000,000, represent the last word in yacht racing, as befits a struggle for the battered but historic old trophy.

While the crowds gathered the experts debated, launches buzzed around the harbor like bees and aircraft soared overhead. The big sloops with the towering masts had their final workouts today, limbering up their sails and gear much after the manner a pair of heavyweight boxers exercise easily the day before the battle.

Gallery Reminiscent of That At Dempsey-Tunney Fight.

In fact, the universality of Newport's gathering and the sentiment manifest is reminiscent of Tex Rickard's last battle of the century between Dempsey and Tunney at Chicago. Here society and the captains of big industry occupy their palatial yachts, instead of ringside seats. Here they have made Lipton the favorite, as they did Dempsey at Chicago—but Tunney won the fight.

For this billion-dollar spectacle the array of expert talent gathered from many parts of the British Empire as well as the United States is equally as impressive as any ever assembled about the ringside for a heavyweight championship fistic affair. There are experts on baseball, polo, golf, tennis, society, big business and fashion, as well as yachting. By radio, from barges and destroyers, they will tell the world what can be seen from "ringside" observation points a half mile or more from the racing course.

The first race tomorrow is scheduled for 10:30 (E. S. T.) and not later than 12:30. The time limit is 5½ hours. Until one yacht wins four races, the series will be continued daily, except Sundays, unless the weather or a request from either side necessitates a postponement.

The New York Yacht Club announced today the designation of Johnston de Forest, of Oyster Bay, N. Y., as the American representative aboard the challenger, Shamrock V, during the series. Aboard Enterprise will be Sharman Crawford, representing the Royal Ulster Yacht Club.

LANGLEY PLAYS PALISADE.

The Langley A. C., victors in sixteen of their twenty games, will play the Palisades A. C. at 3 o'clock today on Diamond No. 4. The Langleys are seeking a game tomorrow with some team having a diamond. Call Mann at Adams 3964 after 5:30 o'clock.

President's Cup Regatta Feature to Carenaught

Capt. Flickinger, Army Airplane Pilot Stationed at Bolling Field, Drives Boat to Victory in Secretary of Navy Race.

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 12.—An Army airplane pilot, now stationed at Bolling Field, in Washington, had one of the roughest courses of his experiences to navigate here today in the fifth annual Secretary of Navy's cup race, featuring the opening day of the President's Cup regatta being held here on the Severn River, inlet to the Chesapeake Bay.

The pilot, Capt. H. W. Flickinger, however, rode on the choppiest kind of water, due to a stiff northeasterly wind, to bring the Carenaught, an unlimited displacement boat, home winner in both heats of the feature of today's regatta and pageant which drew more than 10,000 persons to the historic Maryland Capital.

Winner Averages 48.128 Miles Per Hour.

Flickinger overcame every hazard of water and opponent and made especially brilliant headway on the curves in the main event to outdistance five other starters. He raced over the course at an average speed of 48.128 miles per hour with Croykeys, of Buffalo, N. Y., owner of the boat, playing the part of the assistant.

The Carenaught won the first heat easily with the Pet, of Baltimore, Md., second. In the final heat, a new entry, the Baby Horace, driven by Horace Dodge, of Detroit, with Alex Johnson, owner of the famous Yankee Doodle, as his helper, challenged the Carenaught and held an early advantage which was lost in rounding the buoys. With the Pep II developing engine trouble, the Carenaught was challenged only by Miss Philadelphia, and that not very stoutly.

The races run under auspices of the Maryland Yacht Racing Association were under the jurisdiction of C. F. Chapman, secretary of the Racing Commission of the American Powerboat Association, with William Elkridge, veteran starter of 25 years, acting in that capacity.

The day was really one of outboard motors, there being both amateur and professional brushes, with the Century Cyclone, driven by Barney Davis, of Tuxedo Park, N. Y., four times piloting that craft home to first laurels in the amateur class, while in the professional outboards, J. A. Becker, of Atlantic City, brought his Flying R-ds home the victor.

151 Hydroplane Races Give Thrills.

Real thrills were found in the 151 hydroplane limited races. The event, listed late in the day, took place when the river was gradually increasing its angry mood and the crowd stood or sat in fear of a catastrophe as the leading craft, the Meadowmere II, piloted by Frank Ripp, of Jamaica, Long Island, N. Y., cut and skimmed over the waves at the remarkable speed of nearly 51 miles an hour, despite the conditions.

While any number of boats were disabled and obliged to drop out of the various events, only one spill occurred. That came to Irving W. Dillon, of Lawrence, Mass., who was rescued by the Coast Guard. He cut too close to a buoy on the first turn, his craft capsizing in the professional outboard division.

Today's program had a spectacular climax tonight with a brilliant pageant on the river, in which more than a score of decorated boats and floats passed up and down a one-mile course. Powerful searchlights from the Naval Academy played upon the entries that enhanced the splendor of the scene. Some 15,000 or more persons gathered along the river banks or other points of vantage.

Tomorrow will be the big day of the regatta as the contest for the President's $5,000 gold trophy will be run off over a distance of 15 miles. The course being two and a half miles, it will require six laps.

Fastest Boats in U. S. to Race For President's Cup.

Some of the fastest boats in the country are eligible for this brush, including Imp II (R. F. Hoyt, Columbia), The Californian (R. Lownes, Long Branch), Hotsy Totsy (V. Kilesrath, Montauk) and Miss Columbia (T. Hall, Red Bank). The race will be run in two heats, the first at 1:20 p. m., the second at 2:45 and the final at 4:15.

Other contests scheduled for the afternoon will be for outboards, 151 hydroplanes, 225 and 300 horsepower stock runabouts, and the Chesapeake free-for-all, the latter being a 20-mile race and closing the program.

GARBER TO APPEAL ELECTION DECISION

Virginia Republican Says Ruling Keeping Name Off Ballot Faulty.

COURT WILL HEAR CASE

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Sept. 12.—Representative Jacob A. Garber, Republican, Seventh Virginia District, announced today that he will appeal next week to the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals from the ruling of Attorney General John R. Saunders that he filed notice of his candidacy too late to have his name placed on the ballots for the November election.

Mr. Garber filed his candidacy with Secretary of the Commonwealth Peter Saunders last Saturday afternoon. The attorney general ruled that midnight last Friday marked the close of the 60-day period before election as required by law.

The Garber statement contends that he filed in time and that all intents and purposes of the law were carried out. He insists that a mere technicality should not deprive the people of their right to have their candidate's name placed upon the ballot so they may express their preference at the polls. Mr. Garber's statement follows:

Calls Report Absurd.

"Since entering office I have devoted my time almost entirely to my constituents. Their demands upon me during the past few months have been so constant that my own interests, in a large measure, escaped my attention. The false report being circulated that my failure to file was intentional is too absurd, and its purpose too obvious, to engage the attention of any thoughtful person.

"It would appear that the ruling of the attorney general is open to serious question on at least two grounds.

"The wording of the State election laws is that the candidate shall file 'sixty days before election.' It should be pointed out that an election has not been held until the polls have been closed on election day. It is submitted, therefore, that I am within the purview of the statute when I filed before sundown on September 6. In other words, it is held that both the day of filing and the day of election should be counted in the 60 days because the wording of the law, 'before such election,' carries the actual time up to the hour when an election is fully accomplished, at sundown of election day. It must be urged, therefore, that the attorney general is in error when he interprets the word 'election' to mean the same as the 'day of election.'

Says Intent Overlooked.

"In the second place the ruling overlooks entirely the real purpose and intent of the law. The 60-day filing is required for the purpose of giving the secretary of Commonwealth ample time to certify the names of the candidates to the electoral boards so that these boards, in turn, will have time to print the ballots and place them in the hands of the proper electoral officials.

"My name was filed on September 6 at 2 o'clock. The names of the other candidates who had filed by midnight of the previous day had not been certified by the secretary to the electoral boards, and my filing fourteen hours later in no way delayed the certification of these names. The real purpose of the law was in no manner touched by inadvertence."

MARYLAND WOMAN IS KILLED BY BULL

Widow of Urbana Farmer Is Fatally Gored by Maddened Beast.

SON FINDS HER BODY

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., Sept. 12.—Mrs. Clara V. Roderick, widow of the late William McC. Roderick, a former well-known farmer of Urbana district, was fatally gored by a vicious bull in the barnyard at the home today. Mutilated, she was found by her son, who went to look for her when she did not return after being away more than one hour.

Mrs. Roderick went to the barnyard to milk, and while driving several cows in the barn was attacked. She was tossed against a concrete wall and, while helpless, was repeatedly gored by the infuriated animal. She was carried into the house by her son, and died before the arrival of a physician.

Some time ago, while Mrs. Broderick was in the barn, the bull rammed its horns through a wooden door in an effort to attack her. She was 66 years of age and is survived by four sons and four daughters.

Church Sermon Topics To Be 'Hell' and 'Liars'

There will be some excitement around Georgetown Lutheran Church and Centennial Baptist Church Sunday, for the pastor of the former is going to preach on "Hell" and the pastor of the latter on "Liars," both formidable subjects.

Curb Review

New York, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Shares traded on the curb market fluctuated uncertainly today, and the more active issues generally closed a point or so lower, in sympathy with a decisive downturn on the big board in the last hour. Transfers aggregated 450,800 shares.

Recent firm spots in the electrical power and gas group were active features, and generally encountered selling pressure in the late trading. Electric Bond & Share, United Light A, American Gas & Electric, Consolidated Gas of Baltimore and Missouri Kansas Pipe Line lost about a point each. American Superpower, United Gas and Niagara Hudson closed with losses of about ¼ point. Electric Power & Light warrants, however, were up about 1 at the finish, and Duke Power gained 5.

Several of the lightly traded specialties were practically inactive in the late trading and failed to reflect the late decline. Cooper Bessemer, Irving Air Chute, Lehigh Coal & Navigation and Orange Crush showed net advances of about a point. A. O. Smith gained 3, and Pratt & Lambert 4. Struthers Wells gained 3 points. Its first half earnings, reported at $1.61 a share, against $2.13 last year, were evidently better than expected.

A weak feature was American Cyanamid B, which dropped more than 3 points to a new low at 16⅛, compared to the year's peak of 37, on omission of the dividend. This stock was a pool favorite in the March rise. Morrison Electrical Supply dropped 6 and Noma Electric 1⅝ to new lows in a few sales.

In the investment trusts, Corporation Securities Co. of Chicago and Goldman Sachs Trading each lost a point. Others moved narrowly. Oils were largely neglected. Cities Service and Vacuum each yielded ¼. Humble gained ½ and Gulf was about steady.

ARMOUR AND SARAZEN SCORE

Veteran Pros Meet Today for P. G. A. Championship.

from the court as he had done when he bowed to Rene Lacoste in another great match three years ago.

Doeg's mighty service was an overpowering weapon, outdoing the famous cannon balls of Tilden himself. In the four sets Doeg served the amazing total of thirteen love games—four in the first, one in the second, three in the third and five in the fourth. He piled up 29 aces to Tilden's 14, and when he wasn't acing Big Bill outright, he often was forcing him into nets or outs by the sheer power of his serves. Tilden made an unusually large number of nets—70 to Doeg's 42.

The coast giant had his unorthodox ground strokes under greater control. Chopping gently but placing well, he often outsteadied his foeman in the long, exciting rallies. Doeg's ground strokes are considered the weak point in his armor, but they filled the bill, today.

Doeg now has achieved the notable record of beating the country's second and first ranking players in successive days. As he downed Frank Hunter, Tilden's old friend and fellow veteran, in five sets in the quarter finals yesterday.

	Aces	Places	Outs	Nets	Def.
Doeg	29	41	64	42	9
Tilden	14	37	45	70	6

Shields' clear-cut victory over Wood in the other semifinal was somewhat dwarfed by what followed, but the towering New Yorker, 6 feet 3 inches tall and weighing 175 pounds, played remarkable tennis, and will be close to an even choice against Doeg. Both have great services and follow them up with sensational volley.

In the national veterans' singles play for men over 45, the semifinals were won by Commander C. C. Gill, U. S. N., who defeated Fred Baggs, New York, 6—2, 6—3, and Henry H. Basford, Bronxville, N. Y., who downed Dr. William Rosenbaum, New York, 8—6, 6—3.

down in the seventh, the pace began to tell on him and Ryan singled to center to start a five-run rally. Crouse scored him with a double to right and Bruce Campbell, a rookie, hit a single off the first professional delivery that had ever come up to him. Crouse scoring. Cissell filed for the second out but Watwood doubled to right to score Campbell, and Reynolds blasted a home run into the left field stands to score Watwood ahead of him. Jolley rolled out to Myer and Washington's lead was cut to three runs.

Barnes singled as first man up in the eighth and Marberry was relieved by the left-handed Brown. Appling singled to send Barnes to third and Mulleavy batting for Ryan, beat out an infield hit to score Barnes and send Appling to second.

Hadley then replaced Brown. Fothergill batted for Crouse and his single scored Appling and sent Mulleavy to third. Tate batted for Walsh, who had relieved Braxton in the Washington eighth, and sent a grounder to Myer. Myer throwing Mulleavy out at the plate for the first out of the inning. Cissell singled to right, but Rice's good throw caught Fothergill at the plate as he attempted to score from second, and on the next pitched ball Spencer threw to Cronin to nip Tate as he was taking a long lead off second base.

Watwood opened the White Sox ninth with a single to left and after the next two men had been retired, moved to second when Barnes walked. He got to third on a wild pitch, and then he and Barnes attempted to work a double steal. Cronin cut off Spencer's throw to second and shot the ball back to catch Watwood coming into the plate for the third out.

Hadley despite his having finished today is scheduled to start on the hill for the Nationals in the second game of the series tomorrow with Pat Caraway opposing him.

pitcher, was the victim of all the Brooklyn scoring. The Robins bunched hits for one run in the first and another in the second. In the third frame, a home run by Al Lopez on a long drive which bounded into the left field bleachers, brought in three runs and gave the Robins a safe lead. Another homer, Glenn Wright's twenty-first of the season, scored the last two Robin runs in the fifth frame. Ken Ash took over the mound duty for the Reds in the sixth and shut out the Robins for the last three frames.

BALL OPPOSES BAR LIQUOR STRAW VOTE

State Senator Excoriates Action of Association in Statement.

GAS CONTRACTS GIVEN

ARLINGTON COUNTY,
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

In a letter made public yesterday, addressed to the secretary of the Virginia Bar Association, State Senator Frank L. Ball bitterly attacks the prohibition repeal poll now being conducted among the members of the association pursuant to a resolution adopted at the recent annual convention, referring to the vote as an "utterly childish movement."

"Were I to become a party to this utterly childish movement within the bar association by voting at all I would certainly vote no as I am against the repeal of the amendment," Senator Ball said.

The letter reads:

"Time was when the bar of this State took the lead in constructive statesmenship and the members of the profession enjoyed the full and complete confidence of the people in their leadership in public affairs. As officers of our courts sworn to uphold the laws of the land lawyers exerted perhaps the greatest influence in the nation in building up a sincere respect for law in general and in personal obedience to our constitution and the legal enactments of our legislative bodies. The profession was then an ornament to our country as well as a great power for the maintenance of law and order.

"Considering the high standards of leadership of my profession in the past I am astonished that it should sink to a point where today it is joining with the forces that are trying to tear from the Constitution one of its greatest amendments without offering a single suggestion of anything constructive to take its place. I am constrained to believe that this movement did not start within the bar association or even within the profession, but that it is grounded and promoted by one of the organizations whose sole object is to break down the prohibition law, hoping that the people as a whole will demand its repeal, and whose ideal is not to teach the practice of law respect but to drill into the youth of our land a total contempt for anything that smacks of prohibition.

"I should have thought that the question of world peace, unemployment, monopolistic control of our trade and finances, shocking expenditures in the purchase of public office and some of the other great questions of the day might command the attention and merit the thought and action of the bar association.

"I though also that the association might place before the people some definite program in aid of national respect for law and order. These things would have been a credit to our leadership and would have aided in restoring to our profession at least some semblance of the influence it formerly enjoyed.

"If the Bar Association and the lawyers of this State want the eighteenth amendment repealed, let them first purge themselves of contempt for our Constitution by swearing off entirely and ceasing to disobey the law while the battle is on. If all the lawyers of our State refuse to purchase from bootleggers or disobey the law in any respect and exert their influence toward persuading their friends and neighbors to do the same for just one year, most of the great evils which are blamed on prohibition would be wiped out, law respect would again be in the ascendency, the humble people of the land would again have confidence in the leadership of our profession, and America would set an example of temperance that would dazzle the world. Let us not forget that it is not prohibition that causes so many crimes. It is whisky and the mad desire to get it that is creating disorder today and has been the seat of the larger portion of crime since our country began, regardless of any governmental method of handling it or prohibiting it.

"I have the highest respect for the individual opinion of my fellow lawyers and any one else on the prohibition question as well as on any other question. Outside of the criminal class, who do not respect any law, I find three very different classes of people opposed to prohibition. First there is a large class composed of excellent men who obey the law as long as it is on the books, but are opposed to it for perfectly honest reasons. There is a second class whose thirst for ardent spirits is greater than their respect for the Constitution and statute law. They oppose it on perfectly personal grounds. There is a third class which made money out of the sale of liquor in the old days and they are spending millions to tear down this law.

"I sincerely hope the action of the bar association did not originate through the machinations of this latter class. I am confident the general public thinks it did. I have no fixed opinion as to whether it did or not, but I am frank to say that I can not understand what good could come of taking a straw vote and giving it to the press. It does sound like pure propaganda to the man who thinks. By placing itself in the category of those who promote straw votes the association has forfeited the high confidence which it has formerly enjoyed and made itself a mere conveyor of propaganda. The power to legislate still rests with the chosen representatives of the people and not with volunteer associations. The people are thinking for themselves. The wet press and the association trying to repeal the amendment are driving the dry people to a point where they will refuse to vote for any one for anyy office who has any wet leanings. Those who have been drowsing are now awakening and the dry sentiment when once thoroughly aroused can sweep the country. If your action aids in arousing it you will have the satisfaction of knowing that unintentionally you have done a service to your country."

Bids will be opened by the County Board of Supervisors at its meeting Monday for surfacing that section of Wilson Boulevard at the center of Clarendon and resurfacing with curb and gutter the following streets that intersect the boulevard at this point for the distance of one block: Garrison road, North and South Clarendon avenue and Washington avenue.

County Engineer C. L. Kinnier plans to have this improvement completed before winter weather sets in.

Contract for 17 miles of extensions has been awarded by the Washington Gas Light Co., of which the Rosslyn Gas Co. is a subsidiary, to Thomas N. DeLashmutt, who until a few months ago was sanitary engineer for Arlington County. A second contract has been awarded to the United Gas Improvement Co. covering a distance of about 8 miles. This will be the largest project of recent years by the company, operating through its subsidiary.

That portion of the contract which has been awarded to Mr. DeLashmutt calls for the laying of mains from Rosslyn along Military road and Mount Vernon avenue to Virginia Highlands and out Columbia pike to Alcova Heights and Barcroft. The contract to the United Gas Improvement Co. calls for mains out of Clarendon along Memorial drive to Falls Church.

Mr. DeLashmutt stated last night that he has machinery on the ground now and will start operations Monday morning and hopes to complete the contract by December 1.

The executive committee of the Arlington County Business and Professional Woman's Club will meet Monday evening at the home of Mrs. George Corder in Clarendon.

Services at the Clarendon Baptist Church tomorrow will be conducted by the pastor, the Rev. Perry L. Mitchell. At the morning service his subject will be "Can Civilization Conquer Crime?" In the evening will begin a series of sermons on the names of God, his subject being "God, TheAlmighty One."

Tomorrow at the 7:15 mass conducted by the Rev. John A. Curran, the Holy Name Society of St. Charles Catholic Church at Clarendon will receive Holy Communion in a body.

Morning service at 11 o'clock tomorrow at St. George's Episcopal Church will be conducted by the rector, the Rev. Henry J. Miller, whose subject will be "The Parable of the Soils."

Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DALY

LUELLA was all hopped up about the fishing expedition. She worked well into the night getting things in shape for an early morning start.

"What you'd better do," she said, "is leave the car out——"

"Leave the car out? Why not put it in the garage?"

"Oh," she said, "just park it in front of the house——"

"And let somebody run away with it, eh?"

She ridiculed the idea.

"It's perfectly safe out there. Hasn't it been left out many times, all night?"

* * * *

SHE was right, and to show her trust in humanity she put all the fishing tackle, the umbrellas, and other paraphernalia in the tonneau.

At midnight we were ready for the Land of Nod.

"That was a good idea," she said, suppressing a yawn, "putting all that stuff in the car, and leaving the car where it'll be so handy in the morning."

"A good idea is right, said I, too tired to think.

In a little while the cookoo birds were singing, and all was quiet along the eastern shore—waiting for the fishing expedition.

* * * *

LUELLA, fast on her feet, had coffee made by the time I came down stairs, sleepy-eyed, wondering by what freak of nature men get up at 5 o'clock in the morning to go fishing; when they wouldn't do that of a Sunday morning, to go to church. Oh, well, this is the age of science.

"The milkman hasn't come yet," said Luella, "so you'll have to go without cream——"

"We are up early, aren't we——?"

"We'll get an early start, and by noon you'll probably have depleted the bay. What are you going to fish for?"

"Fun——"

"I wouldn't be so funny, if I were you, especially at this hour," she snapped, and gave me the great big thermos bucket to put in the car.

* * * *

"Is there anything else to go in the car?" I asked, "It'll save a trip."

"No, just take the thermos, and I'll bring the lunch basket."

So I went out the front door, still sleepy; to find the car had disappeared. Somebody, during the night, had made off with everything—car, fishing tackle, and Leulla's umbrellas.

She stood on the doorstep disconsolate: "Who do you think took it?" she asked.

"You ask me, Leulla, and I'll ask you: Some high-minded soul who was afraid you might get drowned, fishing."

She went in the house, heart-broken.

$125,000 Is Lost In Maryland Fire

Cumberland Roundhouse Is Totally Destroyed During Night.

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 12.—Fire late last night destroyed the former Georges Creek & Cumberland Railway Roundhouse on North Mechanic street, owned by the Western Maryland Railway and leased for shops and storage by the Cumberland Machinery Co., Van Construction Co., Vang & Shriver Oil Co. and Tristate Engineer Co. Much equipment was destroyed.

The buildings, especially the old roundhouse, built 40 years ago, burned with great brilliancy and illuminated the entire northern end of the city. The blaze is thought to have originated in an automobile truck hauled in the machinery company shops for repairs. Estimates place the total loss over $125,000.

The firemen were handicapped by intermittent gasoline explosions as trucks and automobiles burned.

COMPANY ASKS PAY FOR WATER AT FIRES

Cost to Alexandria Would Be Between $15,000 and $20,000 Year.

WOMEN OF LEGION MEET

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The Alexandria Water Co. has asked the City of Alexandria to pay for the water used in fire protection, which, it is understood, will involve an outlay on the part of the city of between $15,000 and $20,000 a year. The matter is understood to have been presented to the city council at an informal meeting Thursday, at which only members of the council and representatives of the water company were present, and to have been taken under consideration by the council.

It is understood that the water company proposed to the council, in the event its application for compensation for supplying water for fire-fighting purposes is granted, to install a booster system and to lay new mains where such are found to be necessary, guaranteeing to supply at all times ample water for fire-fighting purposes. There have been several occasions, it is understood, on which the supply of water was not adequate, for which the water company disclaims responsibility.

It is also understood that the water company, which acquired the local plant a little more than a year ago, proposes to petition the State corporation commission for authority to increase its rates for domestic consumption. The present rates are based on a flat charge, the company's contracts stating that this charge is only temporary, pending the installation of a meter service. It is not definitely understood whether the application to the corporation commission will be for the installation of a meter service or an increase in the flat rate which for residences is $12 a year for the first connection, plus a charge for each bathroom and kitchen connection as well as outside hose connections.

Mrs. F. Clinton Knight, who was elected president of the American Legion Auxiliary to Post No. 24, Alexandria, assumed the office at the meeting held on Thursday night in Gadby's Tavern, as the State constitution provides the election of officers prior to convention and their term of office to begin directly after convention. The department convention was held in Harrisonburg the past week, where the local unit was represented by Mrs. Knight, Mrs. R. B. English, Mrs. Margaret Bailey, Mrs. Julian P. Ballenger, Mrs. C. M. Shepperson and Mrs. Insco. Reports from the convention were submitted by the delegates.

Mrs. Knight announced the selection of standing committee chairmen as follows: Rehabilitation, Mrs. R. B. English; child welfare, Miss Mae Cavanaugh; poppy, Mrs. St. Clair D. Shelton; service sale, Mrs. W. Cameron Roberts; memorial, Mrs. Julian P. Ballenger; penal, Mrs. Insco and Mrs. T. Clifton Howard; constitution and by-laws, Mrs. Charles M. Shepperson; community service, Mrs. Sidney Weil; finance, Mrs. W. M. Glasgow; sick, Mrs. George W. Roop; legislative, Mrs. Irvin Diener; banquet committee, Mrs. W. J. McMenimen; fidac, Mrs. John H. Trimyer; publicity, Mrs. Leroy Peabody; national defense, Mrs. R. Samuel Luckett, and Americanism, Mrs. C. H. Strader.

The Department of Virginia will entertain the delegates to the Fidac Congress in Washington the coming week, at a tea on Friday, September 19, in Gadsby's Tavern, as the party returns from Mount Vernon. The entertainment committee, appointed by the retiring department president, Mrs. George E. Cameron, jr., of Petersburg, is composed of Mrs. B. M. Roszel, of Winchester, newly elected president; Miss Cora A. Vaughan, of Franklin, a past president; Mrs. Reba Barrett Smith and Mrs. F. Clinton Knight, of Alexandria.

Mrs. Knight has appointed a local committee to arrange details of the affair under the direction of the department committee, as follows: Mrs. R. B. English, Mrs. C. M. Shepperson, Mrs. J. H. Trimyer, Mrs. L. H. Dudley, Mrs. W. M. Glasgow, Mrs. M. F. Bailey, Mrs. A. M. Lochwitzky and Miss Kathleen Douglass.

Miss Kathleen Douglass was appointed recording secretary for the year, and Mrs. Bailey, corresponding secretary.

Mrs. Mozelle Goods Dienelt, 34 years old, of Alexandria, died yesterday in the Alexandria Hospital following an operation.

Mrs. Dienelt had been private secretary to Carl Budwesky, Alexandria city attorney, for several years, and she was well known in business and club circles of the city.

Surviving her is one son, Bertram Dienelt; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Goods; two sisters, Mrs. John Watson, of Charleston, W. Va., and Miss Olive Goods, of Alexandria, and two brothers, R. L. and Thornton Goods, of Alexandria.

Funeral services will be held at the Goods residence in Alexandria Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock, with Drs. E. V. Regester and D. L. Snyder, of the Southern Methodist Church, of Alexandria, in charge.

The city council has authorized City Attorney Carl Budwesky to institute legal proceedings to acquire the strip of land in the center of Mount Vernon avenue on which is situated what is known as Hume Spring, near Glebe road.

The late Frank Hume, about 40 years ago, walled in this spring and erected a wooden canopy over it. With the coming of the automobile and the steady increase of traffic the spring, instead of being an oasis for the weary and thirsty traveler, has come to be considered a menace to traffic, particularly since several accidents and near accidents have occurred there.

The City of Alexandria, having annexed the territory in which Hume Spring is situated, has undertaken the task of widening and otherwise modernizing the roadway known as Mount Vernon avenue, and old Hume Spring must, according to the Alexandria officials, get out of the line of traffic. An effort was made to settle the matter with the Hume heirs, apparently without success, and so it has been decided that legal action is necessary. The city takes the stand that the diversion of the flow of the spring a few feet to one side or the other would make for safety and yet would not impair the almost historic value of the spring. As it is now there is felt to be an ever-present danger of automobile accidents.

Plans for the fifth annual style show and trade exhibit of Alexandria Post No. 2, American Legion, were discussed last night at a meeting of the general committee in Gadsby's Tavern, presided over by Howard Arnold. The show will be held in the armory from September 29 to October 4, inclusive, and is expected to be the biggest and most attractive show ever held by the local legion post.

A new feature this year of the style show will be a booth presided over by the American Legion Auxiliary, for its service sale. This sale, which is held each year by the auxiliary, is of articles made by disabled veterans in the various hospitals throughout the country. The articles are made by veterans who, as a rule, are unable to do any other kind of work; and the proceeds of the sale, going to the veterans, in most instances constitute their sole income. A great variety of articles is offered. Mrs. W. Cameron Roberts is chairman of the service sale committee.

The proceeds of the style show will be utilized by the post to defray interest charges in connection with the purchase and restoration of Gadsby's Tavern.

Funeral services for William E. Candler, deputy city sergeant, will be held at 11 o'clock this morning at the Cunningham funeral home, and will be conducted by the Rev. Pierce S. Fillis, pastor of the First Baptist Church. Burial will be in Bethel Cemetery.

Sheriff Upsets Jail-Break Plot

Trio of Prisoners Sawed Several Cell Bars in Martinsburg.

Special to The Washington Post.

Berkeley Springs, W. Va., Sept. 12.—Sheriff Nebraugh nipped an attempted jail delivery last night by three confessed chicken thieves, Henry Keesecker, sentenced to four years, and Ted and Herbert Miller, each sentenced to three years, when he found several bars in their cell here sawed through and a hacksaw blade, made from a jackknife, in their cell. He was attracted to their cells by continued noise-making. He believes the would have been in the corridor in another fifteen minutes, whence escape would have been simple. How they secured the knife is not known.

For safekeeping the three were removed to the Berkeley County Jail at Martinsburg, W. Va., pending tranafer to State's prison. Their conduct indicated, officers said, that the men were intoxicated, but the sheriff thinks their condition was probably due to use of a drug smuggled to them. They were the only prisoners in the jail when the break was attempted.

RESCUE SQUAD CHIEF QUITS HIS POSITION

Andrew Gasch Elected to Succeed H. L. Leonard in Prince Georges.

BODY'S GROWTH CITED

Chief H. L. Leonard, of the Prince Georges Rescue Squad last night tendered his resignation to the squad at a meeting held at Mount Rainier. The chief said that his position as manager of the Washington Suburban Gas Co. is requiring so much of his time that he does not feel he can give the proper attention to his duties as chief.

He said that he regretted having to take the step and promised that he would cooperate to the best of his abilities in the future. The members created the position of president of the rescue squad and elected Chief Leonard to that position.

Constable Andrew Gasch, of Bladensburg, was elected chief of the squad. Chief Gasch has been one of the mainstays in the squad since its organization nearly three years ago.

It was organized largely through the efforts of Chief Leonard and is the first volunteer fire department rescue squad to have its own ambulance. It has grown from one group to fifteen squads attached to the various county fire departments and now has three ambulances. Several hundred of patients have been cared for and many lives saved by its efforts.

JUDGE DISMISSES RECKLESS CHARGE

Prince Georges Policeman Fails to Appear Against Fire Truck Driver.

FAIR EXHIBIT WINNERS

Judge J. Chew Sheriff yesterday dismissed charges of reckless driving which had been preferred against Edward George Boyer, driver of the College Park Volunteer Fire Department, when the arresting officer, Prince Georges County Policeman Frank P. Prince, failed to appear in Upper Marlboro branch of County Police Court to press the charges. The policeman arrived about ten minutes after the case had been dismissed.

According to Sheriff Charles S. Early, Officer Prince had been under the impression that the Police Court would not hold sessions, as yesterday was Defender's Day, a legal holiday in Maryland. He was hurriedly summoned when court conveped, but did not arrive in time.

The fire engine driver was arrested last Saturday while responding to a fire. Officer Prince charged that the engine was driven in such a manner as to unnecessarily force a passenger automobile off the road, the escape from injury of the private car's passengers being almost miraculous.

Volunteer firemen of the county plan to appear before the county commissioners Tuesday to protest the arrest. The Maryland law gives right of way to fire engines. Prince contends that the law does not give the firemen the right to drive on the left side of the road and force passenger cars from the road.
